McNamara Plan Rejected

Inauguration Fever Rises In Washington

Kennedy Clan Gathers; Snow, Cold Forecast

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—The town really began to bulge, bustle and buzz Wednesday with people crowding in for Friday's inauguration of John F. Kennedy as president of the United States. Sprightly, peppery, Harry S. Truman, who once lived in the White House himself, was among them.

The Kennedy clan was gathering, too. The president-elect spent the day in New York before flying down to Washington to start the rounds of official preinaugural events with an appearance at a reception honoring Vice President-elect Lyndon B. Johnson. Mrs. Kennedy came by plane from the other direction, from Palm Beach, Fla.

And, except for carpenters still pounding on a stately white stand in front of the White House, things are about as ready as they ever will be for the changeover in administrations. Security agents have even battened down all the manholes in the streets along the line of march of the inaugural parade.

Snow, Cold Forecast

But it looks like chilblain and goosepimple weather for some of the gorgeous girls who will be riding floats. Florida is going to have seven bathing beauties aboard an entry depicting the "Sunshine State."

The weather man, though, said it looks now as if there may be a bit of snow Thursday. And Friday will be cold and windy with the temperature around freezing.

Every train and plane poured in out-of-towners. Information booths at terminals, hotels and motels were mobbed with people wanting maps, or word on where to round up that ticket to the inaugural ball that should have arrived by mail. Reinforcements from as far as Chicago came to the assistance of firms renting evening apparel.

President Eisenhower held his last news conference and rolled through a heavy round of appointments. With less than 48 hours left for him at the White House, he had the air of a man who wasn't exactly unhappy at the idea of leaving it—only that a Democrat was moving in.

Truman Beams At Welcomers

It was Harry Truman who gave up the Democratic lease on the executive mansion eight years ago. And the 73-year-old Missourian was utterly delighted that a Democrat will be moving back in Friday afternoon.

He beamed at welcomers at Union Station, shook hands exuberantly and told everyone in earshot: "Whenever the Democrats are around, you're in good company."

In addition to dozens of private parties on the side, Thursday will bring a reception for governors, an inaugural concert featuring American composers and talent, and a gala show featuring stage and movie stars and Democratic party efforts to raise money to pay for the campaign debt.

All this is just a prelude to the solemn, impressive ceremony for the swearing in of the new president and then the vice president before the east front of the Capitol building at noon Friday. After that, it's back to razzle dazzle and celebration with the great parade down Pennsylvania Avenue and an inaugural ball split into five sections and scattered around the city.

C&O Train Derailed

SCOTTSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Thirty cars in a 71-car Chesapeake and Ohio freight train derailed four miles west of here Wednesday. A C&O spokesman said there were no injuries among the crew of five.

Challenge By Reds Kennedy's Gravest Problem, Ike Says

Favors Election-Inaugural Date Shift

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower urged the incoming Kennedy administration Wednesday to keep America "strong and firm and yet conciliatory" in meting the global challenge of communism.

The retiring president, in an amiable mood, closed out his White House news conferences with a wide-ranging discussion of domestic and foreign problems. It was his 193rd meeting with reporters as president and 305 newsmen turned out.

Thursday, Eisenhower will confer with President-elect John F. Kennedy to wrap up final details of the transition from the old Republican to the new Democratic administration. On Friday he will go out of office when Kennedy takes the presidential oath at noon.

To smooth the way for future transitions, Eisenhower Wednesday suggested a constitutional amendment advancing the time of presidential elections and inaugurations. He said the new chief executive should have 80 days in which to organize his administration before he starts dealing with Congress.

In his farewell appearance in the ornate Indian Treaty Room at the old State Department Building next to the White House, Eisenhower was nostalgic, reflective and wryly humorous.

He was also solemnly authoritative in outlining what he regards as Kennedy's gravest problem, his own greatest achievement, and his biggest disappointment in eight years in the presidency.

The legacy he reluctantly will have to leave Kennedy, Eisenhower said, "is the intransigent, unreasonable attitude" of the Communist nations.

To meet this he said not only the new president but everybody else will have to concern themselves with "what to do to keep ourselves strong and firm and yet conciliatory in trying to meet . . . this terrible problem that is none of our making."

Eisenhower said he believes his greatest achievement lies in having developed policies that kept the peace when weakness might have plunged the world into a disastrous war.

His formula, he said, lay in "the kind of understanding and firmness and readiness to take the risk" that prevented a destructive clash with the Communist bloc.

The President said his greatest disappointment came in "the fact that we could not in these eight years get to the place where we could say it now looks as if permanent peace with justice is really in sight."

Eisenhower made his proposal for a shift in inaugural and election dates in response to a question as to whether he thought the transition period—which he said has been going "splendidly" in this case—ought to be shortened.

New Job For Benson

NEW YORK (AP)—Ezra Taft Benson, outgoing secretary of agriculture, was elected a director of Corn Products Co. Wednesday.

Jackie Leaves Caroline 'To Get New House Ready'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mrs. John F. Kennedy kissed 3-year-old Caroline goodby Wednesday and told her that mother was going to Washington "to get a new house ready for the family."

Four hours later the nation's next First Lady arrived here from Palm Beach, Fla., to make final preparations for Friday's inauguration.

Caroline and baby brother John Jr. will remain at the family's vacation home in Palm Beach, until a nursery can be set up for them at the White House.

Mrs. Kennedy had been preparing Caroline for several days for her parents' departure. The little girl took the parting well, consoled by a promise that as soon as the "new house" is ready mother would make a telephone call to tell her about it.

"Caroline loves to talk on the telephone," said Mrs. Kennedy's news secretary, Miss Pamela Turnure.

The Kennedys' private airplane, named The Caroline for their daughter, took off from Palm Beach International Airport at 12:40 p.m. in a cloudless Florida sky. About 200 spectators waved goodby.

Mrs. Kennedy had walked over to the crowd just before boarding the plane.

"Thank you all for coming," she said softly.

Rebels Down One Of Four Laos Planes

U.S.-Supplied AT6 Lost While Strafing Retreating Leftists

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Pro-Communist forces have shot down one of the four U. S.-made trainer-fighters of Premier Prince Boun Oum's infant air force, a government source said Wednesday. The chance of getting a replacement appeared remote.

The propeller-driven AT6, packing five-inch rockets and two .30-caliber machine guns, was reported felled by ground fire Tuesday while strafing retreating rebels north of Vang Vieng. The fate of the Laotian pilot was undetermined.

Craft Support Offensive

Three of the trainer-fighters, instead of the usual four, were parked overnight at Vientiane's airport. Their flights have backed the government offensive above Vang Vieng, a recaptured highway post 70 miles north of Vientiane, and helped menace defenders of a staging area near the waist of Laos.

The little squadron has injected a new element into a war that had been largely hit-and-run ground fighting.

There were Laotian rumors that more AT6s would be sent. But official American sources here denied knowledge of any future deliveries.

U. S. Silent On Russ Charge

A Soviet charge Monday that the United States planned to turn over more powerful F84 Thunderjets to Laotian pilots turned up no confirmation in Washington. The Laotians have neither the training nor an airport to handle jets.

In the ground war, the government kept the upper hand in the north while Capt. Kong Le's leftist paratroops and Pathet Lao guerrillas posed a grave threat to Paksane and Tha Thom, garrison towns near the country's waist.

The leftists cut the road between the two towns, moving to a point about 100 miles northeast of this administrative capital. They struck in two columns.

"The Reds are coming—there is no question about it," said Maj. Phong Kave, commander of an undersized battalion at Tha Thom.

Rayburn Wins Major Victory In Rules Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas won a resounding and bloodless first-round victory Wednesday in his fight for control of the powerful House Rules Committee.

At a Democratic caucus markedly devoid of bickering, he rammed through a resolution to boost the committee's membership in a way designed to take away from a coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats control over the flow of major legislation.

The resolution was shouted through at one of the briefest caucuses in party history—15 minutes. It would increase the size of the Rules Committee from eight Democrats and four Republicans to ten Democrats and five Republicans. This could break the legislative grip now held by the four Republicans and two Southern Democrats. Assuming that backers of President-elect John F. Kennedy's legislative program are assigned to the two Democratic vacancies, this should provide easier House sailing for such bills.

In effect, the resolution was a compromise worked out by warring factions to avoid the more drastic step of purging one of the Southern Democrats, Rep. William M. Colmer, of Mississippi. Rayburn, in his determination to regain control of the committee, had approved the purge procedure as a last resort.

Idaho's 80.7% Voter Turnout Record Best

NEW YORK (AP) — Idaho did the best job of getting its voters to the polls in the 1960 presidential election, the American Heritage Foundation said Wednesday.

Idaho had 80.7 per cent of its voting-age residents cast their ballots. The national average was 64.3 per cent.

Kennedy Maps Latin America Goodwill Plan

NEW YORK (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy adopted a goodwill program toward Latin America Wednesday by setting up Puerto Rico as a focal "meeting place and workshop" for improving relations.

Kennedy, two days away from his inauguration, announced the project after conferring here with Gov. Luis Munoz Marin of the Puerto Rican Commonwealth.

Before flying back to Washington and the start of the inauguration festivities, Kennedy also had lunch with W. Averell Harriman, who will be his ambassador at large; had a final fitting of his formal clothes, and visited a dentist.

He also announced four appointments to his staff, including two military aides.

Kennedy issued a statement saying he and Munoz were agreed there was a need for a clearer recognition that the United States understands Latin America's needs.

He called it the "hemisphere's need for a fundamental effort—a revolutionary effort in the best sense—to satisfy the desire of Latin American peoples for a civilization that shall be great materially as it already is spiritually."

"Gov. Munoz and I," he said, "have agreed to take measures to expand the availability of Puerto Rico's facilities for a meeting place and workshop where we in the United States and our neighbors in Latin America may learn more about our mutual problems and the possibilities for the great achievements that we can attain by working together."

Kennedy announced these appointments:

Army aide to the president — Brig. Gen. Chester V. Clinton, of Annandale, Va., deputy Army chief of information.

Air force aide to the president —Col. Godfrey T. McHugh, deputy chief of the Air Force headquarters long range objective group in plans.

Assistant attorney general in charge of the civil division—William H. Orrick Jr., San Francisco attorney.

Special assistant to the president--Richard Goodwin, a native Bostonian who served on Kennedy's senatorial staff after a year as law clerk to Supreme Court Justice Flix Frankfurter.

Americans' Personal Income Takes Drop

WASHINGTON (AP)—The total income of all Americans declined in November and December for the first time since the 1959 steel strike.

The Commerce Department said Wednesday the annual rate of personal income dropped by $700 million in November and by $2.3 billion in December. The December rate of $406.7 billion compared with an October peak of $409.7 billion.

Payroll cuts in manufacturing industries accounted for virtually all of the decline.

Pickets Close New Haven Line

NEW YORK (AP) — Striking tugboat pickets Wednesday shut down the New Haven Railroad, just as they had the New York Central 24 hours earlier.

Both lines use Grand Central Terminal. The last New Haven train left the city for Stamford, Conn., at 8:29 p.m. EST and the vast station fell silent, eerily void of trains and passengers.

The halt in New Haven service affected 30,000 daily commuters in the New York metropolitan area, plus long-distance service to Boston and Springfield, Mass., Washington and Philadelphia.

It brought to 100,000 the number of commuters stranded thus far.

Intruder Kills Student, Shoots Prof At Calif. U

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — A 40-year-old English professor and his graduate student assistant were wounded - the student fatally — by an unidentified, bushy-haired man with a sawed-off shotgun on the University of California campus Wednesday.

The student, Stephen Mann Thomas, 29, died an hour and a half after the sudden and unexplained attack in the Dwineile Hall office of Prof. Thomas Parkinson. Parkinson was shot in the face.

Both victims were rushed to Herrick Memorial Hospital. Thomas died there of a gaping back wound. Parkinson later was transferred to Peralta Hospital in nearby Oakland where his condition was described as fair. Part of his jaw was shot away.

The professor's wife, Mrs. Ariel Parkinson, was at his bedside. She said she had no idea why anyone would shoot either her husband or Thomas, a brilliant student working for a doctorate in English.

Rosy Economic Picture Painted By Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower Wednesday painted a rosy picture of the nation's economy and said his administration has laid a firm base for "a period of sound growth."

And Eisenhower placed at the feet of his successor, President-elect John F. Kennedy, the key role in spurring this growth. Without naming Kennedy, the President said the federal policies needed could, to a considerable extent, be achieved "administratively and require no legislative action by Congress."

Eisenhower's annual economic report—his last big message to Congress — listed 14 "important matters" on which he said congressional action is needed. Most of these, however, he has already asked in one form or another.

None of the proposals could be called antirecession measures, such as some economic experts say are needed. Heading Eisenhower's list was a plea to keep his new $81-billion federal budget in balance and keep inflation under control.

The whole tone of Eisenhower's message was opposite to the only comparable document, a report on Jan. 5 to Kennedy by his economic task force.

That Democratic group recommended swift emergency measures but cautioned against pushing the panic button.

Among other things the group called for extending unemployment compensation pay, along with other programs to raise federal outlays by $3 billion to $5 billion in the year starting next July 1.

Eisenhower conceded that Congress might supplement jobless pay in "periods of especially high rates of unemployment." But newsmen were told by his economic advisers that the present rate of 6.8 per cent jobless isn't high enough to justify such federal aid.

The President's message nowhere spoke of a recession, business tip or downturn as occurring in the final months of his administration.

Embezzler Chooses Jail To Facing Her Victims

SHELDON, Iowa (AP)—The reserved, graying daughter of a bank president chose the solitude of a jail Wednesday to going home to face the people from whom she embezzled $2 million.

Burnice Iverson Geiger, 58, an assistant cashier and board member of her father's bank where the shortage was discovered, remained in the county jail at Sioux City in lieu of $10,000 bond.

Her husband, Wallace, a merchant and member of a prominent Sheldon family, said he sent his wife a note asking her to change her mind.

"I think there is a good chance I can talk her into putting up the bond," he said.

U. S. Dist. Atty. F. E. Van Alstine, who said Mrs. Geiger admitted the embezzlement, added, "It is my impression she took about half the money during the past year or 18 months.

"Her method was different from any I had ever seen."

He declined to disclose the method, but said the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. knew it.

Van Alstine said Mrs. Geiger, appearing remorseful, told him she intended to put the money back. He would not say where or how the money was spent.

The district attorney said, "I asked her if she was insolvent and she said very much so."

Solons Rule Trust Fund Falls Short

Written Promise Required; Senators Back Rusk, Adlai

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Armed Services Committee Wednesday rejected the $1.1 million trust fund plan of Secretary of Defense-designate Robert S. McNamara. He had set it up to avoid possible conflict of interest.

But the committee decided it fell short. McNamara was ordered to file a written promise that neither he nor his fund would own defense stocks while he heads the Pentagon.

The action came during a busy day when Senate committes approved the nomination of four members of President-elect John F. Kennedy's Cabinet and of Adlai Stevenson as ambassador to the United Ntaions.

McNamara, however, received only conditional approval. To win full approval, he must file the written promise.

In his testimony Tuesday, McNamara said he would revise his trust fund plan in any manner suggested by the committe.

"It's a very harsh rule," said Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the committe, but he said the committee also had applied it to Charles E. Wilson, President Eisenhower's first secretary of Defense.

Rule Applied To Others

Russell said the rule also applied to nine other Defense Dept. nominees who were questioned by the committee in the past two days. They have received conditional approval, pending their written promises to get rid of all defense stocks, Russell said.

McNamara, former president of Ford Motor Co., had sold all his Ford stock when he accepted the designation by Kennedy. McNamara then proposed putting his receipts—$1.1 million after taxes—into a trust fund over which he would have no control.

Other Senate committees Wednesday approved the designations of Dean Rusk as secretary of State, Douglas Dillon as secretary of the Treasury, Abraham A. Ribicoff as secretary of welfare, and Luther H. Hodges as secretary of commerce.

Their formal nominations, however, will not reach the Senate until Friday, inauguration day. Senate votes on the nominations are expected Saturday.

Witnesses at four separate committee hearings included Stevenson, Hodges, three Justice Department nominees, and seven of the Defense Department nominees.

Stevenson Expects U. N. Rebuffs

Stevenson attracted the most attention as he testified for 2¼ hours. A crowd filled the hearing room and 200 persons stood and listened in the hallway.

While cautioning of possible trouble in the United Nations, Stevenson, twice-defeated Democratic candidate for president, drew laughter from the crowd by telling the committee he regards himself as "something of an expert in rebuffs and disappointments."

Stevenson delivered a glowing tribute to the United Nations. He called it "thoroughly antitotalitarian" and said its importance is demonstrated by the fact that "when a Communist leader wants to bang his shoe on the table—and be heard—he, too, must come to the United Nations."

But, Stevenson continued in response to Republican questions, any view that Red China's admission to the United Nations would make that country less militaristic or less anti-American "is highly optimistic."

Lumumba In Congo's Most Secure Prison

JACOTVILLE, the Congo (AP) —Patrice Lumumba was locked up Wednesday in this province's most secure prison, nursing cuts and bruises from a severe beating by Katanga police.

The Katanga government of President Moise Tshombe, which seceded from the Congo during Lumumba's turbulent term as premier, announced he was brought to Katanga because the Thysville military camp in the Leopoldville area was not secure enough to prevent his escape.

Eisenhower Is Still Peeved At Truman

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dwight D. Eisenhower is a most consistent man.

Even Wednesday in his final news conference, when he was in an exceptionally affable mood, he still couldn't forget that he's peeved at Harry S. Truman.

A reporter asked how active a role Eisenhower would take in politics after he steps out of office at noon Friday. Would it be similar to the one played by Truman?

Eisenhower frowned and began, "Well, I won't make any comparisons."

Although the words sound innocent in print, and although at no time did he refer by name to the man he succeeded in the White House, his tone plainly showed that ex-President Eisenhower isn't going to take ex-President Truman as a model.

Normally political feuds are easily patched up. But this one, which began back in the 1952 campaign, apparently still stands.

Other than this, you couldn't have asked for a sunnier farewell from the Old Soldier.

Fittingly for the last news conference go-around, Eisenhower was accompanied by his whole press crew: James C. Hagerty, Anne W. Wheaton, Wayne Hawks and even Robert Montgomery, who has coached the President on how to face television cameras.

Newspapermen collectively fret a lot over what a President thinks of them, and several of the questions dealt with his relations with reporters. Eisenhower seemed amused that some of them felt maybe the questioning at times had been unkind.

"When you come down to it," he said, "I don't see what a reporter could do much to a president, do you?"

As usual on these occasions, there was a summing up of dreams accomplished and dreams shattered.

Eisenhower, who talked peace so earnestly these past eight years, confessed that his chief disappointment was that he never found an answer, and said his chief accomplishment was that it could have been much worse.

Colleges Back Scholarship Revision Plan

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Hearty endorsement was given by private and state college administrations Wednesday to a proposed revision of Maryland's grants for student scholarships.

Thomas G. Pullen Jr., state superintendent of schools, sounded the only discordant note at a Senate Finance Committee hearing. However, there were signs of concern among some senators over limiting the minimum amount of grants to tuition.

Pullen made it plain he is against any state aid for college scholarships.

But he joined college spokesmen in praising proposed expansion of the number of scholarships, if such state aid is to be continued, that permit the recipient to choose the college.

In fact, he said all scholarships should be in this form.

The recommendations of a two-year study committee would award 800 new scholarships worth $500 each to be used at any state or private college and junior college.

Another 1,000 would be offered to persons who would commit themselves to teaching in Maryland after graduation.

Pullen objected that 327 of these teacher training scholarships would be eliminated under the proposals.

"This bill does violence to this program of providing teachers in the public schools," he said. "The bill is a serious blow to the state at a time when teachers are needed more than ever before."

The new scholarship set-up also would provide 558 scholarships to seven private colleges and 362 to state institutions. Tuition would be paid at the private institutions and tuition plus fixed fees at the state.

Pullen called his "a flagrant form of discrimination between prospective teachers and general students" because the tuition would be higher than the $500 granted prospective teachers.

Several senators had questions about limiting grants to tuition. Many of the present scholarships also cover room, board, books and laundry.

Members of the committee felt that many qualified students could not afford to accept scholarships if they were granted only tuition.

Sens. Samual Barrick, D-Frederick, and Edward O. Weant Jr., D-Carroll, will be given a chance next week to object to some provisions of the scholarship plan.

Tawes Supports Job Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maryland Gov. J. Millard Tawes said Wednesday economic problems of the Appalachian region can only be solved by "long-range, comprehensive steps to revive, and perhaps re-orient the economy of the region. . . "

Tawes' statement was submitted to the Senate Banking and Currency Committee considering depressed area legislation. The governor did not appear before the group.

The governor said "We in Maryland thoroughly support this bill to aid the distressed areas of our nation."

Tawes said steps must be taken in the areas of transportation, water supply and education as "part of the difficulty in which the distressed areas find themselves today derives from the fact that a comprehensive approach was not incorporated into assistance in the past."

Tawes said the Appalachian region was geographically isolated and "it was only natural that the nation was more interested in bypassing this region than in developing it."

He said to remove this isolation is a "question of highways."

Tawes urged a re-examination of plans for the federal interstate highway program to assure no effort was made to bypass this area.

Trio Sentenced For Gang Battle

TOWSON, Md. (AP) — Two youths involved in a gang battle at a shopping center parking lot last November were handed eight-year prison sentences Wednesday. A third youth drew a two-year sentence in the Maryland House of Correction.

Circuit Judge W. Albert Menchine, in imposing the penalties, said it would be the policy of the court to "deal harshly with persons convicted of crimes of viciousness and brutality."

An estimated 30 to 50 youths were involved in the fight at the Middlesex shopping center. A 19-year-old youth was critically injured when he was stabbed in the chest during the brawl, and another youth was beaten unconscious with a piece of iron pipe.

The eight-year terms were imposed on Blaine H. Freels, 20, and Earl F. (Rick) Lawton Jr., 17. Both were charged with assault with intent to kill.

Maryland Qualifies For Road Fund Bonus

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maryland Wednesday became the first state in the union to be eligible for federal highway bonus funds because of its regulations on outdoor advertising on the interstate system.

John B. Funk, head of the Maryland State Roads Commission, and Bertram Tallany, federal highway administrator, signed the agreement in Washington.

The bonus means Maryland will obtain additional funds totaling one-half of one per cent of its interstate allocations. State highway officials estimate this sum will be between $1.5 million and $1.7 million, spread over the life of the interstate act.

Maryland's billboard law prohibits erection of advertising structures within 660 feet of the right-of-way. There are exceptions including structures advertising goods and services available on a property lying within the 660 feet.

Jackie's Inaugural Gala Gown Has "Sedate Look"

NEW YORK (AP)—A closely guarded secret, the dress Mrs. John F. Kennedy will wear to the inaugural gala, was disclosed Wednesday by press secretary Pierre Salinger.

"An elegant sedate look" is what New York couturier Oleg Cassini called the dress of white silk ottoman.

Cassini called the gown a perfect example of the cool, fluid lines that he will use throughout his career as Mrs. Kennedy's official couturier.

Both Salinger and Cassini's office refused to comment on the cost of the dress. "We don't think Mrs. Kennedy wants that information made public," a Cassini employe said.

Last week the dapper, mustached designer told reporters that although the new First Lady has plenty of money to spend on clothes, she does not wish to appear extravagant.

Cassini took the dress to Washington and was expected to deliver it personally to Mrs. Kennedy Thursday morning. The gala is that night.

Tony To Become Office Worker

LONDON (AP) — Antony Armstrong-Jones, once a fashionable photographer, will become one of London's millions of office workers next week. It is his first job since his marriage to Princess Margaret last May.

Court officials said he will work without fees or salary for the Council of Industrial Design, a government-sponsored body aimed at improving the design of British manufactured products.

A formal statement from Clarence House said Armstrong-Jones will be associated with the council's educational and exhibition programs. The job involves handling films, film strips and other visual teaching aids.

He will fill the vacancy created by Tawes' recent appointment of Marbury to the Maryland Court of Appeals.

Cardinal Says Dooley Prepared To Die

NEW YORK (AP)—Jungle doctor Thomas Dooley is prepared to die and "is satisfied he has served his country, his profession and his God," Francis Cardinal Spellman said Wednesday.

The Cardinal paid a birthday visit to the 34-year-old Dooley at Memorial Hospital Tuesday, and spoke of it at a Bishop's Relief Fund luncheon Wednesday.

He said the young doctor, who established hospitals in Laos and worked there until stricken with cancer, had requested the visit.

Three More Cuban Executions Reported

HAVANA (UPI) — Three ousted members of the Cuban Electrical Workers Union were executed by a firing squad Wednesday, informed sources reported. They were accused of terrorist bombings last November.

There was no immediate government announcement of the executions, which brought the number shot in the past two days to six.

Revoltuionary tribunals sentenced 16 other Cubans to prison terms ranging up to 30 years.

Twenty military tribunals were working overtime at Havana's Cabana fortress-prison trying to clear jammed dockets of a remaining 50 cases of terrorist and other anti-state activity.

Anti-Gambling Drive Backed By Catholics

WASHINGTON (AP)—A spokesman for the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Washington Wednesday offered to cooperate with Protestants "with the idea," he said, "of total abolition of gambling" as an evil affecting the community and moral life of the people.

The Very Rev. Msgr. Edward J. Herrmann, vice chancellor of the archdiocese, spoke as co-chairman of a citizens' meeting in the Methodist Building here.

The Catholic deans of three Southern Maryland counties Tuesday broke an 11-year silence by members of that faith on legalized gambling. They condemned what they called excessive use of slot machines in Southern Maryland.

Catholics and Protestants alike were called on Wednesday by Bishop John Wesley Lord, bishop of the Washington area of the Methodist Church, to fight gambling in Maryland. The support of the Catholic Archdiocese of Washington was expressed by Msgr. Herrman, who said Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle is anxious to "cooperate with like minded people."

Msgr. Herrmann said the church's policy is to seek the cooperation of its lay organizations.

"We pledge our support," he said.

New Driver Permits Orange And White

BALTIMORE (AP)—Eventually, says the Maryland Department of Motor Vehicles, motorists of the state all will have new orange and white drivers licenses.

The new-style permits, the first group of which now is going in the mail, will replace photostatic licenses issued in the past. The newly-designed licenses, printed on heavier paper, are being issued in conjunction with the three-year re-registration program.

Prescott Resigns

BALTIMORE (AP)—The resignation of Stedman Prescott Jr. as deputy attorney general for Maryland was announced Wednesday. Prescott, 41, will return to private law practice at Silver Spring after four years on the State legal staff.

Rape-Slayer's Execution Set Early In March

BALTIMORE (AP) — Execution date was set Wednesday for a Baltimore man convicted of raping and strangling three women.

Criminal Court Judges James K. Cullen and Joseph L. Carter set the week of March 6 for the execution of Nathaniel Lipscomb, a Negro.

Lipscomb was convicted last Feb. 18 of the three rape-murders, but sentencing was delayed while the case was carried to the State Court of Appeals. The high court last month affirmed the conviction.

The court ruled that while Lipscomb was mentally deficient he was legally sane. The three victims—two of whom were white—all were murdered within a few blocks of the defendant's home.

Lipscomb, formerly of Charlotte, N.C., testified during his trial that he had ben charged with killing a woman in Charlotte but had been sent to a mental institution instead of standing trial.

Rapist Given Death Penalty

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP) — William Ralph, 27, Wednesday was sentenced to death in Maryland's gas chamber by the same three judge court which last week found him guilty of raping a 41-year-old Kensington woman.

Circuit Court Judge Thomas M. Anderson, one of the special tribunal sitting in the case, announced the death penalty as the defendant in blue prison garb stood impassively before the bench.

Ralph, a deliveryman, was convicted of raping the housewife March 21 in her home while her 5-year-old child slept in an adjoining room. He also is under indictment in the District of Columbia and in Montgomery County on other charges of rape and attempted rape.

Judge Anderson said the court was not influenced in its decision by "any other charges which might be against the defendant, about which the court has no personal knowledge."

Defense attorney Walter Moorman, asking the judges for a lesser punishment, said a bill abolishing capital punishment is scheduled to come before the present session of the Maryland General Assembly.

Moorman, whose earlier motion for a new trial for Ralph was overruled, said he would appeal.

Fraternity Zoning Row In High Court

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The Johns Hopkins University chapter of Phi Sigma Delta fraternity wants to establish a fraternity house at 3904 Canterbury Road in Baltimore.

Frank K. Poe and eight other residents in the neighborhood want to prevent it.

The whole controversy ended up in Maryland's highest court Wednesday.

The fraternity asked the high court to overthrow an order of Baltimore City Court reversing a decision of the Board of Municipal and Zoning Appeals. The zoning board had authorized the fraternity to move to the Canterbury Road residence.

The neighbors contend operation of a fraternity house would clearly violate not only the purpose but the letter of the zoning ordinance. They allege the ordinance prohibits operation of a rooming house customarily carried on as a business in a first class residential neighborhood.

The Greek letter group said the lower court erred in finding the chief activity of the fraternity house was "the offering of room and board to members."

Cumberland & Frostburg ACMES OPEN FRIDAY Evenings until 8 P. M.

Former Area Man Gets Top B & O Position

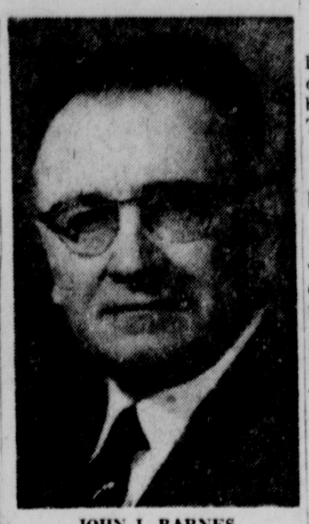
A native of Lonaconing, John I. Barnes, has been promoted from comptroller to assistant vice president for finance and accounting for the B&O Railroad Company, according to Howard E. Simpson, president.

Barnes has been comptroller of the B&O since June 1, 1946. He is a past national chairman of the Accounting Division, Association of American Railroads, serves on a special AAR committee studying simplification of inter-railroad accounting, and is a member of the Express Contract Accounting Committee, representing the Eastern Railroads.

Barnes began his career with the B&O as a stenographer in the office of the division accountant at Cumberland, in August, 1913.

He was transferred to the Baltimore headquarters of the B&O in 1920 and was assigned to the comptroller's staff in 1921. In 1936 Barnes was appointed secretary to the vice president and comptroller, in 1943 was named assistant to the comptroller, and on January 1, 1946, assistant comptroller.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnes live at 508 Club Lane, Towson. They have one son, William Thomas Barnes, who is comptroller of the Johns Hopkins Hospital.



JOHN I. BARNES

Thruway Project Will Put Route 40 Tavern Out Of Business

A tavern on U. S. Route 40 atop Long Hill at the eastern outskirts of Cumberland will go out of business as a result of the new Thruway project.

The Allegany County Board of Alcoholic Beverage License Commissioners yesterday reported Mrs. Dorothy Meaders, who has operated the business for some time, has surrendered her beer license. She will be refunded part of the license fee as the full year it called for is not completed.

The tavern was known as Beck's Tavern for many years and has been located on Long Hill since the end of prohibition in the early 1930s. The highway project will require vacating the premises by February 1.

The highway will be routed to the rear of the tavern and connects a short distance downgrade to the new Cumberland Thruway approach.

The liquor board also granted an off-sale beer license to Thomas Nash, corner of Queen Street and Maryland Avenue in McCoole. Nash operates a combination grocery store and service station.

A discussion was held by the board concerning the budget for the year starting June 1. Edward J. Ryan, board chairman, said the next budget will probably be in the same amount as the current $20,100 budget. Each year the board has a surplus and this money is turned over to the county.

Underwriters To Meet

The Cumberland Life Underwriters Association will meet Friday at the Central YMCA at 12:15 p. m. George Aldom, acting president, said suggestions will be welcome for improving the organization.

Man Given 2-Year Term In Robbery

Jerome Wesley Whitaker, 42, Cresaptown, yesterday was sentenced to two years in the Maryland State Penitentiary by Associate Judge W. Earle Cobey in Circuit Court.

Whitaker entered a guilty plea to a charge of armed robbery of the Warnick Market, Bedford Road, when tried before Judge Cobey last Wednesday on a criminal information. The armed robbery took place on the night of January 3.

Prior to passing sentence, Judge Cobey stated that Whitaker had entered a guilty plea to the charge and that armed robbery was one of the most serious crimes outside homicide. The jurist also commented that the state probation officer, James Lewis, had checked into Whitaker's background and the report showed the man had no previous offenses.

"Despite the good record of Whitaker and the probation officer's recommendation for leniency, I feel that the people of Allegany County are entitled to the protection of the court," Judge Cobey said.

"Even though Whitaker had a previous good record and his friends gave him good references the court had to take into consideration the seriousness of the crime," Judge Cobey remarked.

"The court has taken into consideration the probation officer's report and the good references of his neighbors in determining the length of the sentence. The maximum sentence for armed robbery is 20 years, and if Whitaker's record had been bad he ordinarily would have been given from five to 10 years in the penitentiary," the judge said.

For that reason Judge Cobey imposed the minimum sentence of two years on Whitaker.

Whitaker was taken into custody following the armed robbery when a car he was driving became stalled in a snowbank along a back road in the Lake Koon area.

GENEVA (AP) — About 60,000 persons are killed in European road accidents every year and more than half are cyclists or motorcyclists, reports the transport division of the U.N. Economic Commission for Europe.

Bridge Study Plan Backed

A resolution introduced in the West Virginia Legislature yesterday by Del. William D. Slonaker (D. Hampshire) would direct the State Roads Commission to study the possibility of building a bridge across the Potomac River between Green Spring and Oldtown.

For many years a privately owned toll bridge of the low-water type has been the only method of crossing the river at that point by vehicular traffic and pedestrians.

The West Virginia solons also received a resolution from two delegates calling for a constitutional amendment aimed at lowering the voting age from 21 to 18 years.

It takes two-thirds vote in each chamber to get the question on the ballot.

In remote parts of Scotland, the casket of a deceased person is carried out of his house, not through a door, but through an opening made in a wall. This opening is sealed up again immediately after it has served its purpose. This, so the belief goes, prevents the ghost from reentering the house, because the one door the ghost knows no longer exists.

Latin America Is Waking Up

Uruguay's expulsion of the Cuban ambassador as well as the first secretary of the Russian embassy reflects Latin America's growing sensitivity to the Communist threat of Fidel Castro. Eight nations in the Western Hemisphere, including the United States, have now taken diplomatic action that in one way or another serves to isolate the Castro regime.

How these defensive measures are being received in Moscow can only be conjectured. Perhaps to the Soviets they do not lessen the psychological value of maintaining Cuba as a Red satellite 90 miles from Florida.

But as the quarantine against Castro widens, as now seems to be the prospect, the Kremlin may have to reconsider Cuba's value as a base for a Communist offensive against Latin America.

Other Latin governments which haven't acted are showing concern at the activities of the Cuban government and its blatant call to the "peoples" of all Latin America to rise up and overthrow their governments.

The addition of Uruguay to the list makes nonsense of the notion that nations which show disapproval of Castro's Cuba do so because they are American puppets. Uruguay is nobody's puppet. She is independent even of her big next-door neighbors, and proud of it.

While these precautionary efforts of individual governments may be no substitute for collective action by the full 21-nation Organization of American States, they serve notice on Castro and his Soviet sponsors that Latin America is waking up.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Second Tier

As the sprawling, unorganized American Government is constituted, great significance must be attached to the Second Tier, that is the Under Secretaries and the Assistant Secretaries. They constitute, as a rule, the actual administrative heads of government. John Faster Dulles, for instance, played an important role in the affairs of the world, but he could not move about at his pace and be familiar with the actual daily operations of his department. The real work was being done down the line and the day-by-day decisions of deskmen faced both Dulles and Eisenhower with faits accomplis.

Franklin D. Roosevelt recognized that. His first Secretary of State was Cordell Hull, a delightful gentleman, opposed to a high tariff and barely interested in Roosevelt's fast moving activities. There is ample evidence that Roosevelt did not keep him informed. However, Roosevelt appointed as Assistant Secretaries men who were close to him, Raymond Moley, A. A. Berle, Jr., Sumner Welles. He operated the State Department through the men on the Second Tier.

The Cabinet has been losing its significance because of the existence of the National Security Council where the really meaningful decisions of our times are made; secondly, the President is dependent for advice upon experts, often men outside of government. Increasingly these experts are non-political personalities, university professors or businessmen or even clergymen who specialize in particular fields.

John Kennedy's Second Tier will include an extraordinary number of academicians, for whom he apparently has great respect, although they are often unrelated to the world about them. When they are not excessively objective, they become fanatical about some favored dogma. Their knowledge has often not been tempered by the fires of experience and they tend to accept the findings of other scholars as perfection depending upon the man's qualifications in terms of degrees and academic honors. Nevertheless, private enterprise has, of course, found the engineer and geologist and researcher worth their weight in gold when they stick to what they know.

The Kennedy Second Tier seems to be made up mostly of intellectuals. Of course, Chester Bowles, who will be Under Secretary of State, is not strictly within this category, he having earned his means by being an advertising man, generally referred to as a huckster. Nevertheless, Bowles comes of an amazingly brilliant family from Springfield, Massachusetts, whose best known member was Samuel Bowles, in his time one of the outstanding editors in the United States. Chester Bowles will fit in well with the Second Tier intellectuals.

What needs to be watched carefully is what Kennedy does with the Independent Agencies, the powerful carbuncles which have become attached to the Executive branch of the government but which usurp the power of Congress by regulations, the decisions of the courts by their own semi-judicial decisions and which act with full Executive powers. The Independent Agencies have received their basic authority from Congress but these have been expanded by their regulations and by their decisions. The Hoover Reports propose their reorganization; the recent Landis Report is even stronger.

On the whole, the men appointed to these Independent Agencies which exercise such vast powers are mediocre persons who work in technical fields for which few of them are technically equipped. Too many of them have in the past used membership on an Independent Agency as a stepping stone to private industry. There can be little question but that during the Kennedy Administration many changes will be made in the Independent Agencies.

Thus far, there have been no Cabinet appointments Second Tier appointments over which Congress will make a great fuss. However, the fights will come when legislation is proposed. The Conservatives in Congress have already shown their claws and the Kennedy forces wisely backed away from a fight before he actually sat in the White House. The Republican-Democratic Conservative coalition, founded by Senators Robert A. Taft and Harry Byrd, seems to be numerically larger than in either the Truman or Eisenhower Administrations. Cabinet appointments have, on the whole, been Conservative; Second Tier appointments have, on the whole, been Liberal. It will be interesting to see what this pattern turns out to be. The descriptions, Conservative and Liberal, mean so little in American political affairs, that it is impossible to draw a fixed conclusion from them. Only acts will show what is the complexion of this Administration. At present, the most that can be said is that it is ideologically mixed.

Floating Toward The Firing Range

Kennedy Will Not Be Master Of Nation's Fate

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — What kind of President will John F. Kennedy make? All over the world that very question is being asked. But the answer will not be found in his campaign speeches. Nor will it be obtained by analyzing his personality or career in public service.

In fact, the key isn't in Mr. Kennedy's possession at all. The following persons have the real answer:

Premier Nikita Khrushchev of the Soviet Union.

Chinese Premier Mao Tse-tung of the Red China regime.

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Great Britain.

President Charles de Gaulle of France.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany.

These five men control the future "prestige" of the Kennedy administration. For the United States cannot go it alone—it cannot overrule its allies or force its potential enemy to retreat. The Soviet Union, moreover, can produce crisis after crisis based on disunity or differences among the Western Allies.

The notion that John Kennedy has become dictator of the world's destiny is fallacious. His hands are tied — just as were those of President Eisenhower. All the hysterical rantings of the critics about lowered "prestige" or lack of "leadership" by President Eisenhower ignores a simple fact—that the head of the American government is not the boss and that he has only one choice, between war or peace. If he chooses peace, then patience and forbearance, which are easily misjudged as weakness, can be criticized once more. Significantly, W. Averell Harriman, former ambassador to Russia and designated as ambassador-at-large in the new administration, said on a WOR radio program, taped last Friday, that Americans will have to learn to live with the "cold war" for a long time.

But Representative John W. McCormack, the Democratic Party's leader in the House of Representatives, in "Radio News Conference" on Sunday, took a different view as he accused President Eisenhower of "very weak leadership on the world level" and called for sacrifices to roll back Communist gains. He said:

'The American people in my opinion are warriors. We're not quitters. But the people should be given the truth, and they're commencing to get it now through the newspapers."

Mr. McCormack discussed Laos, Cuba, Berlin, the Congo and relations with the allies. He spoke of General de Gaulle as 'concerned with his internal problems—a courageous man, but uppermost in his mind is France internally, and he's compelled to disregard the world situation."

While not saying so directly, Mr. McCormick implied that Prime Minister Macmillan is inclined to be an appeaser. He remarked that he was sorry to say that Macmillan is "following the pathways that Chamberlain took" when the latter "gave away to Hitler in the hope that Hitler would be satisfied." Mr. McCormack added:

"And Hitler showed that the road of appeasement is the road to war. We need firmness. It means one has got to be capable and have to take the calculated risk of action and firmness against the calculated risk of inaction."

This is an almost exact description of the art of "brinkmanship" for which the late John Foster Dulles was roundly denounced and ridiculed by many of the speakers of the Democratic Party. Questioned about this, Mr. McCormack said that he had been one of the "strongest admirers" of Mr. Dulles's foreign policy in the last two years before the latter's death.

The House Democratic majority leader also declared that defense expenditures should be stepped up because "that's a message to the Communists, to Khrushchev and them, that they understand." He added:

"If they understand that President Kennedy is doing his own homework, is making his own decisions, and when he makes decisions, he means it, that's the language they understand. That will do more to create the spirit, bring back the unity among our allies. It'll stop countries from being neutral."

What does it all mean? That Mr. Kennedy is going to try to lay down the law to our allies and tell them they must conform to American "leadership"? Does it mean he will threaten Khrushchev with war if necessary? One wonders how he is going to get the Communists out of Africa and keep them from more aggressions in Southeast Asia. Will it be by offering more money to the "neutrals"?

How, moreover, will Mr. Kennedy deal with Communist infiltration in the United States—by supporting James Roosevelt's efforts in the House to cut down the money used by the House Committee on Un-American Activities to uncover Communist operations in our own schools and colleges and to expose their efforts to undermine institutions here and throughout Latin America?

Mr. Kennedy already has many advisers. Some believe as Mr. McCormack does, while others want to hurry up and admit Red China into the United Nations and retreat on the Quemoy and Matsu question. Mr. Kennedy has the sympathy and best wishes of many citizens who want neither war nor appeasement but, instead, a policy of armed patience in the face of deliberate provocations to war.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

OVERSIGHT—The oddly-named House Committee on Legislative Oversight has now gone out of business. That was the group that exposed the television quiz scandals and ended Sherman Adams' tenure as assistant President by airing his relationship with Boston financier Bernard Goldfine.

In the context of the title, oversight meant just that—to determine what the legislators may have missed in setting up the federal regulatory agencies, such as the FCC, SEC, etc.

Now, James M. Landis has reported to President-elect Kennedy that a White House office of oversight should be created to coordinate the work of the regulatory commissions.

However, in this case, Landis' use of the word oversight, means oversee. Thus, the odd use of the word is apt to be perpetuated in the reorganization of the federal government.

HELP DISABLED — A private armaments company near Washington is successfully utilizing disabled persons from the National Orthopedic Hospital is reconditioning wartime guns which are being resold to sportsmen.

The men, many of whom have not been able to find employment elsewhere, are paid for their effort. But the real benefit to them comes from the experience and the realization that they can do productive work.

Members of Congress and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare are watching the experiment closely for a possible key to the rehabilitation of millions of disabled persons.

Guns may, after all, be the means to happiness for many handicapped persons.

Washington Full Of Rumors And Turmoil On Eve Of Inauguration

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — This town presents a picture of pleasant pandemonium. It's agog with rumor, afloat with reservationless Democrats, churning with rivalry to be closest to the throne. Hospitality hostesses are chasing beds to sleep Tennesseee Williams, John Steinbeck, and the other 300 intellectuals whom Kay Halle sold to JFK as special last-minute Inauguration guests . . . Society matrons are jealously wondering how Jane Wheeler, beautiful wife of the RCA representative, managed to snare the new President for his first dinner—only eight hours after he takes the oath. Other hostesses-with-the-mostes' are wondering why the K's don't want to dine in their new official home with its retinue of liveried servants, its beautiful state dining room, its well-stocked White House larder . . . The delightful, slightly harassed Jane is also wondering why she let herself in for such a dinner. It was to be only the Kennedy family. But what a family! After the guest list rolled up to 100 she found that she had to include Bobby Kennedy's brothers-in law, the Skakels, then came the problem of the Frank Sinatra retinue which Pat and Peter Lawford imported from Hollywood. Jane finally drew the line at Sammy Davis, even if Jack's sister Pat had bussed him and called him cute at his wedding to Mai Britt . . . Nat "King" Cole was invited instead.

Ambulance For Horses

The turmoil increases. It's pleasant turmoil. Nobody really sore at anyone. After all you don't elect a Democratic President every year, especially the youngest in history. A lot of worries, though.

Maj. Gen. C. K. Gailey worries about the horses. Never been so many horses in any previous parade. So there must be an ambulance for horses. Plenty of ambulances for people who fall out along the line of march, but for the first time in history there is also a horse ambulance . . . another first: first Catholic President in history, youngest elected president in History, first horse ambulance in history . . . still another precedent: the Russians, for the first time in Communist history, offered to send a special, top-ranking envoy to the Kennedy Inauguration. The offer was turned down . . . Other people are worried about beds. Not for horses. Horses will be bedded down at the Rosecroft Raceway and various Maryland stables. P with the deluge of Democrats pouring into a city which hasn't one empty bed in any hotel, maybe cots in schoolrooms are the answer . . . there's a lot of worry —about beds, about horses, about who'll go to which party. But nobody seems to worry much about Ambassador Menshikov's polite, insistent suggestion that he has important problems to discuss with the new administration.

Almost everyone is happy—but not everyone. Stenographers who gave up their time for JFK, volunteers who worked long hours every night mailing out Inaugural tickets were not unhappy when told they couldn't even get a free ticket. They knew the budget was tight, that Chairman Ed Foley had even persuaded the U. S. Treasury to forgive $75,000 of amusement tax money on Inaugural tickets . . . But they are unhappy when they look up at those TV stands, heated, insulated, built for the TV networks by the Inaugural Committee—free. Cost to the committee: close to $90,000 . . . and a volunteer worker can't even get a free parade ticket! . . . The networks have sold out all their commercial time, will make a killing . . . On the morning after his son was elected President, old Joe Kennedy vowed the new administration would do something about the highhanded policies of the TV networks. Instead, Leonard Reinsch, the Democrats' TV adviser, handed this bonanza to the networks. Reinsch is president of the Carolina Broadcasting Co. As Comrade Khrushchev would say: "Like putting a goat to mind the cabbage patch." . . . Khrushchev's ambassador, meanwhile, has been up to Adlai Stevenson, dined with Dean Rusk before anyone knew he was to be Secretary of State, has been quietly, insistently making it clear that there are mutual problems to discuss—soon.

Caviar Vs. Cabbage Soup

And the Inaugural parties! They range from Frank Sinatra's $100-a-ticket glamor festival to considerate Congressman Mike Kirwan's party for the Virgin Islanders and Nina Geiken's open house for the governor of Guam . . . Col. Waldron Leonard, who spread out the red carpet for the Congressional Medal of Honor winners, got 200 tickets (value $20,000) from Frank Sinatra for his glamor-gala . . . Then there's Bart Lytton, the California savings and loan mogul who spent $9,000 renovating his Los Angeles garden for one Democratic breakfast during the convention. He threw a big wingding for Kennedy-Johnson this time without the hidden microphones in his shirt by which he startles guests by talking to them 50 yards away . . . More modest is the party for Gov. Abe Ribicoff of Connecticut, New Secretary of HEW, thrown by the Connecticut Society and Bill Connole-, the Federal Power commissioner Ike fired because he was too tough on the oil-gas companies. Ike seems to love oil and gas men, dislikes consumers . . . I predict Connole will be reinstated by Kennedy.

So whirls the Inaugural merry-go-round . . . hosstesses jockeying to be there with the mostes' . . . Lobbyists maneuvering to make sure their campaign contributions are remembered. Democrats who have come a long way hilariously happy to see their man get in the White House . . . Joyous celebrations, mixed with petty, picayunish problems. America on parade—forgetting that the free world drifts . . . A few blocks away from the galas, Mrs. Robert Curry, husband unemployed, eats one meal a day so her children can eat enough beans and cabbage . . . A few miles away, Sparrow's Point steelworkers shiver in the winter winds, waiting, hoping for work. A few steps away at the Soviet Embassy, Ambassador Menshikov is also waiting — to discuss problems that won't wait —problems that begin to be acute 10 minutes after the youngest man in electoral history takes the oath as President of the United States.

Death Of An Authentic

By John Crosby

Dashiell Hammett, who died the other day, was that rare thing — a shaker of the earth, an authentic. "The Maltese Falcon" was one of the best books of its kind ever written. It struck the publishing world and the reading world — which is something entirely distinct from the literary world — like a thunderclap. Nothing has been the same since.

Realism. Vigor. Vitality. Callousness. Immortality. Amorality. Muscular. Hard-boiled. They were all the words applied to Hammett at various times. But authentic fits him better. He'd been a Pinkerton for eight years and when he created Sam Spade he knew what he was talking about. Sam Spade's toughness was deep as his own marrow. It came as a shock to the readers but not to the trade. After all Hammett had been there. When Spade made love to a girl and later rifled her purse in pursuit of evidence, it was perhaps not the particular chain of events customary to the average caper, but the mortality of his hero and, ot his private detective profession, was explicitly real.

Then came the imitators. Today the television air is full of imitation Sam Spades. As a matter of fact, they are imitations of an imitation: the "77 Sunset Strip" and the rest of them are now distilled by a whole batch of Hollywood hacks who have never been inside a police station. The stuff is turned out like salt water taffy now, rather sexy and violent stuff, but nevertheless as commercial as anything sold at Atlantic City. Only the corruption remains; the talent has long since fled. From Sam Spade, the terse, the laconic, the real, we went to Mike Hammer, who is something written on a men's room wall.

Hammett himself fell athwart the investigators and did a stretch in prison for contempt. Toward the end of his life he wrote not at all, though his earnings must always have been large. Few people have shaped popular fiction quit so deeply Much of what followed in the wake of Sam Spade must have disgusted him.

Has the pendulum of popular adventure fiction swung? Or is it swinging, somewhere else?

The other day I read 'The Nylon Pirates" by Nicholas Monsarrat, a very expert writer (as opposed to a bloody genius like Hammett). "The Nylon Pirates" is not anything that will win the Nobel Prize but it has been on the best seller list for some time and I find it significant. It's a story about a gang of con men and women who invade a luxury cruise with intent to shake down the passengers by sex, blackmail, gambling, even a little simple theft, if necessary. It's a movie script, really, but a good one. But what caught my eye was the locale. A luxury liner? Perhaps we're getting out of the bedrooms, out of the police stations, out of the back alleys. And high time. This is the closest thing that has come along to E. Phillips Oppenheim in this field in a long time. Oppenheim would have had more mystery and less sex.

But Oppenheim would have reveled in the luxury liner, the rich passengers, the gentility of the skullduggery, and the grooming of the women. This is salt water taffy too, but it's a different variety and, to me, at least, it's welcome.

Monsarrat, for instance, is an excellent story-teller and I think a pretty good reporter. I say I think because I don't really know very much about luxury cruises. I doubt that I'll ever be able to afford the time for one of these things and I'm sure I'll never have that much money. Monsarrat, who appears to know his way around ships, as Hammett knew his around police blotters, gives you a lot of entracing detail about how such a cruise is conducted.

The real trend in the popular adventure field seems to be the scenery. First here was "The Numbered Account" which was a rather tepid adventure mystery, but full of marvelous Swiss scenery. 'The Nylon Pirates" is loaded with scenery — the Caribbean, the Cape, South Africa.

The movies started this passion for exotic scenery. Now the popular authors are rolling in description. The scenery hasn't exactly taken the play away from sex but is competing with it and it seems to have diminished the interest in violence, thank God.

What To Eat After Gall Bladder Removal?

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The gall bladder is a sucker for infections and is a past master at forming stones. The combination creates an uncomfortable abdomen and it is little wonder that the victim wants the troublemaker removed as soon as possible.

The organ's main job is to concentrate and store the bile that is manufactured 24 hours a day by the liver. The ferment is stored because it is needed only when fats and oils are consumed. At such times the sac contracts and bile trickles into the intestine, where it aids in the digestion of this type of food.

But these functions are lost when the organ is diseased and clogged with stones. In this respect the surgeon eliminates a source of irritation by a useless structure. What replaces the gall bladder following surgery? The bile ducts of the liver take over by enlarging to store and process the digestant.

These ducts do an excellent job, considering the satisfactory results. Removal of any organ is followed by a period of adjustment to regain strength and energy. It is advisable to increase activity but avoid fatigue.

Those who followed a gall bladder diet before surgery are anxious to know when they can eat fried eggs, gravy, onions, cabbage, or a luscious cake. There is no reason why they cannot begin as soon as they feel up to par. After all, the greasy and fried foods, as well as rich pastries and gas forming vegetables, are omitted to spare the ailing gall bladder. Now that it is out, there is no need to do so.

But don't toss out the diet on the first day. Add one at a time because fats, greasy dishes, and fried foods are not the most digestible, and many persons with a normal gall bladder cannot tolerate them. You have the green light if they "set well" and cause no indigestion.

(Dr. Van Dellen will send leaflet on gall bladder if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request).

TOMORROW: Acne products.

DANCING AT 84

J. B. R. writes: I recently read where an 84-year-old man is still dancing and attributes his pep to eating two raw eggs every morning. Do you recommend raw eggs for this purpose?

REPLY

There is no reason to believe that raw eggs have a rejuvenating power. Most elderly persons attribute their longevity to something they do or don't do. The reasons are so numerous and conflicting they lose their meaning. Great-grandpa neglects to mention his family background, good humor, and a lifelong practice of moderation in all things.

STRICT FATHER

M. P. writes: The father of a 5½ year old boy won't permit the youngster to cry or whimper when hurt. Won't this child's personality be warped by having to bottle up his emotions in this way?

REPLY

Not unless the Spartan treatment creates undue anxiety, tension, fear, frustration, or other emotional reactions.

FINGER NODULE

G. E. C. writes: What is trigger finger?

REPLY

In this condition, a nodule develops in the tendon that interferes with the movement of the finger.

WHERE'S THE BRANDY?

P. F. writes: Is blackberry brandy good for diarrhea?

REPLY

Yes, but there are more effective remedies.

CATARACT IN AGED

E. L. writes: Is 95 too old to be operated on for cataract?

REPLY

No, provided the nonagenarian is in fairly good health.

To the limit of space questions pertinent to the prevention of disease will be answered Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed Telephone inquiries not accepted Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

When Edwin Corle was collecting material for an authoritative book on the Grand Canyon, he visited a remote settlement of Havasupai Indians, and being a thorough and systematic worker, he made a detailed study of Havasupai tribal rites and customs before he set out. Thus equipped, he was able to hail the first proud warrior he encountered with a hearty "Tchew Ko-Mew!"

The proud warrior, unfortunately, was too engrossed in listening to an Ella Fitzgerald recording on the radio to execute the elaborate Havasupai welcoming ceremony.

What he said, in fact, and very casually, too, was, "Hi, Butch."

An important literary critic has been hitting the bottle hard of late. His wife now keeps several just-published novels open on the floor so he'll have something to read when he falls on his face.

You're Telling Me

The U. S. submarine Sea Lion which was sunk twice during World War II off Manila, P. I., and then raised again, is about to be sent to the scrap heap. That craft was well-named — it had about as many lives as a real cat.

A Texas motorist has been granted separate hearings on his 114 parking tickets. They're to be held at the rate of one a week. By April 1963 he should be pretty tired of climbing those courthouse steps!

If the U.S. government ever gets around to minting that seven-and-a-half-cent piece, as was first suggested many years ago, Grandpappy Jenkins says he's got a ready-made name for it—dickle!

Gov. Barron Asks Passage Of Income Tax

By BILL BARRETT

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Gov. W. W. Barron put it squarely up to the West Virginia Legislature Wednesday. He asked for enactment of an income tax to finance the bulk of his program to pull the Mountain State's economy up by its bootstraps.

And the legislative leadership generally agreed this was the logical approach to gaining more revenue for the state's coffers. However, Republican leaders said the legislature should proceed with caution.

The income tax, based on a percentage of federal income tax payments, plus "small increases" in gross sales tax rates, would provide $17.5 million as outlined by the governor. The income tax would produce all but $2.5 million of that amount.

With this new money Barron proposed to begin construction of a North-South superhighway from Morgantown to Beckley, give a "modest" pay raise to both public school and college teachers, and set up a new state agency to concentrate on bringing new industry into the state.

Details of the income tax legislation were not spelled out by Barron. However, he referred to it as the recommendation of the State Tax Study Commission. Their proposal, made public less than a month ago, would be based on a percentage of an individual's federal income tax payments.

Fast Action Sought

The program was outlined by Barron in his initial appearance before the legislature. It came two days after his inauguration as West Virginia's 26th governor.

He asked "immediate enactment" of his proposals. Bills to implement the requests were expected to be introduced Thursday and Monday after a long weekend recess for the presidential inauguration.

"There should be no time wasted bickering over personalities," he said. "Our work transcends partisan politics...the complete cooperation of the minority should be earnestly enlisted."

House Speaker Julius Singleton and Senate President Howard Carson said they would work for the Barron program.

Senate Minority Leader John E. Carrigan, R-Marshall questioned "the wisdom of asking the legislature to pass" major new taxes at this time and suggested the state should wait to see what the federal government would do for the state. House Minority Leader George H. Seibert Jr., R-Ohio, said he wanted to know details of the income tax plan before commenting on it.

Barron asked for an additional $8.3 million for the State Road Commission. With this amount he said the commission could be put on a "pay-as-you-go" basis and free a similar amount of money for 50-50 matching funds to begin construction of the North-South highway.

By combining the State Industrial and Publicity Commission, the Economic Development Agency, and the publicity division of the Conservation Commission, and their budget requests, only $155,000 in new money would be needed to operate his proposed Department of Commerce at $500,000 a year.

Loans For Industry

He suggested $1.5 million be pumped into the public school system for teacher salary hikes and another $2 million into colleges and West Virginia University. To do any more, he said, would necessitate "a tremendous increase in tax revenue."

A new Industrial Development Authority which would provide loans to help new industry locate in the state, and patterned after a similar plan now operating in Pennsylvania, would take $3 million, he said.

Barron asked that the re-training program for unemployed workers, for which $400,000 is being spent this fiscal year, be stepped up by increasing the allocation to a half-million dollars next year.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—Jackie Gleason comes to Hollywood sooner than expected, to co-star with Paul Newman and Piper Laurie in "The Hustler" at 20th Century-Fox. That Jackie should wind up at 20th is a surprise considering the disagreement they had over Gleason's pet project "Gigot," which was called off.

Now, all is sunshine and roses about "The Hustler" which starts the end of February with Robert Rossen producing and directing. Jackie plays a character named Minnesota Fats, a gambler who takes over a pool hustler (Paul Newman).

20th Production chief Bob Goldstein tells me "Hustler" will be filmed partly in New York and partly in Hollywood.

Surprised to hear that Carol Lynley's bridegroom Mike Selsman has left the publicity department at 20th in New York and taken a similar post at Paramount. Even so, it's hard for me to believe that Carol has told 20th she wants to honeymoon for a year with Mike without making another Hollywood movie. But the studio apparently is taking her at her word, at least about "High Heels."

Director Robert Parrish has sent the script to 19-year-old Deborah Walley, the girl who is creating so much excitement around Columbia in her debut in "Gidget Goes Hawaiian." Two star roles in a row could make a star of Deborah.

Before Bobby Darin could get around to starring himself in his independent set-up, Paramount grabbed him to co-star with Stella Stevens in "Too Late Blues," a story about the music world but an out-and-out drama.

Bobby considers himelf lucky in getting this assignment because he will be under the guidance of John Cassavetes, fine actor and director who will be helpful to Sandra Dee's bridegroom. Cassavetes' movie, "Shadows," produced on a $40,000 shoestring, was the sensation of the Venice Film Festival. "Too Late Blues" also marks his debut on the Paramount lot, operating as a producer as well as director.

In Las Vegas: Jack Entratter, who had his heart set on going to Washington to attend the inaugural ceremonies and help Frank Sinatra in any way with the pre-inagural gala, won't be able to go. Jack was thrown off his horse and sprained his back so badly he had to cancel out—and, of course, his devoted Dorothy isn't going, either. Luckily, X-rays revealed no broken bones but my guess is Jack won't be riding this nag, given him by Vic Damone, in the future.

Despite his disappointment at missing the inagural excitement, Jack gave permission to Joey Bishop (headlining the show at the Sands with Frankie Avalon) to plane to Washington to join Sinatra and appear in the show. Also, Al Freeman, public relations man for the Sands, went along to help Frankie and represent Jack.

The dress Keely Smith is wearing to the inaugural ball sounds like she'll be a dream walking in the gorgeous gown Berman of Hollywood made for her. Louis Prima said she has never worn such a spectacularly beautiful dress. Keely described it as "white, with bugle beads, and a long flowing chiffon skirt with white, and light green shaded to dark emerald ostrich feathers."

Louis and Keely are entertaining in Washington with the Frank Sinatra group. I caught their really excellent act at the Desert Inn. Wilbur Clark let them off their last week so that they could go to Washington.

With us at the Desert Inn was Andy Williams, who follows Louis and Keely into this nitery. He brought Claudine Longet, the cutest little French girl who is the head dancer at the Tropicana, and said he's going to borrow her when he and his three brothers put on their spectacular. Andy and Claudine held hands and seem genuinely fond of each other. But the night before, Andy and Hope Lange were a twosome at the Paul Anka opening.

Andy told me he was so nervous following two such performers as Keely and Louis that Jack Benny gave him a joke and told him if he got laughs from it, Andy could send him $25.

Two W. Va. Men Found Suffocated

LOGAN, W. Va. (UPI) — The bodies of two unemployed middle-aged men were found Wednesday in a room they shared in an apartment house here.

Authorities said they suffocated as a result of an unvented water heater consuming oxygen in the room. The victims were identified as Harry McDonald and Lewis Thompson.

A friend of Thompson found the bodies when he went to the room, rented by Thompson, to visit him.

Harold E. Neely Has Heart Attack

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)— Harold E. Neely of Hinton, the unsuccessful Republican nominee for governor in the Nov. 8 election, is making "a very nice response" to treatment for a heart condition, doctors say.

Neely, 42, had not been feeling well since Sunday and was admitted to Charleston Memorial Hospital Monday. He had attended the inauguration of Gov. W. W. Barron earlier that day.

Neely served as insurance commissioner and as commissioner of public institutions under former Gov. Cecil H. Underwood.

Three Old Bills Revived In W. Va. Legislature

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)— The West Virginia Legislature Wednesday received three bills that have been killed repeatedly in past sessions, including one that would levy a severance tax on natural resources.

Dels. Roy Lee Harmon, D-Raleigh, and Marshall West, D-Wyoming, proposed to levy a tax of 20 cents a ton on coal, 40 cents a barrel on oil and 2 cents per thousand cubic feet on natural gas production.

Harmon and West estimated that their bill would provide $20 million in new revenue.

Another bill introduced again this year would subject to the gross sales tax such professional people as doctors, lawyers and engineers.

The third bill would repeal the soft drink tax, a measure that provides about $3.5 million annually, at the rate of a penny a bottle, for support of the Medical School at West Virginia University.

Extension of the gross sales tax to professions would raise an estimated $350,000 a year, based on a rate of 1 per cent of income over $5,000. The bill was sponsored by Dels. D. P. Given, D-Webster, and Cecil Mitchell, D-Mingo.

Del. Callie Tsapis, D-Hancock, submitted a revised bill calling for the reapportionment of membership in the House of Delegates based on the 1960 census. This one would keep the total number of delegates at 100, but would give Hancock and Wood Counties one additional delegate each and Kanawha County two more.

Under this measure, McDowell County would lose two delegates and Fayette and Logan one each.

Del. Dan Wells, D-Mercer, submitted a bill to revise and clarify laws pertaining to the amounts of fees justices of the peace and constables may charge in civil cases.

W. Va. Legislature Heads To Push Gov. Barron's State Income Tax Plan

By CARLO J. SALZANO

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)— Leaders of the West Virginia Legislature indicated Wednesday they would do all they could to push through Gov. W. W. Barron's state income tax proposal, however, distasteful the idea is.

As Senate President Howard Carson, D-Fayette, put it:

"It would be nice if it were otherwise, but it is obvious we are going to have to increase revenue in order to increase services. And the income tax seems to be the source by which the majority of the people are in favor."

There is certain to be some loud, possibly powerful, opposition to an income tax, and Barron obviously anticipated this in his legislative address. "There will be differences," he said, "but let us develop patience and understanding as we work."

House Speaker Julius Singleton, D-Monongalia, described Barron's revenue request of $17.5 million as "realistic" and praised the governor for his "sincerity," while sidestepping a direct observation on the income tax.

Floor Leader Cautious

Both Carson and Singleton said they would work for the Barron program.

House Majority Leader W. T. Brotherton, D-Kanawha, was not so quick to go all-out for the Barron plan, but emphasized that "the governor has made a conscientious effort to solve many of the state's pressing problems." Brotherton added, "In order to raise $17.5 million, it will be necessary not only to consider the income tax but all other possible revenue sources."

Senate Majority Leader William Moreland, D-Monongalia, observed, "We have to have money and every effort should be made to determine whether the income tax should be invaded by the state without creating an undue burden on the employe and the employer."

Senate Judiciary Chairman Arch Riley, D-Ohio, said Barron "showed us the method to finance the cure" to our problems and "I personally will do everything I can" to get his proposals enacted.

Senate Finance Chairman Hans McCourt, D-Webster, was probably the most enthusiastic about the Barron plan. "I'm highly in favor of the governor's requests," he said. "He offered a good program and I think we can get it through."

There appeared to be some misgivings on the part of House Finance Chairman Ivor Boiarsky, D-Kanawha. "If we have to raise money, the income tax is one way to do it," he commented.

Would Delay Action

Republicans, as expected, were far from enthusiastic. One veteran senator, Ted Bowers, R-Wetzel, said flatly, "I think there are other better methods of raising revenues. I don't think the administration and the State Tax Study Commission gave sufficient consideration to other tax-raising methods."

Senate Minority Leader John E. Carrigan, R-Marshall, questioned "the wisdom of asking the legislature to pass $17.5 million of additional tax burdens on the citizens of the state at this time without careful study as to what, if anything, the federal government will do to assist the unemployed of West Virginia."

House Minority Leader George Seibert, R-Ohio, paid tribute to Barron for providing "a complete analysis" of the state's problems, for offering "concrete proposals and a method of financing them," and for the "determined manner" in which he made his presentation. But Seibert said he wanted to know the details of the income tax plan before commenting on it specifically.

Sen. Joseph Handlan, R-Wood, like Bowers, said he is against an income tax. "The federal government rather substantially occupies the field of income taxes," he said. Handlan did, however, endorse Barron's idea of a "pay-as-you-go" road program as "realistic."

Religious Survey Completed At PSC

Approximately 641 of the 655 students enrolled indicated a religious affiliation.

Barton UFO To Nominate

BARTON—The United Fund Organization met a recent evening with Forrest Mowbray, president presiding. Sixteen members were present.

The meeting opened with prayer by the group. James Mowbray, treasurer, gave his report. Joseph Shuhart, secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting. Reports were heard from board members.

Mr. Mowbray reported that several boxes of clothing have been donated to the organization to be given out where needed. He picked a nominating committee of three. They are Mrs. Verda L. Michael, Mrs. Francis Mowbray, and Mrs. David Clark.

The next meeting will be held February 21 at 7:30 p. m. The public is invited to attend this meeting. Officers and board members will be elected at this meeting.

Over-Crowding Depletes Deer Herds, Survey Shows

ANNAPOLIS, Well-fed deer can and do die because of overcrowding, even though they have sufficient food, reports an article by Drs. John J. Christian, Vagn Flyger and David E. Davis in the latest issue of Chesapeake Science. Furthermore, according to the same report, this type of mortality has occurred in a herd of Maryland deer.

These facts are the result of a six-year study of sika deer on James Island, Dorchester County, supported jointly by the Naval Medical Research Institute, the National Heart Institute, the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission and the Maryland Department of Research and Education.

It has been found that from an introduction of four to five Japanese sika deer on the island in 1916, the herd grew to number from 280 to 300 deer in 1957; a density of one deer per acre. After reaching this point a mass mortality took place in the winter of 1958 resulting in a loss of 60 per cent of the herd. Examinations of dead and dying deer in the field, plus laboratory autopsies, indicated that they were in a good nutritional condition up to the time of death, were not poisoned and were not diseased. It was shown that the high concentration of deer produced stress on important glandular functions. Crowding produced over-stimulation leading to serious damage to the adrenal gland. In turn, other normal body processes were impaired, resulting in death to the deer. Following reduction of the herd through this massive die-off, the remainder of the deer assumed normal existence but in greatly reduced numbers.

According to Dr. L. Eugene Cronin, director of the Maryland Department of Research and Education, the results of this and other studies on deer being conducted in his department are being turned over to the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission to help in designing a good management and deer harvest plan in Maryland.

Council Favors Fluoridation At Piedmont

PIEDMONT—The Town Council unanimously went on record for fluoridation of drinking water and to proceed with the project when funds are available.

City fathers took this action following talks by Dr. Lawrence Fanti, local dentist; Dr. James H. Wolverton Jr., William Devens, Jack Mullen, Westernport, attorney and James McHenry.

Dr. Fanti stated that where it has been used, it was 65 per cent effective and does not injure anyone when it is used in water by 1 part per million.

Dr. Fanti, also said the some persons objecting to it opposed chlorination, pasteurization, and immunization.

Dr. Wolverton stated 78 per cent of the citizens of the state drink fluoridated water and that West Virginia in its use was higher than most states.

Devens stated the cost would be about 81 cents per day which would be about $295.65 per year. The cost of providing the equipment would be about $1,000. The machine would cost $750; a tester $130 and the remainder for installation charges.

Mayor Rodney Baker reported to the Council that two fire plugs on Orchard Street do not provide enough water in case of fire as there is only a four-inch line there.

Running a six-inch line from Second and Third to Orchard would solve the problem, council agreed.

The new fire siren has arrived. It was suggested that a concrete block platform be built in the rear of the fire house of Tri-Towns Fire Company to place it on. The matter will be taken up with the fire company.

Joseph Maybury, town clerk, reported that 394 garbage cards for this quarter had been sold which is short by 125 cards usually sold.

No garbage will be picked up this week unless a card has been purchased and prominently displayed so men collecting garbage can see it.

Prayers To Give President-Elect Divine Guidance Asked by Legion

On the eve of the inauguration of President John F. Kennedy, the American Legion has called its network of 17,000 local posts to spur nationwide prayers asking God to give the new president "the strength, wisdom and guidance necessary to carry out his duties."

Russell R. McRobie, Commander of Kelly Mansfield Post #52, U. S. American Legion at Piedmont, West Virginia stated that this measure has been urged by the Legion's National Executive Committee.

Commander McRobie said a letter urging participation had been sent to all clergymen in this area, with the hope that each would include suitable prayers in their services this week-end.

"Although the American Legion is a completely non-sectarian organization", Commander McRobie said, "the organization was founded on broad religious principles and believes that a deep and abiding faith in God is basic to American life."

Charleston Tosses In Towel As AA Team This Year

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—Charleston, the smallest city in triple A baseball, has decided to sit out the 1961 American Association season because of money troubles.

The Senators, operated as a community-owned club last season, finished with in the standings and last in home attendance —95,000 as compared with 163,000 in the pennant-winning year of 1958. Last year's operating loss ran more than $80,000.

Charleston's withdrawal Tuesday night saved the American Associaton the problem of searching for an eighth club. Only six remain for 1961—Omaha, Denver, Louisville, Houston, Dallas and Indianapolis. Houston leaves next year for the National League.

Charleston (pop. 85,796) is the second community-owned Triple-A club to throw in the towel because of financial woes. Sacramento of the Pacific Coast League struck out earlier. The PCL preserved its eight-team status by taking in Honolulu.

Low Scoring Predicted In Crosby Open

Venturi Defends $50,000 Crown

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Warm, sunny weather on this Monterey Peninsula Wednesday brought predictions of low scoring in the $50,000 Bing Crosby Golf Tournament when Ken Venturi begins defense of his title Thursday.

Storms usually increase the difficulties in this 72-hole event played over three courses, but the weatherman says it will be clear at least through Saturday.

In this exacting golf test, long-shots seldom come through as the winner so the pre-tourney favorites are such stars as Venturi, Arnold Palmer, Art Wall and Jay Hebert. All except Palmer have won here and Arnold, golfer-of-the-year 1960, arrives after winning the past week's tournament at San Diego.

Palmer fired a warm-up 71, one under par, Tuesday on the seaside Cypress Point course.

In the pro-amateur division, Palmer pairs with Dick Groat, captain of the Pittsburgh Pirate baseball club, as the amateur field includes outstanding figures of entertainment, sports and business.

The Crosby actually combines two tournaments in one—the pro-amateurs and individual pro. In the former, the amateur's handicap can help the team. Groat gets 9 strokes, Dark 6, and Ward 4.

The field of 300 plays each of the three courses—Pebble Beach, Cypress Point and Monterey Peninsula with 50 teams touring each course the first three days. Sunday's televised final will be over Pebble Beach.

Two Golf Balls Hit In Mid-Air

GRAVESEND, England (AP)—Two golf balls, hit from different tees, collided in the air—and Gravesend golfers were wondering Wednesday if it's a world record.

Harold Drewett drove from the first tee just as Sid Basson was driving from the 18th.

Colt Is Destroyed; Suffered Concussion

MIAMI (AP)—Roving Minstrel, a leading candidate for Hialeah's $100,000 Flamingo Stakes, was destroyed by a veterinarian Wednesday to end the pain of a brain concussion.

The bay colt suffered the concussion Tuesday, when he fell in the walking ring by his barn. His hind legs buckled when he reared and he toppled backward, his head striking the ground.

ACC Scoring Race Close

Five Players Vie For Top Average

GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP)—A red-hot five-man basketball scoring race is brewing in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

A 33-point outburst against Clemson Monday night shot Len Chappell of Wake Forest into the lead. The 6-8, 240-pound Deacon junior is averaging 23.5 points. In his last four games he's scored 113 points.

Art Heyman of Duke, idle while Chappell was playing Monday, slipped to second place with a 23.1 average.

Others in the top five through Monday games:

York Larese, North Carolina, 22.5; Doug Moe, North Carolina, 21.2; Billy Packer, Wake Forest, 20.3. The spread from first to fifth place is only 3.2 points.

ACC Service Bureau records show Duke's Carroll Youngkin as the top field goal shooter at 60.7 per cent with Ken Rohloff of N.C. State next at 57.7.

The free throw leader is Bob McDonald of Maryland, who has an 89.4 record against Packer's 86.7 through last Saturday's games.

Moe leads rebounders with a 14.7 average.

W. Va. Frosh Lose To Pitt

29-Game Streak Snapped, 87-79

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pitt freshmen Brian Generalovich, Calvin Sheffield, and Dave Sauer comoined in the second half Wednesday night to lead the Panther Yearlings to an 87-79 victory over West Virginia. It broke a Mountaineer Frosh win streak of 29 games.

The Mountaineers started off as if to make the game a runaway and held a 42-35 lead at the intermission. At one stage of the first half they ran up a 15-point lead on the Panthers.

Pittsburgh took the lead with eight minutes left at 64-62. The Panthers then remained three to four points in front down to the final whistle. With only seconds remaining they were in front by 10 points.

Generalovich pumped in 25 points, Sheffield 21 and Sauer 17. Mike Barger was high for West Virginia with 19 while Tom Lowry contributed 18. Bill Maphis, a 6-5 West Virginia All State star for two consecutive years, had 16 points.

The Mountaineer Frosh had a 7-0 record prior to Wednesday night's game. They won 16 consecutive games last season and had not been beaten since 1959, when they bowed 77-70 to Ohio University's freshmen.

Pitt is 5-1 for the season.

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Navy's undefeated swimmers edged Maryland 52-43 Wednesday in a hard-fought meet undecided until the final relay event.

Eight records fell — five pool marks, two Maryland records and one Atlantic Coast Conference standard.

The Middies had three double winners — Gay Hopkins in the 220-yard and 440-yard freestyles, Curt Norfleet in the 50-yard and 100-yard freestyles and Don Griffin in the 200-yard medley and 200-yard breaststroke.

Dave Fleming and Tom Wingate gave the best performances of their careers for Maryland. Fleming set a Maryland record of 2 minutes, 16.4 seconds in the 200-yard butterfly, and Wingate won the 200-yard backstroke in 2:18.7.

It was the fourth triumph for Navy, Maryland, defending Atlantic Coast Conference champion, is now 6-2. It was the first loss for the Terps in their home pool since Navy defeated them in 1959.

Maryland swam without the services of its star performer, Ray Ostrander, who is suffering from a shoulder injury.

New Pittsburgh Team Pulls Out Of Cage League

Sharman Dispute Cited As Reason

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh pulled out of the Natonal Basketball Association Wednesday after a stay of less than 24 hours.

In announcing the club's withdrawal, franchise owner John Harris said he was sure he could "find some other way to invest a quarter of a million dollars in something new wtihout so many headaches."

The NBA just Tuesday night had announced that it would expand from 8 to 10 teams in the 1961-62 season with new clubs in Chicago and Pittsburgh. Harris had been awarded the Pittsburgh franchise.

The ice show impressario said he had decided to go into basketball only because he thought he had hired Bill Sharman as his coach. Sharman is a veteran backcourt star of the league's Boston Celtics.

However, both Sharman and Celtic owner Walter Brown denied Harris' announcement that Sharman would be the Pittsburgh coach.

"I either jumped the gun or misunderstood Walter when I made the announcement," Harris said. "This mix-up on the Sharman deal convinces me that I know nothing about basketball or the NBA. That's why I'm pulling out."

Harris, who heads the Pittsburgh ice hockey club which returns to the American Hockey League next season, said he sent a telegram to NBA President Maurice Podoloff, informing him of Pittsburgh's withdrawal.

When informed in New York of Harris' action, Podoloff said he thought it was all the result of a misunderstanding.

"I think that after a cooling off period, we still may be able to reach an agreement between Mr. Harris and Mr. Brown," Podoloff said.

Van Brocklin To Coach New Minnesota Vikings Team

Colorful Star Of NFL Signs 3-Year Pact

Closes Out Career Of 12 Years As A Player In Circuit

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP)—Norm Van Brocklin, the colorful Dutchman who carried the Philadelphia Eagles to the National Football League championship, Wednesday was named head coach of the new Minnesota Vikings.

Van Brocklin's appointment under a three-year contract ended a four-month quest by the Vikings for an established pro football figure to direct them in their inaugural year in the NFL.

He steps into the coaching ranks three days after his valedictory as a player. Appearing in the East - West NFL All-Star game Sunday the 34-year-old quarterback hurled three touchdown passes.

Salary Undisclosed

Salary terms were not revealed.

Van Brocklin becomes one of the youngest head coaches in the NFL. Behind him is a 12-year career of professional stardom that was climaxed in 1960 with the Eagles' championship.

"Among Norm's greatest qualities as a player," Vikings General Manager Bert Rose said, "is his demonstrated ability of leadership. As a new team in a tough league the Vikings will require the maximum degree of leadership and direction of a squad that will be youthful in its makeup."

Van Brocklin called his new undertaking "a tremendous challenge but also a tremendous opportunity."

Look At Rosters

One of his first chores, he said, would be to take a hard look at the NFL rosters to help in the selection of 36 players who will be made available to the Vikings as their bedrock talent for the 1961 season.

Van Brocklin's appointment came less than two weeks after he severed connections with the Eagles, irritated at not being offered the head coaching job to succeed the retiring Buck Shaw.

The Dutchman contends he was promised the Eagles' No. 1 job three years ago when he joined the club. He refused an offer earlier this month to be playing assistant coach with the Eagles.

Deer Program Planned Here

Rocket Bomb To Be Fired Over Orchards

The State Game and Inland Fish Commision will attempt an experiment in Allegany County in an attempt to devise a method for driving deer from orchard areas.

Regional Game Warden Joseph A. Minke said here that George Walters, a member of the commission, and George Shields, chief game warden for the group, will join with Minke in tests of a sky rocket device which propels a bomb into the air to explode over the orchards in the hopes it will scare the deer away.

Orchardists have complained that deer are causing considerable damage to their fruit trees and several groups have called for an antlerless deer season in an effort to combat the menace.

Mr. Minke said the deer situation was discussed at a meeting of the Western Maryland Wildlife Federation Tuesday night. The group comprises 34 clubs in Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties.

The federation is opposed to an antlerless season, but Minke explained that the State Game and Inland Fish Commission is considering some measures which might help fight the problem.

Dr. Van Flyger of the State Department of Research and Education, who has been conducting a deer survey in Western Maryland, outlined his efforts at Tuesday's meeting.

Martinsburg Trips Keyser For 9th Win In Row 60-52

Rally In Last Period Decides

MARTINSBURG, W. Va.—Martinsburg High's Bulldogs continued to roll along the unbeaten trail here last night, rallying in the final period to defeat Keyser High's Golden Tornado, 60-52, for their ninth consecutive victory.

The Bulldogs trailed at halftime, 29-28, and at the end of the third period, 43-38, to a fighting Keyser team which was trying to snap a three-game losing streak.

Coach George Whitacre's tossers began to hit in the final quarter with one of their patented rallies and pulled within one point at 48-47 with three minutes to go.

At this point after Keyser lost Don Harman on personal fouls, Martinsburg's Doug Lamp sank a field goal to put the Bulldogs ahead 49-48 and the home quint quickly stormed ahead to ice the verdict.

Tim Bartock topped the Martinsburg scorers with 22 points while John Karns chipped in with 13 for the winners. High man for Keyser, which now has lost four in a row and five of its last six games, was Francis Sidley with 17 points. Harman collected 14 in a losing cause before exiting on personals. Double Bout Is Suggested

Fullmer, Robinson Don't Want Draw

WEST JORDAN, Utah (AP)—Gene Fullmer says he has figured out how to get around Nevada's boxing laws, if Sugar Ray Robinson is sincere in wanting to avoid another draw.

Fullmer suggested Wednesday, mainly for the record, that if the Feb. 25 bout in Las Vegas is a draw, the boxers rest 30 minutes and fight another 15 rounds.

Robinson fought the NBA middleweight champion to a draw in Los Angeles Dec. 3. He asked Nevada officials to provide for a sudden-death round should the Las Vegas bout end the same way.

Nevada Athletic Commissioner Jim Deskin told Robinson that state law prohibits a fight of more than 15 rounds.

Fullmer's manager, Marv Jenson, says the NBA titlist is sincere about this one being a fight to the finish. And the Fullmer-Jenson camp reported new reasons for strengthening Gene's hold on the 48-state title.

Jenson said he received a letter from German promoter Fritz Gretzschel offering Fullmer a tax-free $100,000 purse to meet European Middleweight King Gustav Scholz somewhere in Germany, probably next May.

Maryland Edges Navy, 63-62, On Greenspan's Foul

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The University of Maryland won a squeaker Wednesday night, beating Navy, 63-62, with sophomore Jerry Greenspan scoring seven of Maryland's last nine points.

Greenspan's foul shot in the last 10 seconds decided the game.

The Middies jumped off to an early lead in the first half, 14-12, and managed to stay ahead at the end of the period, 27-29. Navy held the ball for the first three minutes of the second half to keep their lead but lost it to Maryland sophomore Bob Eicher who made a three point play.

Navy's Dave Tremaine, high man for the game with 25 points, was allowed to make the game's final basket uncontested.

Bruce Kelleher with 17 points topped Maryland, while Bob McDonald grabbed 14 rebounds for the Terrapins.

Thorn Is Held To Eight Points

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — West Virginia overcame a shaky start against Pitt's zone defense Wednesday night and pulled away in the second half for a 73-68 victory over the Panthers, who held sophomore sensation Rod Thorn to eight points.

Thorn, who had been averaging 21.3 points per game before the Wednesday night contest, was guarded by Pitt's Ben Jinks and Tom Maloney. He only made 10 attempts from the floor, hitting on four baskets and missing two foul shots.

Pitt battled the Mountaineers on even terms through the first half. The score was tied three times at 9-9, 12-12 and 33-33 when Jim McCormick found the range for West Virginia for a 35-33 lead seconds before the half ended.

Shortly after the second half opened Pitt forced another tie at 37-37 but this was the last time the score was knotted. West Virginia's Dave Shuck drove on the basket with about 18 minutes left to put his team ahead 40-37 on a three-pointer, and the Mounties were never headed.

The closest Pitt came was at 64-62 with about three minutes to go when Dick Falensky hit on a jump shot.

Rails Spotlight Market Advance; B&O Gains 6⅛

NEW YORK (UPI) — The railroad shares scored their biggest gain on average in 17 months to spearhead a general advance on the New York Stock Exchange Wednesday.

The Baltimore & Ohio, merger-bound with the C&O, rolled up a whopping 6⅛ points to close at 48⅛ while the Chessie gained 1⅜ to 67⅜.

The Dow-Jones railroad average, sprinkled with gains of a point or more, pushed ahead 3.75 to 144.89 for its widest gain since Aug. 20, 1959 when that indicator rose 4.73. Only two carriers listed in the average, Great Northern and New Haven, failed to rise.

The biggest gains Wednesday, other than the rails, were scored by electronics, oils, food shares, aircrafts and very many of the popular special situation stocks.

Industrial stocks as measured by Dow-Jones, scored a hefty 5.14 gain to 634.10 and closed near its high accompanied by rising volume and a lagging ticker. Utilities added 0.28 to 102.37.

Volume, mounting as prices rose sharply in the morning and again at the bell, came to 4,390,000 shares against 3,830,000 the day before.

Card Of Thanks

I take this means of extending my sincere thanks and appreciation to all my friends and neighbors who were so kind during my bereavement, the death of my husband, John J. Williams. I wish to thank Father De Paul for the Graveside Services, those who sent floral tributes, Spritual Bouquets, those who donated the use of their cars and all others who in any manner assisted me, from Cumberland, Frostburg and Somerset, Pa.

MRS. CLARA SCHAAF WILLIAMS

In Memoriam

In memory of John J. Villa
Each time I pass a counter
Where cards are on display,
I wish that I could buy one
For you on Fathers Day.

But now I canot reach you,
Except in memory . . .
Wherein again I travel
The years that used to be.

And so . . . for all the beauty
We shared along the way
How much I'll be remembering
As I travel on each day.

Sadly missed.
By Wife
and Daughter

In memory of our dear husband and father WILSON WAGNER who passed away seventeen years ago today, January 19, 1944.

He had a nature you could not help loving,
And a heart that was purer than gold.
And to those who knew and loved him
His memory will never grow cold.
Sadly missed by wife and children.
GRACE WAGNER

REALIZING that a sixty dollar a month apartment costs you two dollars every day it is unrented doesn't it seem foolish not to be running a For Rent ad at the monthly rate that only runs forty-five cents a day and would probably rent the apartment.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Twelve years of marriage ended tonight. The other woman won.

I'm not feeling sorry for myself or making excuses. Apparently I didn't have what it takes to keep my husband home nights. For two years I pretended not to see what was going on right under my nose. I've failed as a wife but I don't want to fail as a mother. Please tell me how I explain to a 10-year-old boy and a seven-year-old girl that their Daddy has taken his clothes and moved out of the house?

These past two years the children haven't seen much of their Dad evenings or weekends. He took his summer vacation alone. I always told them he had to work hard for us. They believed me. Now what do I say?

—MRS. W.

DEAR MRS. W.: It's your husband's responsibility to tell the children why he moved out of the house. He left—you didn't.

Ask him if he can spare an hour next Sunday afternoon to explain to his children why he is living elsewhere. If he doesn't like the idea you have no alternative but to tell them in your own way (without bitterness) that their father has decided he would be happier if he lived elsewhere. Don't mention another woman. Spare them this.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife's sister thinks she can paint. We are having a terrible problem over her Christmas gift.

This sister-in-law did an oil painting of my wife. If you ask me it's an insult, not a portrait.

My wife says it's impressionistic but I don't think this is any excuse. The features are exaggerated and out of proportion and it's downright grotesque. To make matters worse my sister-in-law had it framed and surprised us by hanging it on our living room wall—right over the fireplace. She put a big hole in the wall so we can't remove the picture unless we call the plasterers in.

My wife isn't very crazy about the picture but she says we have to learn to live with it or we'll hurt her sister's feelings. What is your verdict?—EYE SORE

DEAR EYE SORE: Keep the picture up for a few months — then call in the plasterers. Replace the portrait with one of your own choice and hang the gift in a less conspicuous place for another few months—before retiring it to the attic.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We have a telephone with an extension cord upstairs. When the telephone company installed these phones they put a plate on each phone which bears the telephone number.

My dear wife took a screw driver and pried off the number plates. Don't ask me why because she doesn't need a reason to do anything.

I say the telephones belong to the phone company and she has no right to deface them. Can they prosecute her for destroying their property?—H. E.

DEAR H. E.: Your wife has not destroyed the telephones. She simply removed the number plate.

I checked with Illinois Bell and was told that the company has no objections to this practice. Some people do not wish their phone number known so they remove it from sight.

To learn the booby-traps of teen-age drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teen-age Drinking," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Opening lead: King of ♣

Blocking out an adverse suit is usually done by holding up the controling card of that suit. But there is a rarer way of accomplishing this end that is much more picturesque. It involves playing a high card at once and preventing a duck by declarer. It is featured in today's offering.

South chose to open with one spade. Though he had the high card requirements for a standard opening no trump bid, he refrained from making such call because of the worthless doubleton in diamonds. West had a natural overcall of two clubs and North's free bid of two diamonds is borderline. The wealth of intermediate cards makes such action justifiable. When South rebid two no trump, North properly carried on to three.

West opened the king of clubs and South held up. The second lead of the queen of clubs was also ducked and West proceeded to clear the suit. Declarer then led a low diamond intending to finesse the ten of diamonds into the innocuous East hand. Had West relaxed long enough to play low, declarer would have had nine running tricks, with the king o. diamonds "onside."

But West shrewdly played the king of diamonds second hand and declarer was stymied. Permitted to hold the trick, West would run the setting tricks in clubs, so declarer had no choice but to win the trick with dummy's ace. The queen of hearts was led and, when East failed to cover, South decided that the heart finesse would not succeed and that everything hinged on bringing in the diamond suit. So he went up with his ace of hearts and played his last diamond. West followed with the five, and the ten was played from dummy in the hope that West had started with the K-J-5.

When East produced the jack of diamonds a heart return enabled West to run enough clubs to register a two trick set.

Subtle compliments are best expressed in the language of flowers. Here are the symbols.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Flowers Bespeak Subtle Compliments

Every variety of flower bespeaks some sentiment of the sender — gratefulness, admiration, thoughtfulness and many more. When chosen with special care, flowers become the most gracious of gestures.

A man who goes out of his way to find out what you are wearing on a given occasion and orders a corsage that complements your dress does more than tender you a posy — his heart is in his act.

So with every floral offering, a little thought makes of it a tribute. If when you send cut flowers to a hostess you choose a color scheme that blends with the background of her living room, your gift will be thrice welcome.

You show great consideration in ordering less aromatic varieties for a sick friend or in having a bouquet destined for a hospital arranged in a container so as to save the time of busy nurses. For convalescense, a flowering plant is a long-term joy.

An altogether charming birthday greeting is in the birth flower of the month — sweet peas in April, lily of the valley in May, roses in June. Your florist can furnish you with the complete twelve-month list and he will also be happy to tie the box in birthstone colors — May's emerald, June's moonstone or July's ruby.

When you are the recipient of so much attention, you will, of course, desire to show your appreciation by more than a mere "thank you." The subtle way to do so is to wear or arrange your posies with the utmost imagination. Wear a corsage with the flower heads turned up and in a spot that best accents your costume. Group cut flowers with artistic care in your finest vase and place them in the most dramatic spot in the room.

Whether giver or recipient, remember that it does not take a host of blooms to express yourself.

W. Va. To Help Rehabilitation Of Mentally Ill

Experimental Plan Is Initiated

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Initiation of an experimental program to help rehabilitate patients discharged from mental hospitals was announced Wednesday by State Mental Health Director R. P. Hagerman.

Hagerman said the purpose of the pilot after - care project is to demonstrate the value of field workers in assisting patients leaving West Virginia's mental hospitals to re-establish themselves in community life.

The study will be conducted through June 30 in the Charleston and Clarksburg areas.

The director said that besides working with the former patient, his family and the community, field workers will help locate boarding and foster homes whenever necessary.

"The fact that the patient has no home available is frequently the one factor which prevents his return to the community," Hagerman said.

Ike Proclaims C&O Canal Land U. S. Monument

Seneca-Cumberland Area Is Included

WASHINGTON (AP)—The historic old Chesapeake & Ohio Canal Wednesday became a national monument. President Eisenhower issued a proclamation setting aside about 4,800 acres extending from Cumberland, Md., to near Seneca, Md.

The lands involved were deeded to the United States in 1938 by the receivers of the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal Co. They have been administered by the National Park Service.

The proclamation warned "all unauthorized persons not to appropriate, injure, destroy, deface or remove any feature of this monument, and not to locate or settle upon any of the lands reserved for this proclamation."

Eisenhower's action was a victory for persons who have been seeking to maintain the old canal area in its present rugged state.

Justice William O. Douglas of the Supreme Court is among the admirers of its scenic beauty. Several years ago he headed a group which walked the length of the old canal.

The President's action seemingly ruled out any use of the land for a highway, as has been advocated by some.

Sen. J. Glenn Beall, R-Md., who has offered bills several times to set up a C&O national park, could not be reached immediately for comment.

An aide, however, said the senator undoubtedly would pursue efforts to have Congress pass legislation to establish a C&O Canal National Park.

The aide said the senator does not know the exact language of the proclamation but believes the senator would want the legislation passed in addition to the President's action. Such legislation, the aide said, would provide for additional benefits such as the exchange of lands, building access roads and other provisions to develop the land for park and recreation.

Mathias Hails Ike's Action On C&O Canal

Commenting on the President's action yesterday, Rep. Charles McC. Mathias Jr., R-Md. 6th., said the proclamation "will open the way for tourist attractions and help to bring new job opportunities for the people of Western Maryland."

He said the action "is the result of the kind of teamwork we should encourage for the future."

"It is gratifying to me," said Rep. Mathias, "that the President has recognized the need for action and issued his proclamation, including all the necessary safeguards for the development of the Potomac Valley."

Mr. Mathias immediately confirmed an appointment with Conrad Wirth, director of the National Park Service, to discuss preparation of supplemental legislation in order to "bring this great and historic area to its fullest availability for use by the public."

$54,082 Spent Toward County Road Project

Some $54,082.43 has been spent on the Mexico Farms Road project in the first six months of the current fiscal year, according to a report to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners by the State Roads Commission.

The report showed receipts of $78,433.58 from Allegany County in that account to December 31, leaving a cash balance of $24,351.15 after the expenditures.

Anticipated receipts for two other county road projects add up to $22,950. Included is $13,300 for Orleans Road and $9,650 for Bear Hill Road.

The SRC goes on to state that anticipated expenditures during the remainder of the fiscal year add up to $122,198.78, which would leave a deficit in the amount of $97,847.63. However, that anticipated deficit does not take into consideration $100,900 in federal aid which will be earmarked for the Mexico Farm Road.

Federal money for the Mexico Farm Road includes $99,594 in the 1959 allocation for plans, specifications and other expenditures plus a 1960 allocation of $1,306 for the same purpose. In addition, another $73,391 is in the 1961 allocation but is unprogrammed. Agreement on this amount must be reached by June 30, 1962.

Dr. Verl Lewis To Talk Here On Social Work

Agencies Invited To Hear New Dean

Dr. Verl Lewis, dean of the new school of social work which will open in September on the Baltimore campus of the University of Maryland, will address a group of social workers and agency people here Friday.

Miss Ethel Wilderman, director of the Allegany County Welfare Board, said yesterday that Dr. Lewis will address social workers and other employes of the Welfare Department at their Cumberland Street building at 10:30 a. m.

Then at 12:30 p. m., he will be guest speaker at a luncheon in the Fort Cumberland Hotel, to which heads and directors of local and public and private social agencies have been invited, along with educators and others interested.

Miss Wilderman said Dr. Lewis is considered an authority in this field.

He obtained his master's degree at the University of Chicago and his doctorate at Northwestern.

Miss Wilderman said she has extended a number of invitations to persons who she believes will be interested in hearing Dr. Lewis, and at yesterday's luncheon meeting of the Allegany County Social Workers Luncheon Group, she extended an invitation to all members to attend.

At yesterday's second meeting of this newly formed group, John Cobun of the Maryland State Department of Education Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, outlined the duties and wide scope of responsibilities of his agency. He said that much is being accomplished in training handicapped people and others for new employment, as well as helping already employed to adjust themselves to their present work. The "rehab" agency works closely with other agencies, he said.

The major handicap in their field he declared, is money. The funds budgeted for this important service, which helps citizens become gainfully employed, are woefully inadequate to take care of the present, as well as the potential case load, he asserted.

Samuel Weston, officer in charge of the Veterans Administration office here, was to share the discussion, but due to the long question period and interest shown in Mr. Cobun's activities, F. Allan Weatherholt, program chairman, suggested that Mr. Weston postpone his discussion until the next monthly meeting on February 15.

Sheriff's Deputy Solves Burglary

An 11-year-old boy admitted to Deputy Sheriff William E. "Scotty" Orr yesterday afternoon that he broke into Harry Owens' barber shop, 387 McMullen Highway, Roberts Place, and stole a change box containing about $25.

Deputy Sheriff Orr said all of the money was recovered from two hiding places under a porch. No disposition of the case has yet been made.

Mrs. Owens reported the burglary to Deputy Sheriff Edgar M. Lewis about 9 a. m. yesterday. Deputy Orr was assigned to the case and had concluded his investigations by 3 p. m. Mr. Owens apparently had left a window unlocked when he left the barber shop Tuesday night.

Meeting Set Tonight

Points To Remember:

Safety Group Distributes Digest Of Point System

The Maryland Traffic Safety Commission, cooperating with the Department of Motor Vehicles, is distributing wallet-size cards summarizing the new motor vehicle violation point system, which went into effect with the new year.

Police report that most drivers apparently are unaware of the point values assigned the various violations.

Briefly, the system works like this:

If you earn eight points within two years, your license must be suspended for two to 30 days. Later suspensions will be from 15 to 90 days.

If you require 12 points within two years, your license must be revoked.

After three points, you get a warning letter. Five points and the commissioner of motor vehicles calls you in for a conference.

If you're charged with a violation covered by the point system and you choose to forfeit bond rather than stand trial, the points go on your record, just as if you had been found guilty.

A summary of the point system follows:

Speeding (10 m.p.h. over posted limit)	3
Reckless driving	3
Failure to report accident	5
Letting unlicensed operator drive	4
Hit-run (injury)	12
Hit-run (no injury)	8
Driving after suspension or revocation	12
Misrepresentation to get permit	12
Loaning or altering permit	12
Homicide or assault by auto	12
Driving under influence	12
Felony, using automobile	12

Moving violations not listed above cost three points if they contribute to an accident, one point if they do not.

Davis Will Among Five Probated Here

The last testament of Garnet W. Davis, who was the 56-year-old president of the Queen City Neon Company at the time of his death January 12, was one of five probated Tuesday in Allegany County Orphans Court.

His sister, Mrs. Mary Margaret Davis Barnes, this city, was the sole benificiary of the will drawn July 31, 1959. His brother, George Thomas Davis, RFD 2, Amberley, Annapolis, qualified as executor under a $500 bond.

Another was the will of Mrs. Helen Powell Wise, who was 46 when she died suddenly December 20 at Porte Vedera Beach, Fla. Her mother, Mrs. Ruth Cochrane Powell, 12 North Smallwood Street, was the sole beneficiary of the will dated November 21, 1960. The First National Bank and Trust Company and W. Lloyd Baker, Baltimore, qualified as executors under a $1,000 bond.

Also probated was the will of Mrs. Mary Catherine McGreevy, who was a 60-year-old Luke resident when she died December 12. Her son, Francis Xavier McGreevy, Fairview Street, Luke, the sole beneficiary, qualified as executor under a $500 bond. The will was dated August 9, 1960.

The last testament of Mrs. Mary Ann Robertson, who died December 14, also was probated. She left one parcel on Water Station Road, Lonaconing, to a daughter, Mrs. Esther Robertson Powell, St. Mary's Terrace, Lonaconing, who qualified as executrix under a $500 bond. Another parcel, the home property, was bequeathed to her other children equally. There were cash bequests to three granddaughters and all of her personal property and other possessions were left equally to her children under the will dated October 1957.

The final will probated Tuesday was the testament of Mrs. Annie Stakem, who died nearly five years ago—April 25, 1956. A daughter, Mary Esther Bonig, P. O. Box 37, Cumberland, was sole beneficiary and qualified as executrix under a $100 bond. This will was dated January 11, 1956.

Teachers Plan All-Out Effort For Pay Hike

Call Committee's Plan 'Inadequate'

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Spokesmen for Maryland school teachers Wednesday night pledged "an all-out effort" to persuade the legislature to enact a full salary bill over wishes of the Tawes administration and legislative leaders.

Robert Y. Dubel, associate executive secretary of the Maryland State Teachers Association, said the administration-backed proposals of the James Committee to give $6.4 million to counties as aid to education and earmark none of it for salaries are "inadequate" to meet teacher needs.

Noting that the total James proposals will require $9 million in new tax money and that the governor plans to lower the sales tax to purchases costing over 25 cents in order to finance it, Dubel said:

"It is difficult for us to understand how the proposed adjustments in the sales tax can be passed at the same time that the state budget is experiencing a substantial surplus, unless they are justified by an improved program of at least the magnitude we are recommending in the $4,000-$6,000 school aid proposal."

Mrs. F. L. Bull, legislative chairman for the Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers, moved into the battle with a statement that P-TA groups also will not accept the "negative action" of the administration.

"It is most upsetting to our P-TA membership to be told on the one hand that new taxes are needed to implement the James Committee proposals for education. . and on the other hand to find that none of that money is tied down for education," she said.

Both she and Dubel said they were encouraged by the large number of legislators who appear to favor their $13 million program of increased aid to education, if taxes are to be raised, in preference to limited possible aid in the James bill.

Dubel said sponsors for the legislation are still being obtained and that the teacher pay bills, providing salary raises averaging some $400, will be introduced in the legislature next week.

Proposed Md. Cigaret Tax Is Assailed

'Headache' Cited By Distributors

By HERB THOMPSON

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Opponents of a statewide tax of six cents a pack on cigarettes assailed it Wednesday as a device to benefit Baltimore City distributors at the expense of smokers and retailers throughout the state.

"There are only about 15 people in favor of this proposal," Harry Todd of Salisbury, an Eastern Shore distributor, told the House Ways and Means Committee.

"They brought it to the Legislative Council and that's why the bill is here today."

Representatives of the Tobacco Distributors Association, most of whose members are located in the city, admitted the only reason for their endorsement of the proposal is to eliminate a headache of fixing different tax stamps to cigarettes and distributing them to the proper subdivisions.

"We'd like to eliminate the whole tax but we can't," said Joseph Sewell, a Baltimore distributor and former president of the association. "We have a tax and we have to live with it."

Presently Three Cents

At present the State levies three cents a pack on cigarettes. Local levies applied on top of the State tax include three cents each in Baltimore City and Baltimore County, two cents each in Carroll, Harford, Montgomery and Frederick counties, and one cent a pack in Garrett County. Separate stamps are required for each levy.

The Legislative Council's James Committee on Taxation, after hearing from the Baltimore City wholesalers, recommended that a uniform State tax of six cents a pack be substituted for the present hodgepodge system and the local taxes repealed.

All of the additional revenue of $4.8 million would go back to counties on a population basis and in proportion to what they're now taxing.

It was recommended by the Legislative Council, and endorsed by Gov. Tawes, as a measure which would benefit local governments financially while bringing about desired uniformity in cigarette taxes.

But Morris Turk, legislative agent for wholesalers outside the city, told the committee:

"This is not a revenue-raising bill but a competition-eliminating bill. Baltimore City already has six cents in tax. It would force 17 counties to put on taxes when they're not required."

Growers Disapprove Tax

Southern Maryland tobacco growers also urged the committee not to approve the additional tax. They said their industry is already overtaxed and that it can only hurt a crop which makes up 75 per cent of the cash income of Southern Maryland farmers.

The Ways and Means Committee took no action on the proposal after the two-hour hearing, but Chairman A. Gordon Boone, D-Balto County, said it probably would be considered Thursday or early next week.

The legislature plans an abbreviated day Thursday before adjourning for a long weekend because of the inauguration Friday of President-elect Kennedy.

Action in the House Wednesday included passage and transfer to the Senate of a measure to increase the salaries of Baltimore County assessors. Sponsored by the county delegation, the measure was whisked to passage only five days after introduction.

Investigation Asked

The delegates also tentatively approved a resolution to ask for an investigation of a Department of Agriculture order placing Maryland's Eastern Shore in the Baltimore milk-marketing area.

The resolution originally asked that the governor make the probe but it was amended to urge that the task be done by the secretary of agriculture.

Another resolution receiving tentative House approval would ask the governor appoint a commission to study means of improving the physical fitness of Maryland youth.

Bills introduced Wednesday included the perennial $90 million veterans bonus proposal by Sens. Harry T. Phoebus, R-Somerset, and John L. Sanford Jr., D-Worcester.

It calls for a beer-tax increase to finance the bonus.

Also in the cast are Mildred White, Sid Storer, Robert Roach, James Webster, Peter Boniece, Ralph O. Barrick, Richard Powell, Florine Isaacs, and Clark Fales.

$10,000 Fund For Miners In Proposed Bill

The Allegany County delegation to the Maryland Legislature yesterday held a meeting in Annapolis to discuss a bill that would authorize the County Commissioners to appropriate $10,000 for Miners Hospital.

The bill, if introduced and passed by the General Assembly, would only authorize the County Commissioners to allot funds for the hospital and would not be mandatory.

The commissioners also would have the power to decide the method by which the $10,000 would be raised if the bill is introduced and passed this session.

The county delegation yesterday also made plans to introduce a joint resolution in the Senate and the House of Delegates requesting the U. S. government to include the portion of U. S. Route 40 in this area in the Federal Interstate Highway System.

At the present time the section of U. S. Route 40 that is included in the interstate system ends just east of Hancock. The resolution calls for the government to increase substantially the interstate mileage and include the balance of Route 40 westward in Maryland.

The delegation also reported yesterday it had not received any formal word from the County Commissioners about the school construction program.

However, on December 23 the County Commissioners voted unanimously to ask the Allegany County legislators to formulate a measure providing for an enabling act under which the school building program can be financed.

In other action at the meeting yesterday, the delegation worked to shape up bills which soon will be introduced by the lawmakers.

The legislature will hold a short session today starting at noon and then will adjourn until Monday night.

Man To Face Hearing On Larceny Count

A local man is expected to be given a hearing this morning in Trial Magistrate's Court in connection with the theft of a 12-gauge shotgun, alarm clock and silverware from a home on Golden's Lane.

Vernon H. Growden, city, was arrested by city police on a warrant obtained by Frank Rodicamp from Trial Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt.

The warrant indicated that on January 5 Growden took a shotgun valued at $50, an alarm clock valued at $10 and a quantity of silverware valued at $10 from the premises of Rodicamp on Golden's Lane.

Growden, according to city police, was nabbed on January 12 and later taken to the Allegany County jail.

City Police Detective Captain James E. Van said yesterday the shotgun and alarm clock were recovered from a local pawn shop.

Md. Cigaret Tax Would Raise Levy Among Highest

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — If Maryland imposes a statewide tax of six cents per pack on cigarets, as now proposed, it will place the Maryland tax among the 13 highest in the country, the House Ways and Means Committee was told Wednesday.

Among neighboring jurisdictions, Pennsylvania levies 6 cents, West Virginia 5 cents, Delaware 3 cents, Virginia 3 cents and the District of Columbia 2 cents.

Maryland's tax presently is 3 cents, but Baltimore City and six counties levy additional local taxes ranging from 1 to 3 cents per pack.

Pence Urges Greater Stress On Fitness

Advocates Use Of Resource Teachers

Allegany County's 16,000 public school children would be more nearly physically fit if the physical education program were expanded in the elementary schools, according to Robert E. Pence, supervisor of physical education in the county schools.

Mr. Pence believes that the physical education program in the elementary schools of this county would benefit if certain resource physical education teachers were employed who would visit different schools and consult with the elementary classroom teachers. He expressed his views at the meeting Tuesday afternoon of the County Board of Education.

The supervisor believes that many if not most of the elementary teachers are actively interested in conducting an effective physical education program for their pupils. He pointed out that when a tumbling workshop was held recently at Johnson Heights Schools for fourth, fifth and sixth grade teachers in the Cumberland area 82 of the possible 90 teachers attended.

More Effective

However, he believes that resource teachers could help to make the physical fitness program more effective.

In the course of his illustrated talk to the school board, Mr. Pence pointed out that educators, doctors, military leaders and both the outgoing and incoming Presidents of the United States have expressed concern about the lack of physical fitness on the part of many Americans.

More than half of the young men in the United States who have taken a minimum physical fitness test have failed at least one part of it against only eight per cent of failures in European countries.

The physical education supervisor told the school board members that every child needs at least two hours of vigorous exercise every day. They find too many diversions to get the needed exercise, he emphasized. They spend too much time watching television, ride in automobiles instead of walking and have very few if any home chores to perform.

The critical years in building a healthy body are the first 10 years of a child's life, Mr. Pence stressed. That's why it is important to expand the physical fitness program in the elementary grades.

Many of the classroom teachers are very effective in teaching physical fitness but others are less active. The supervisor explained that less active teachers have been taught to conduct the fitness program without actually participating themselves.

Live Longer

Physically active people generally live longer lives, Mr. Pence said. He pointed out that many relatively inactive people died of heart attacks when they were called upon to shovel snow after the heavy fall last month.

The supervisor also would like the physical education program expanded in the high schools of the county. It is required in the junior high school years three days a week but not in the senior high schools. As a result very few senior high school students take physical education.

Mr. Pence expressed belief that the varsity athletic program in the schools of the county is adequate but it only touches about 400 of the 16,000 pupils in the county.

Maryland counties which now employ physical education resource teachers as suggested for Allegany County include Frederick, Baltimore, Montgomery, Prince George's and Anne Arundel.

Last year about 50 per cent of the fourth, fifth and sixth grade pupils at Columbia Street School failed at least one of the six parts when they first took the physical fitness test. Later in the school year, after undergoing a series of exercises to improve their muscles, the percentage failing at least one of the tests dropped to 31.

Members of the school board expressed interest in expansion of this physical fitness program—but they asked to be excused from taking the test themselves.

McNamara Plan Rejected

Inauguration Fever Rises In Washington

Kennedy Clan Gathers; Snow, Cold Forecast

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—The town really began to bulge, bustle and buzz Wednesday with people crowding in for Friday's inauguration of John F. Kennedy as president of the United States. Sprightly, peppery, Harry S. Truman, who once lived in the White House himself, was among them.

The Kennedy clan was gathering, too. The president-elect spent the day in New York before flying down to Washington to start the rounds of official preinaugural events with an appearance at a reception honoring Vice President-elect Lyndon B. Johnson. Mrs. Kennedy came by plane from the other direction, from Palm Beach, Fla.

And, except for carpenters still pounding on a stately white stand in front of the White House, things are about as ready as they ever will be for the changeover in administrations. Security agents have even battened down all the manholes in the streets along the line of march of the inaugural parade.

Snow, Cold Forecast

But it looks like chilblain and goosepimple weather for some of the gorgeous girls who will be riding floats. Florida is going to have seven bathing beauties aboard an entry depicting the "Sunshine State."

The weather man, though, said it looks now as if there may be a bit of snow Thursday. And Friday will be cold and windy with the temperature around freezing.

Every train and plane poured in out-of-towners. Information booths at terminals, hotels and motels were mobbed with people wanting maps, or word on where to round up that ticket to the inaugural ball that should have arrived by mail. Reinforcements from as far as Chicago came to the assistance of firms renting evening apparel.

President Eisenhower held his last news conference and rolled through a heavy round of appointments. With less than 48 hours left for him at the White House, he had the air of a man who wasn't exactly unhappy at the idea of leaving it—only that a Democrat was moving in.

Truman Beams At Welcomers

It was Harry Truman who gave up the Democratic lease on the executive mansion eight years ago. And the 73-year-old Missourian was utterly delighted that a Democrat will be moving back in Friday afternoon.

He beamed at welcomers at Union Station, shook hands exuberantly and told everyone in earshot: "Whenever the Democrats are around, you're in good company."

In addition to dozens of private parties on the side, Thursday will bring a reception for governors, an inaugural concert featuring American composers and talent, and a gala show featuring stage and movie stars and Democratic party efforts to raise money to pay for the campaign debt.

All this is just a prelude to the solemn, impressive ceremony for the swearing in of the new president and then the vice president before the east front of the Capitol building at noon Friday. After that, it's back to razzle dazzle and celebration with the great parade down Pennsylvania Avenue and an inaugural ball split into five sections and scattered around the city.

Challenge By Reds Kennedy's Gravest Problem, Ike Says

Favors Election-Inaugural Date Shift

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower urged the incoming Kennedy administration Wednesday to keep America "strong and firm and yet conciliatory" in meting the global challenge of communism.

The retiring president, in an amiable mood, closed out his White House news conferences with a wide-ranging discussion of domestic and foreign problems. It was his 193rd meeting with reporters as president and 305 newsmen turned out.

Thursday, Eisenhower will confer with President-elect John F. Kennedy to wrap up final details of the transition from the old Republican to the new Democratic administration. On Friday he will go out of office when Kennedy takes the presidential oath at noon.

To smooth the way for future transitions, Eisenhower Wednesday suggested a constitutional amendment advancing the time of presidential elections and inaugurations. He said the new chief executive should have 80 days in which to organize his administration before he starts dealing with Congress.

In his farewell appearance in the ornate Indian Treaty Room at the old State Department Building next to the White House, Eisenhower was nostalgic, reflective and wryly humorous.

He was also solemnly authoritative in outlining what he regards as Kennedy's gravest problem, his own greatest achievement, and his biggest disappointment in eight years in the presidency.

The legacy he reluctantly will have to leave Kennedy, Eisenhower said, "is the intransigent, unreasonable attitude" of the Communist nations.

To meet this he said not only the new president but everybody else will have to concern themselves with "what to do to keep ourselves strong and firm and yet conciliatory in trying to meet . . . this terrible problem that is none of our making."

Eisenhower said he believes his greatest achievement lies in having developed policies that kept the peace when weakness might have plunged the world into a disastrous war.

His formula, he said, lay in "the kind of understanding and firmness and readiness to take the risk" that prevented a destructive clash with the Communist bloc.

The President said his greatest disappointment came in "the fact that we could not in these eight years get to the place where we could say it now looks as if permanent peace with justice is really in sight."

Eisenhower made his proposal for a shift in inaugural and election dates in response to a question as to whether he thought the transition period—which he said has been going "splendidly" in this case—ought to be shortened.

New Job For Benson

NEW YORK (AP)—Ezra Taft Benson, outgoing secretary of agriculture, was elected a director of Corn Products Co. Wednesday.

Jackie Leaves Caroline 'To Get New House Ready'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mrs. John F. Kennedy kissed 3-year-old Caroline goodby Wednesday and told her that mother was going to Washington "to get a new house ready for the family."

Four hours later the nation's next First Lady arrived here from Palm Beach, Fla., to make final preparations for Friday's inauguration.

Caroline and baby brother John Jr. will remain at the family's vacation home in Palm Beach, until a nursery can be set up for them at the White House.

Mrs. Kennedy had been preparing Caroline for several days for her parents' departure. The little girl took the parting well, consoled by a promise that as soon as the "new house" is ready mother would make a telephone call to tell her about it.

"Caroline loves to talk on the telephone," said Mrs. Kennedy's news secretary, Miss Pamela Turnure.

The Kennedys' private airplane, named The Caroline for their daughter, took off from Palm Beach International Airport at 12:40 p.m. in a cloudless Florida sky. About 200 spectators waved goodby.

Mrs. Kennedy had walked over to the crowd just before boarding the plane.

"Thank you all for coming," she said softly.

Rebels Down One Of Four Laos Planes

U.S.-Supplied AT6 Lost While Strafing Retreating Leftists

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Pro-Communist forces have shot down one of the four U. S.-made trainer-fighters of Premier Prince Boun Oum's infant air force, a government source said Wednesday. The chance of getting a replacement appeared remote.

The propeller-driven AT6, packing five-inch rockets and two .30-caliber machine guns, was reported felled by ground fire Tuesday while strafing retreating rebels north of Vang Vieng. The fate of the Laotian pilot was undetermined.

Craft Support Offensive

Three of the trainer-fighters, instead of the usual four, were parked overnight at Vientiane's airport. Their flights have backed the government offensive above Vang Vieng, a recaptured highway post 70 miles north of Vientiane, and helped menace defenders of a staging area near the waist of Laos.

The little squadron has injected a new element into a war that had been largely hit-and-run ground fighting.

There were Laotian rumors that more AT6s would be sent. But official American sources here denied knowledge of any future deliveries.

U. S. Silent On Russ Charge

A Soviet charge Monday that the United States planned to turn over more powerful F84 Thunderjets to Laotian pilots turned up no confirmation in Washington. The Laotians have neither the training nor an airport to handle jets.

In the ground war, the government kept the upper hand in the north while Capt. Kong Le's leftist paratroops and Pathet Lao guerrillas posed a grave threat to Paksane and Tha Thom, garrison towns near the country's waist.

The leftists cut the road between the two towns, moving to a point about 100 miles northeast of this administrative capital. They struck in two columns.

"The Reds are coming—there is no question about it," said Maj. Phong Kave, commander of an undersized battalion at Tha Thom.

Rayburn Wins Maior Victory In Rules Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas won a resounding and bloodless first-round victory Wednesday in his fight for control of the powerful House Rules Committee.

At a Democratic caucus markedly devoid of bickering, he rammed through a resolution to boost the committee's membership in a way designed to take away from a coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats control over the flow of major legislation.

The resolution was shouted through at one of the briefest caucuses in party history—15 minutes. It would increase the size of the Rules Committee from eight Democrats and four Republicans to ten Democrats and five Republicans. This could break the legislative grip now held by the four Republicans and two Southern Democrats. Assuming that backers of President-elect John F. Kennedy's legislative program are assigned to the two Democratic vacancies, this should provide easier House sailing for such bills.

In effect, the resolution was a compromise worked out by warring factions to avoid the more drastic step of purging one of the Southern Democrats, Rep. William M. Colmer, of Mississippi. Rayburn, in his determination to regain control of the committee, had approved the purge procedure as a last resort.

Idaho's 80.7% Voter Turnout Record Best

NEW YORK (AP) — Idaho did the best job of getting its voters to the polls in the 1960 presidential election, the American Heritage Foundation said Wednesday.

Idaho had 80.7 per cent of its voting-age residents cast their ballots. The national average was 64.3 per cent.

Kennedy Maps Latin America Goodwill Plan

NEW YORK (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy adopted a goodwill program toward Latin America Wednesday by setting up Puerto Rico as a focal "meeting place and workshop" for improving relations.

Kennedy, two days away from his inauguration, announced the project after conferring here with Gov. Luis Munoz Marin of the Puerto Rican Commonwealth.

Before flying back to Washington and the start of the inauguration festivities, Kennedy also had lunch with W. Averell Harriman, who will be his ambassador at large; had a final fitting of his formal clothes, and visited a dentist.

He also announced four appointments to his staff, including two military aides.

Kennedy issued a statement saying he and Munoz were agreed there was a need for a clearer recognition that the United States understands Latin America's needs.

He called it the "hemisphere's need for a fundamental effort—a revolutionary effort in the best sense—to satisfy the desire of Latin American peoples for a civilization that shall be great materially as it already is spiritually."

"Gov. Munoz and I," he said, "have agreed to take measures to expand the availability of Puerto Rico's facilities for a meeting place and workshop where we in the United States and our neighbors in Latin America may learn more about our mutual problems and the possibilities for the great achievements that we can attain by working together."

Kennedy announced these appointments:

Army aide to the president — Brig. Gen. Chester V. Clinton, of Annandale, Va., deputy Army chief of information.

Air force aide to the president —Col. Godfrey T. McHugh, deputy chief of the Air Force headquarters long range objective group in plans.

Americans' Personal Income Takes Drop

WASHINGTON (AP)—The total income of all Americans declined in November and December for the first time since the 1959 steel strike.

The Commerce Department said Wednesday the annual rate of personal income dropped by $700 million in November and by $2.3 billion in December. The December rate of $406.7 billion compared with an October peak of $409.7 billion.

Payroll cuts in manufacturing industries accounted for virtually all of the decline.

Pickets Close New Haven Line

NEW YORK (AP) — Striking tugboat pickets Wednesday shut down the New Haven Railroad, just as they had the New York Central 24 hours earlier.

Both lines use Grand Central Terminal. The last New Haven train left the city for Stamford, Conn., at 8:29 p.m. EST and the vast station fell silent, eerily void of trains and passengers.

The halt in New Haven service affected 30,000 daily commuters in the New York metropolitan area, plus long-distance service to Boston and Springfield, Mass., Washingtor and Philadelphia.

It brought to 100,000 the number of commuters stranded thus far.

Intruder Kills Student, Shoots Prof At Calif. U

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — A 40-year-old English professor and his graduate student assistant were wounded - the student fatally — by an unidentified, bushy-haired man with a sawed-off shotgun on the University of California campus Wednesday.

The student, Stephen Mann Thomas, 29, died an hour and a half after the sudden and unexplained attack in the Dwinelle Hall office of Prof. Thomas Parkinson. Parkinson was shot in the face.

Both victims were rushed to Herrick Memorial Hospital. Thomas died there of a gaping back wound. Parkinson later was transferred to Peralta Hospital in nearby Oakland where his condition was described as fair. Part of his jaw was shot away.

The professor's wife, Mrs. Ariel Parkinson, was at his bedside. She said she had no idea why anyone would shoot either her husband or Thomas, a brilliant student working for a doctorate in English.

Rosy Economic Picture Painted By Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower Wednesday painted a rosy picture of the nation's economy and said his administration has laid a firm base for "a period of sound growth."

And Eisenhower placed at the feet of his successor, President-elect John F. Kennedy, the key role in spurring this growth. Without naming Kennedy, the President said the federal policies needed could, to a considerable extent, be achieved "administratively and require no legislative action by Congress."

Eisenhower's annual economic report—his last big message to Congress — listed 14 "important matters" on which he said congressional action is needed. Most of these, however, he has already asked in one form or another.

None of the proposals could be called antirecession measures, such as some economic experts say are needed. Heading Eisenhower's list was a plea to keep his new $81-billion federal budget in balance and keep inflation under control.

The whole tone of Eisenhower's message was opposite to the only comparable document, a report on Jan. 5 to Kennedy by his economic task force.

That Democratic group recommended swift emergency measures but cautioned against pushing the panic button.

Among other things the group called for extending unemployment compensation pay, along with other programs to raise federal outlays by $3 billion to $5 billion in the year starting next July 1.

Eisenhower conceded that Congress might supplement jobless pay in "periods of especially high rates of unemployment." But newsmen were told by his economic advisers that the present rate of 6.8 per cent jobless isn't high enough to justify such federal aid.

The President's message nowhere spoke of a recession, business tip or downturn as occurring in the final months of his administration.

Embezzler Chooses Jail To Facing Her Victims

SHELDON, Iowa (AP)—The reserved, graying daughter of a bank president chose the solitude of a jail Wednesday to going home to face the people from whom she embezzled $2 million.

Burnice Iverson Geiger, 58, an assistant cashier and board member of her father's bank where the shortage was discovered, remained in the county jail at Sioux City in lieu of $10,000 bond.

Her husband, Wallace, a merchant and member of a prominent Sheldon family, said he sent his wife a note asking her to change her mind.

"I think there is a good chance I can talk her into putting up the bond," he said.

U. S. Dist. Atty. F. E. Van Alstine, who said Mrs. Geiger admitted the embezzlement, added, "It is my impression she took about half the money during the past year or 18 months.

"Her method was different from any I had ever seen."

He declined to disclose the method, but said the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. knew it.

Van Alstine said Mrs. Geiger, appearing remorseful, told him she intended to put the money back. He would not say where or how the money was spent.

The district attorney said, "I asked her if she was insolvent and she said very much so."

Solons Rule Trust Fund Falls Short

Written Promise Required; Senators Back Rusk, Adlai

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Armed Services Committee Wednesday rejected the $1.1 million trust fund plan of Secretary of Defense-designate Robert S. McNamara. He had set it up to avoid possible conflict of interest.

But the committee decided it fell short. McNamara was ordered to file a written promise that neither he nor his fund would own defense stocks while he heads the Pentagon.

The action came during a busy day when Senate committes approved the nomination of four members of President-elect John F. Kennedy's Cabinet and of Adlai Stevenson as ambassador to the United Ntaions.

McNamara, however, received only conditional approval. To win full approval, he must file the written promise.

In his testimony Tuesday, McNamara said he would revise his trust fund plan in any manner suggested by the committe.

"It's a very harsh rule," said Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the committe, but he said the committee also had applied it to Charles E. Wilson, President Eisenhower's first secretary of Defense.

Rule Applied To Others

Russell said the rule also applied to nine other Defense Dept. nominees who were questioned by the committee in the past two days. They have received conditional approval, pending their written promises to get rid of all defense stocks, Russell said.

McNamara, former president of Ford Motor Co., had sold all his Ford stock when he accepted the designation by Kennedy. McNamara then proposed putting his receipts—$1.1 million after taxes—into a trust fund over which he would have no control.

Other Senate committees Wednesday approved the designations of Dean Rusk as secretary of State, Douglas Dillon as secretary of the Treasury, Abraham A. Ribicoff as secretary of welfare, and Luther H. Hodges as secretary of commerce.

Their formal nominations, however, will not reach the Senate until Friday, inauguration day. Senate votes on the nominations are expected Saturday.

Witnesses at four separate committee hearings included Stevenson, Hodges, three Justice Department nominees, and seven of the Defense Department nominees.

Stevenson Expects U. N. Rebuffs

Stevenson attracted the most attention as he testified for 2¼ hours. A crowd filled the hearing room and 200 persons stood and listened in the hallway.

While cautioning of possible trouble in the United Nations, Stevenson, twice-defeated Democratic candidate for president, drew laughter from the crowd by telling the committee he regards himself as "something of an expert in rebuffs and disappointments."

Stevenson delivered a glowing tribute to the United Nations. He called it "thoroughly antitotalitarian" and said its importance is demonstrated by the fact that "when a Communist leader wants to bang his shoe on the table—and be heard—he, too, must come to the United Nations."

But, Stevenson continued in response to Republican questions, any view that Red China's admission to the United Nations would make that country less militaristic or less anti-American "is highly optimistic."

Lumumba In Congo's Most Secure Prison

JACOTVILLE, the Congo (AP) —Patrice Lumumba was locked up Wednesday in this province's most secure prison, nursing cuts and bruises from a severe beating by Katanga police.

The Katanga government of President Moise Tshombe, which seceded from the Congo during Lumumba's turbulent term as premier, announced he was brought to Katanga because the Thysville military camp in the Leopoldville area was not secure enough to prevent his escape.

Eisenhower Is Still Peeved At Truman

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dwight D. Eisenhower is a most consistent man.

Even Wednesday in his final news conference, when he was in an exceptionally affable mood, he still couldn't forget that he's peeved at Harry S. Truman.

A reporter asked how active a role Eisenhower would take in politics after he steps out of office at noon Friday. Would it be similar to the one played by Truman?

Eisenhower frowned and began, "Well, I won't make any comparisons."

Although the words sound innocent in print, and although at no time did he refer by name to the man he succeeded in the White House, his tone plainly showed that ex-President Eisenhower isn't going to take ex-President Truman as a model.

Normally political feuds are easily patched up. But this one, which began back in the 1952 campaign, apparently still stands.

Other than this, you couldn't have asked for a sunnier farewell from the Old Soldier.

Fittingly for the last news conference go-around, Eisenhower was accompanied by his whole press crew: James C. Hagerty, Anne W. Wheaton, Wayne Hawks and even Robert Montgomery, who has coached the President on how to face television cameras.

Newspapermen collectively fret a lot over what a President thinks of them, and several of the questions dealt with his relations with reporters. Eisenhower seemed amused that some of them felt maybe the questioning at times had been unkind.

"When you come down to it," he said, "I don't see what a reporter could do much to a president, do you?"

As usual on these occasions, there was a summing up of dreams accomplished and dreams shattered.

Eisenhower, who talked peace so earnestly these past eight years, confessed that his chief disappointment was that he never found an answer, and said his chief accomplishment was that it could have been much worse.

Trio Sentenced For Gang Battle

TOWSON, Md. (AP) — Two youths involved in a gang battle at a shopping center parking lot last November were handed eight-year prison sentences Wednesday. A third youth drew a two-year sentence in the Maryland House of Correction.

Circuit Judge W. Albert Menchine, in imposing the penalties, said it would be the policy of the court to "deal harshly with persons convicted of crimes of viciousness and brutality."

An estimated 30 to 50 youths were involved in the fight at the Middlesex shopping center. A 19-year-old youth was critically injured when he was stabbed in the chest during the brawl, and another youth was beaten unconscious with a piece of iron pipe.

The eight-year terms were imposed on Blaine H. Freels, 20, and Earl F. (Rick) Lawton Jr., 17. Both were charged with assault with intent to kill.

Colleges Back Scholarship Revision Plan

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Hearty endorsement was given by private and state college administrations Wednesday to a proposed revision of Maryland's grants for student scholarships.

Thomas G. Pullen Jr., state superintendent of schools, sounded the only discordant note at a Senate Finance Committee hearing. However, there were signs of concern among some senators over limiting the minimum amount of grants to tuition.

Pullen made it plain he is against any state aid for college scholarships.

But he joined college spokesmen in praising proposed expansion of the number of scholarships, if such state aid is to be continued, that permit the recipient to choose the college.

In fact, he said all scholarships should be in this form.

The recommendations of a two-year study committee would award 800 new scholarships worth $500 each to be used at any state or private college and junior college.

Another 1,000 would be offered to persons who would commit themselves to teaching in Maryland after graduation.

Pullen objected that 327 of these teacher training scholarships would be eliminated under the proposals.

"This bill does violence to this program of providing teachers in the public schools," he said. "The bill is a serious blow to the state at a time when teachers are needed more than ever before."

The new scholarship set-up also would provide 558 scholarships to seven private colleges and 362 to state institutions. Tuition would be paid at the private institutions and tuition plus fixed fees at the state.

Pullen called his "a flagrant form of discrimination between prospective teachers and general students" because the tuition would be higher than the $500 granted prospective teachers.

Several senators had questions about limiting grants to tuition. Many of the present scholarships also cover room, board, books and laundry.

Members of the committee felt that many qualified students could not afford to accept scholarships if they were granted only tuition.

Sens. Samual Barrick, D-Frederick, and Edward O. Weant Jr., D-Carroll, will be given a chance next week to object to some provisions of the scholarship plan.

Tawes Supports Job Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maryland Gov. J. Millard Tawes said Wednesday economic problems of the Appalachian region can only be solved by "long-range, comprehensive steps to revive, and perhaps re-orient the economy of the region. . . "

Tawes' statement was submitted to the Senate Banking and Currency Committee considering depressed area legislation. The governor did not appear before the group.

The governor said "We in Maryland thoroughly support this bill to aid the distressed areas of our nation."

Tawes said steps must be taken in the areas of transportation, water supply and education as "part of the difficulty in which the distressed areas find themselves today derives from the fact that a comprehensive approach was not incorporated into assistance in the past."

Tawes said the Appalachian region was geographically isolated and "it was only natural that the nation was more interested in bypassing this region than in developing it."

He said to remove this isolation is a "question of highways."

Tawes urged a re-examination of plans for the federal interstate highway program to assure no effort was made to bypass this area.

Maryland Qualifies For Road Fund Bonus

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maryland Wednesday became the first state in the union to be eligible for federal highway bonus funds because of its regulations on outdoor advertising on the interstate system.

John B. Funk, head of the Maryland State Roads Commission, and Bertram Tallany, federal highway administrator, signed the agreement in Washington.

The bonus means Maryland will obtain additional funds totaling one-half of one per cent of its interstate allocations. State highway officials estimate this sum will be between $1.5 million and $1.7 million, spread over the life of the interstate act.

Maryland's billboard law prohibits erection of advertising structures within 660 feet of the right-of-way. There are exceptions including structures advertising goods and services available on a property lying within the 660 feet.

Jackie's Inaugural Gala Gown Has "Sedate Look"

NEW YORK (AP)—A closely guarded secret, the dress Mrs. John F. Kennedy will wear to the inaugural gala, was disclosed Wednesday by press secretary Pierre Salinger.

Cassini called the gown a perfect example of the cool, fluid lines that he will use throughout his career as Mrs. Kennedy's official couturier.

Both Salinger and Cassini's office refused to comment on the cost of the dress. "We don't think Mrs. Kennedy wants that information made public," a Cassini employe said.

Last week the dapper, mustached designer told reporters that although the new First Lady has plenty of money to spend on clothes, she does not wish to appear extravagant.

Cassini took the dress to Washington and was expected to deliver it personally to Mrs. Kennedy Thursday morning. The gala is that night.

Tony To Become Office Worker

LONDON (AP) — Antony Armstrong-Jones, once a fashionable photographer, will become one of London's millions of office workers next week. It is his first job since his marriage to Princess Margaret last May.

Court officials said he will work without fees or salary for the Council of Industrial Design, a government-sponsored body aimed at improving the design of British manufactured products.

A formal statement from Clarence House said Armstrong-Jones will be associated with the council's educational and exhibition programs. The job involves handling films, film strips and other visual teaching aids.

Tawes Names Bowie Marbury's Successor

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—William B. Bowie of Upper Marlboro was appointed by Gov. Tawes Wednesday to succeed Judge Charles C. Marbury in Maryland's 7th Judicial Circuit.

Bowie, 47, has been an attorney investigator for the Department of Agriculture and was recommended for the appointment by State and Prince Georges County bar associations.

He will fill the vacancy created by Tawes' recent appointment of Marbury to the Maryland Court of Appeals.

Cardinal Says Dooley Prepared To Die

NEW YORK (AP)—Jungle doctor Thomas Dooley is prepared to die and "is satisfied he has served his country, his profession and his God," Francis Cardinal Spellman said Wednesday.

The Cardinal paid a birthday visit to the 34-year-old Dooley at Memorial Hospital Tuesday, and spoke of it at a Bishop's Relief Fund luncheon Wednesday.

He said the young doctor, who established hospitals in Laos and worked there until stricken with cancer, had requested the visit.

Three More Cuban Executions Reported

HAVANA (UPI) — Three ousted members of the Cuban Electrical Workers Union were executed by a firing squad Wednesday, informed sources reported. They were accused of terrorist bombings last November.

There was no immediate government announcement of the executions, which brought the number shot in the past two days to six.

Revoltuionary tribunals sentenced 16 other Cubans to prison terms ranging up to 30 years.

Twenty military tribunals were working overtime at Havana's Cabana fortress-prison trying to clear jammed dockets of a remaining 50 cases of terrorist and other anti-state activity.

Anti-Gambling Drive Backed By Catholics

WASHINGTON (AP)—A spokesman for the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Washington Wednesday offered to cooperate with Protestants "with the idea," he said, "of total abolition of gambling" as an evil affecting the community and moral life of the people.

The Very Rev. Msgr. Edward J. Herrmann, vice chancellor of the archdiocese, spoke as co-chairman of a citizens' meeting in the Methodist Building here.

The Catholic deans of three Southern Maryland counties Tuesday broke an 11-year silence by members of that faith on legalized gambling. They condemned what they called excessive use of slot machines in Southern Maryland.

Catholics and Protestants alike were called on Wednesday by Bishop John Wesley Lord, bishop of the Washington area of the Methodist Church, to fight gambling in Maryland. The support of the Catholic Archdiocese of Washington was expressed by Msgr. Herrman, who said Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle is anxious to "cooperate with like minded people."

Msgr. Herrmann said the church's policy is to seek the cooperation of its lay organizations. "We pledge our support," he said.

Rape-Slayer's Execution Set Early In March

BALTIMORE (AP) — Execution date was set Wednesday for a Baltimore man convicted of raping and strangling three women.

Criminal Court Judges James K. Cullen and Joseph L. Carter set the week of March 6 for the execution of Nathaniel Lipscomb, a Negro.

Lipscomb was convicted last Feb. 18 of the three rape-murders, but sentencing was delayed while the case was carried to the State Court of Appeals. The high court last month affirmed the conviction.

The court ruled that while Lipscomb was mentally deficient he was legally sane. The three victims—two of whom were white—all were murdered within a few blocks of the defendant's home.

Lipscomb, formerly of Charlotte, N.C., testified during his trial that he had ben charged with killing a woman in Charlotte but had been sent to a mental institution instead of standing trial.

Rapist Given Death Penalty

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP) — William Ralph, 27, Wednesday was sentenced to death in Maryland's gas chamber by the same three judge court which last week found him guilty of raping a 41-year-old Kensington woman.

Circuit Court Judge Thomas M. Anderson, one of the special tribunal sitting in the case, announced the death penalty as the defendant in blue prison garb stood impassively before the bench.

Ralph, a deliveryman, was convicted of raping the housewife March 21 in her home while her 5-year-old child slept in an adjoining room. He also is under indictment in the District of Columbia and in Montgomery County on other charges of rape and attempted rape.

Judge Anderson said the court was not influenced in its decision by "any other charges which might be against the defendant, about which the court has no personal knowledge."

Defense attorney Walter Moorman, asking the judges for a lesser punishment, said a bill abolishing capital punishment is scheduled to come before the present session of the Maryland General Assembly.

Moorman, whose earlier motion for a new trial for Ralph was overruled, said he would appeal.

Fraternity Zoning Row In High Court

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The Johns Hopkins University chapter of Phi Sigma Delta fraternity wants to establish a fraternity house at 3904 Canterbury Road in Baltimore.

Frank K. Poe and eight other residents in the neighborhood want to prevent it.

The whole controversy ended up in Maryland's highest court Wednesday.

The fraternity asked the high court to overthrow an order of Baltimore City Court reversing a decision of the Board of Municipal and Zoning Appeals. The zoning board had authorized the fraternity to move to the Canterbury Road residence.

The neighbors contend operation of a fraternity house would clearly violate not only the purpose but the letter of the zoning ordinance. They allege the ordinance prohibits its operation of a rooming house customarily carried on as a business in a first class residential neighborhood.

The Greek letter group said the lower court erred in finding the chief activity of the fraternity house was "the offering of room and board to members."

Former Area Man Gets Top B & O Position

A native of Lonaconing, John I. Barnes, has been promoted from comptroller to assistant vice president for finance and accounting for the B&O Railroad Company, according to Howard E. Simpson, president.

Barnes has been comptroller of the B&O since June 1, 1946. He is a past national chairman of the Accounting Division, Association of American Railroads, serves on a special AAR committee studying simplification of inter-railroad accounting, and is a member of the Express Contract Accounting Committee, representing the Eastern Railroads.

Barnes began his career with the B&O as a stenographer in the office of the division accountant at Cumberland, in August, 1913.

He was transferred to the Baltimore headquarters of the B&O in 1920 and was assigned to the comptroller's staff in 1921. In 1936 Barnes was appointed secretary to the vice president and comptroller, in 1943 was named assistant to the comptroller, and on January 1, 1946, assistant comptroller.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnes live at 508 Club Lane, Towson. They have one son, William Thomas Barnes, who is comptroller of the Johns Hopkins Hospital.

JOHN I. BARNES

Thruway Project Will Put Route 40 Tavern Out Of Business

A tavern on U. S. Route 40 atop Long Hill at the eastern outskirts of Cumberland will go out of business as a result of the new Thruway project.

The Allegany County Board of Alcoholic Beverage License Commissioners yesterday reported Mrs. Dorothy Meaders, who has operated the business for some time, has surrendered her beer license. She will be refunded part of the license fee as the full year it called for is not completed.

The tavern was known as Beck's Tavern for many years and has been located on Long Hill since the end of prohibition in the early 1930s. The highway project will require vacating the premises by February 1.

The highway will be routed to the rear of the tavern and connects a short distance downgrade to the new Cumberland Thruway approach.

The liquor board also granted an off-sale beer license to Thomas Nash, corner of Queen Street and Maryland Avenue in McCoole Nash operates a combination grocery store and service station.

A discussion was held by the board concerning the budget for the year starting June 1. Edward J. Ryan, board chairman, said the next budget will probably be in the same amount as the current $20,100 budget. Each year the board has a surplus and this money is turned over to the county.

Underwriters To Meet

The Cumberland Life Underwriters Association will meet Friday at the Central YMCA at 12:15 p. m. George Aldom, acting president, said suggestions will be welcome for improving the organization.

Man Given 2-Year Term In Robbery

Jerome Wesley Whitaker, 42, Cresaptown, yesterday was sentenced to two years in the Maryland State Penitentiary by Associate Judge W. Earle Cobey in Circuit Court.

Whitaker entered a guilty plea to a charge of armed robbery of the Warnick Market, Bedford Road, when tried before Judge Cobey last Wednesday on a criminal information. The armed robbery took place on the night of January 3.

Prior to passing sentence, Judge Cobey stated that Whitaker had entered a guilty plea to the charge and that armed robbery was one of the most serious crimes outside homicide. The jurist also commented that the state probation officer, James Lewis, had checked into Whitaker's background and the report showed the man had no previous offenses.

"Despite the good record of Whitaker and the probation officer's recommendation for leniency, I feel that the people of Allegany County are entitled to the protection of the court," Judge Cobey said.

"Even though Whitaker had a previous good record and his friends gave him good references the court had to take into consideration the seriousness of the crime," Judge Cobey remarked.

"The court has taken into consideration the probation officer's report and the good references of his neighbors in determining the length of the sentence. The maximum sentence for armed robbery is 20 years, and if Whitaker's record had been bad he ordinarily would have been given from five to 10 years in the penitentiary," the judge said.

For that reason Judge Cobey imposed the minimum sentence of two years on Whitaker.

Whitaker was taken into custody following the armed robbery when a car he was driving became stalled in a snowbank along a back road in the Lake Koon area.

GENEVA (AP) — About 60,000 persons are killed in European road accidents every year and more than half are cyclists or motorcyclists, reports the transport division of the U.N. Economic Commission for Europe.

Bridge Study Plan Backed

A resolution introduced in the West Virginia Legislature yesterday by Del. William D. Slonaker (D. Hampshire) would direct the State Roads Commission to study the possibility of building a bridge across the Potomac River between Green Spring and Oldtown.

For many years a privately owned toll bridge of the low-water type has been the only method of crossing the river at that point by vehicular traffic and pedestrians.

The West Virginia solons also received a resolution from two delegates calling for a constitutional amendment aimed at lowering the voting age from 21 to 18 years.

It takes two-thirds vote in each chamber to get the question on the ballot.

In remote parts of Scotland, the casket of a deceased person is carried out of his house, not through a door, but through an opening made in a wall. This opening is sealed up again immediately after it has served its purpose. This, so the belief goes, prevents the ghost from returning and entering the house, because the ghost knows no longer exists.

Latin America Is Waking Up

Uruguay's expulsion of the Cuban ambassador as well as the first secretary of the Russian embassy reflects Latin America's growing sensitivity to the Communist threat of Fidel Castro. Eight nations in the Western Hemisphere, including the United States, have now taken diplomatic action that in one way or another serves to isolate the Castro regime.

How these defensive measures are being received in Moscow can only be conjectured. Perhaps to the Soviets they do not lessen the psychological value of maintaining Cuba as a Red satellite 90 miles from Florida.

But as the quarantine against Castro widens, as now seems to be the prospect, the Kremlin may have to reconsider Cuba's value as a base for a Communist offensive against Latin America.

Other Latin governments which haven't acted are showing concern at the activities of the Cuban government and its blatant call to the "peoples" of all Latin America to rise up and overthrow their governments.

The addition of Uruguay to the list makes nonsense of the notion that nations which show disapproval of Castro's Cuba do so because they are American puppets. Uruguay is nobody's puppet. She is independent even of her big next-door neighbors, and proud of it.

While these precautionary efforts of individual governments may be no substitute for collective action by the full 21-nation Organization of American States, they serve notice on Castro and his Soviet sponsors that Latin America is waking up.

Washington Full Of Rumors And Turmoil On Eve Of Inauguration

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — This town presents a picture of pleasant pandemonium. It's agog with rumor, afloat with reservationless Democrats, churning with rivalry to be closest to the throne. Hospitality hostesses are chasing beds to sleep Tennesseee Williams, John Steinbeck, and the other 300 intellectuals whom Kay Halle sold to JFK as special last-minute Inauguration guests . . . Society matrons are jealously wondering how Jane Wheeler, beautiful wife of the RCA representative, managed to snare the new President for his first dinner—only eight hours after he takes the oath. Other hostesses-with-the-mostes' are wondering why the K's don't want to dine in their new official home with its retinue of liveried servants, its beautiful state dining room, its well-stocked White House larder . . . The delightful, slightly harassed Jane is also wondering why she let herself in for such a dinner. It was to be only the Kennedy family. But what a family! After the guest list rolled up to 100 she found that she had to include Bobby Kennedy's brothers-in law, the Skakels, then came the problem of the Frank Sinatra retinue which Pat and Peter Lawford imported from Hollywood. Jane finally drew the line at Sammy Davis, even if Jack's sister Pat had bussed him and called him cute at his wedding to Mai Britt . . . Nat "King" Cole was invited instead.

Ambulance For Horses

The turmoil increases. It's pleasant turmoil. Nobody really sore at anyone. After all you don't elect a Democratic President every year, especially the youngest in history. A lot of worries, though.

Maj. Gen. C. K. Gailey worries about the horses. Never been so many horses in any previous parade. So there must be an ambulance for horses. Plenty of ambulances for people who fall out along the line of march, but for the first time in history there is also a horse ambulance . . . another first: first Catholic President in history, youngest elected president in History, first horse ambulance in history . . . still another precedent: the Russians, for the first time in Communist history, offered to send a special, top-ranking envoy to the Kennedy Inauguration. The offer was turned down . . . Other people are worried about beds. Not for horses. Horses will be bedded down at the Rosecroft Raceway and various Maryland stables. P . with the deluge of Democrats pouring into a city which hasn't one empty bed in any hotel, maybe cots in schoolrooms are the answer . . . there's a lot of worry —about beds, about horses, about who'll go to which party. But nobody seems to worry much about Ambassador Menshikov's polite, insistent suggestion that he has important problems to discuss with the new administration.

Almost everyone is happy—but not everyone. Stenographers who gave up their time for JFK, volunteers who worked long hours every night mailing out Inaugural tickets were not unhappy when told they couldn't even get a free ticket. They knew the budget was tight, that Chairman Ed Foley had even persuaded the U. S. Treasury to forgive $75,000 of amusement tax money on Inaugural tickets . . . But they are unhappy when they look up at those TV stands, heated, insulated, built for the TV networks by the Inaugural Committee—free. Cost to the committee: close to $90,000 . . . and a volunteer worker can't even get a free parade ticket! . . . The networks have sold out all their commercial time, will make a killing . . . On the morning after his son was elected President, old Joe Kennedy vowed the new administration would do something about the highhanded policies of the TV networks. Instead, Leonard Reinsch, the Democrats' TV adviser, handed this bonanza to the networks. Reinsch is president of the Carolina Broadcasting Co. As Comrade Khrushchev would say: "Like putting a goat to mind the cabbage patch." . . . Khrushchev's ambassador, meanwhile, has been up to Adlai Stevenson, dined with Dean Rusk before anyone knew he was to be Secretary of State, has been quietly, insistently making it clear that there are mutual problems to discuss—soon.

Caviar Vs. Cabbage Soup

And the Inaugural parties! They range from Frank Sinatra's $100-a-ticket glamor festival to considerate Congressman Mike Kirwan's party for the Virgin Islanders and Nina Geiken's open house for the governor of Guam . . . Col. Waldron Leonard, who spread out the red carpet for the Congressional Medal of Honor winners, got 200 tickets (value $20,000) from Frank Sinatra for his glamor-gala . . . Then there's Bart Lytton, the California savings and loan mogul who spent $9,000 renovating his Los Angeles garden for one Democratic breakfast during the convention. He threw a big wingding for Kennedy-Johnson this time without the hidden microphones in his shirt by which he startles guests by talking to them 50 yards away . . . More modest is the party for Gov. Abe Ribicoff of Connecticut, New Secretary of HEW, thrown by the Connecticut Society and Bill Connole-, the Federal Power commissioner Ike fired because he was too tough on the oil-gas companies. Ike seems to love oil and gas men, dislikes consumers . . . I predict Connole will be reinstated by Kennedy.

So whirls the Inaugural merry-go-round . . . hosstesses jockeying to be there with the mostes' . . . Lobbyists maneuvering to make sure their campaign contributions are remembered. Democrats who have come a long way hilariously happy to see their man get in the White House . . . Joyous celebrations, mixed with petty, picayunish problems. America on parade—forgetting that the free world drifts . . . A few blocks away from the galas, Mrs. Robert Curry, husband unemployed, eats one meal a day so her children can eat enough beans and cabbage . . . A few miles away, Sparrow's Point steelworkers shiver in the winter winds, waiting, hoping for work. A few steps away at the Soviet Embassy, Ambassador Menshikov is also waiting — to discuss problems that won't wait —problems that begin to be acute 10 minutes after the youngest man in electoral history takes the oath as President of the United States.

Kennedy Will Not Be Master Of Nation's Fate

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — What kind of President will John F. Kennedy make? All over the world that very question is being asked. But the answer will not be found in his campaign speeches. Nor will it be obtained by analyzing his personality or career in public service.

In fact, the key isn't in Mr. Kennedy's possession at all. The following persons have the real answer:

Chinese Premier Mao Tse-tung of the Red China regime.

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Great Britain.

President Charles de Gaulle of France.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany.

These five men control the future "prestige" of the Kennedy administration. For the United States cannot go it alone—it cannot overrule its allies or force its potential enemy to retreat. The Soviet Union, moreover, can produce crisis after crisis based on disunity or differences among the Western Allies.

The notion that John Kennedy has become dictator of the world's destiny is fallacious. His hands are tied — just as were those of President Eisenhower. All the hysterical rantings of the critics about lowered "prestige" or lack of "leadership" by President Eisenhower ignores a simple fact—that the head of the American government is not the boss and that he has only one choice, between war or peace. If he chooses peace, then patience and forbearance, which are easily misjudged as weakness, can be criticized once more. Significantly, W. Averell Harriman, former ambassador to Russia and designated as ambassador-at-large in the new administration, said on a WOR radio program, taped last Friday, that Americans will have to learn to live with the "cold war" for a long time.

But Representative John W. McCormack, the Democratic Party's leader in the House of Representatives, in "Radio News Conference" on Sunday, took a different view as he accused President Eisenhower of "very weak leadership on the world level" and called for sacrifices to roll back Communist gains. He said:

'The American people in my opinion are warriors. We're not quitters. But the people should be given the truth, and they're commencing to get it now through the newspapers."

Mr. McCormack discussed Laos, Cuba, Berlin, the Congo and relations with the allies. He spoke of General de Gaulle as 'concerned with his internal problems—a courageous man, but uppermost in his mind is France internally, and he's compelled to disregard the world situation."

While not saying so directly, Mr. McCormick implied that Prime Minister Macmillan is inclined to be an appeaser. He remarked that he was sorry to say that Macmillan is "following the pathways that Chamberlain took" when the latter "gave away to Hitler in the hope that Hitler would be satisfied." Mr. McCormack added:

"And Hitler showed that the road of appeasement is the road to war. We need firmness. It means one has got to be capable and have to take the calculated risk of action and firmness against the calculated risk of inaction."

This is an almost exact description of the art of "brinkmanship" for which the late John Foster Dulles was roundly denounced and ridiculed by many of the speakers of the Democratic Party. Questioned about this, Mr. McCormack said that he had been one of the "strongest admirers" of Mr. Dulles's foreign policy in the last two years before the latter's death.

The House Democratic majority leader also declared that defense expenditures should be stepped up because "that's a message to the Communists, to Khrushchev and them, that they understand." He added:

"If they understand that President Kennedy is doing his own homework, is making his own decisions, and when he makes decisions, he means it, that's the language they understand. That will do more to create the spirit, bring back the unity among our allies. It'll stop countries from being neutral."

What does it all mean? That Mr. Kennedy is going to try to lay down the law to our allies and tell them they must conform to American "leadership"? Does it mean he will threaten Khrushchev with war if necessary? One wonders how he is going to get the Communists out of Africa and keep them from more aggressions in Southeast Asia. Will it be by offering more money to the "neutrals"?

How, moreover, will Mr. Kennedy deal with Communist infiltration in the United States—by supporting James Roosevelt's efforts in the House to cut down the money used by the House Committee on Un-American Activities to uncover Communist operations in our own schools and colleges and to expose their efforts to undermine institutions here and throughout Latin America?

Mr. Kennedy already has many advisers. Some believe as Mr. McCormack does, while others want to hurry up and admit Red China into the United Nations and retreat on the Quemoy and Matsu question. Mr. Kennedy has the sympathy and best wishes of many citizens who want neither war nor appeasement but, instead, a policy of armed patience in the face of deliberate provocations to war.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Second Tier

As the sprawling, unorganized American Government is constituted, great significance must be attached to the Second Tier, that is the Under Secretaries and the Assistant Secretaries. They constitute, as a rule, the actual administrative heads of government. John Faster Dulles, for instance, played an important role in the affairs of the world, but he could not move about at his pace and be familiar with the actual daily operations of his department. The real work was being done down the line and the day-by-day decisions of deskmen faced both Dulles and Eisenhower with faits accomplis.

Franklin D. Roosevelt recognized that. His first Secretary of State was Cordell Hull, a delightful gentleman, opposed to a high tariff and barely interested in Roosevelt's fast moving activities. There is ample evidence that Roosevelt did not keep him informed. However, Roosevelt appointed as Assistant Secretaries men who were close to him, Raymond Moley, A. A. Berle, Jr., Sumner Welles. He operated the State Department through the men on the Second Tier.

The Cabinet has been losing its significance because of the existence of the National Security Council where the really meaningful decisions of our times are made; secondly, the President is dependent for advice upon experts, often men outside of government. Increasingly these experts are non-political personalities, university professors or businessmen or even clergymen who specialize in particular fields.

John Kennedy's Second Tier will include an extraordinary number of academicians, for whom he apparently has great respect, although they are often unrelated to the world about them. When they are not excessively objective, they become fanatical about some favored dogma. Their knowledge has often not been tempered by the fires of experience and they tend to accept the findings of other scholars as perfection depending upon the man's qualifications in terms of degrees and academic honors. Nevertheless, private enterprise has, of course, found the engineer and geologist and researcher worth their weight in gold when they stick to what they know.

The Kennedy Second Tier seems to be made up mostly of intellectuals. Of course, Chester Bowles, who will be Under Secretary of State, is not strictly within this category, he having earned his means by being an advertising man, generally referred to as a huckster. Nevertheless, Bowles comes of an amazingly brilliant family from Springfield, Massachusetts, whose best known member was Samuel Bowles, in his time one of the outstanding editors in the United States. Chester Bowles will fit in well with the Second Tier intellectuals.

What needs to be watched carefully is what Kennedy does with the Independent Agencies, the powerful carbuncles which have become attached to the Executive branch of the government but which usurp the power of Congress by regulations, the decisions of the courts by their own semi-judicial decisions and which act with full Executive powers. The Independent Agencies have received their basic authority from Congress but these have been expanded by their regulations and by their decisions. The Hoover Reports propose their reorganization; the recent Landis Report is even stronger.

On the whole, the men appointed to these Independent Agencies which exercise such vast powers are mediocre persons who work in technical fields for which few of them are technically equipped. Too many of them have in the past used membership on an Independent Agency as a stepping stone to private industry. There can be little question but that during the Kennedy Administration many changes will be made in the Independent Agencies.

Thus far, there have been no Cabinet appointments Second Tier appointments over which Congress will make a great fuss. However, the fights will come when legislation is proposed. The Conservatives in Congress have already shown their claws and the Kennedy forces wisely backed away from a fight before he actually sat in the White House. The Republican-Democratic Conservative coalition, founded by Senators Robert A. Taft and Harry Byrd, seems to be numerically larger than in either the Truman or Eisenhower Administrations. Cabinet appointments have, on the whole, been Conservative; Second Tier appointments have, on the whole, been Liberal. It will be interesting to see what this pattern turns out to be. The descriptions, Conservative and Liberal, mean so little in American political affairs, that it is impossible to draw a fixed conclusion from them. Only acts will show what is the complexion of this Administration. At present, the most that can be said is that it is ideologically mixed.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

OVERSIGHT—The oddly-named House Committee on Legislative Oversight has now gone out of business. That was the group that exposed the television quiz scandals and ended Sherman Adams' tenure as assistant President by airing his relationship with Boston financier Bernard Goldfine.

In the context of the title, oversight meant just that—to determine what the legislators may have missed in setting up the federal regulatory agencies, such as the FCC, SEC, etc.

Now, James M. Landis has reported to President-elect Kennedy that a White House office of oversight should be created to coordinate the work of the regulatory commissions.

However, in this case, Landis' use of the word oversight, means oversee. Thus, the odd use of the word is apt to be perpetuated in the reorganization of the federal government.

HELP DISABLED — A private armaments company near Washington is successfully utilizing disabled persons from the National Orthopedic Hospital is reconditioning wartime guns which are being resold to sportsmen.

The men, many of whom have not been able to find employment elsewhere, are paid for their effort. But the real benefit to them comes from the experience and the realization that they can do productive work.

Members of Congress and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare are watching the experiment closely for a possible key to the rehabilitation of millions of disabled persons.

Guns may, after all, be the means to happiness for many handicapped persons.

Death Of An Authentic

By John Crosby

Dashiell Hammett, who died the other day, was that rare thing — a shaker of the earth, an authentic. "The Maltese Falcon" was one of the best books of its kind ever written. It struck the publishing world and the reading world — which is something entirely distinct from the literary world — like a thunderclap. Nothing has been the same since.

Realism. Vigor. Vitality. Callousness. Immortality. Amorality. Muscular. Hard-boiled. They were all the words applied to Hammett at various times. But authentic fits him better. He'd been a Pinkerton for eight years and when he created Sam Spade he knew what he was talking about. Sam Spade's toughness was deep as his own marrow. It came as a shock to the readers but not to the trade. After all Hammett had been there. When Spade made love to a girl and later rifled her purse in pursuit of evidence, it was perhaps not the particular chain of events customary to the average caper, but the mortality of his hero and, of his private detective profession, was explicitly real.

Then came the imitators. Today the television air is full of imitation Sam Spades. As a matter of fact, they are imitations of an imitation: the "77 Sunset Strip" and the rest of them are now distilled by a whole batch of Hollywood hacks who have never been inside a police station. The stuff is turned out like salt water taffy now, rather sexy and violent stuff, but nevertheless as commercial as anything sold at Atlantic City. Only the corruption remains; the talent has long since fled. From Sam Spade, the terse, the laconic, the real, we went to Mike Hammer, who is something written on a men's room wall.

Hammett himself fell athwart the investigators and did a stretch in prison for contempt. Toward the end of his life he wrote not at all, though his earnings must always have been large. Few people have shaped popular fiction quit so deeply Much of what followed in the wake of Sam Spade must have disgusted him.

Has the pendulum of popular adventure fiction swung? Or is it swinging, somewhere else?

The other day I read 'The Nylon Pirates" by Nicholas Monsarrat, a very expert writer (as opposed to a bloody genius like Hammett). "The Nylon Pirates" is not anything that will win the Nobel Prize but it has been on the best seller list for some time and I find it significant. It's a story about a gang of con men and women who invade a luxury cruise with intent to shake down the passengers by sex, blackmail, gambling, even a little simple theft, if necessary.

It's a movie script, really, but a good one. But what caught my eye was the locale. A luxury liner? Perhaps we're getting out of the bedrooms, out of the police stations, out of the back alleys. And high time. This is the closest thing that has come along to E. Phillips Oppenheim in this field in a long time. Oppenheim would have had more mystery and less sex.

But Oppenheim would have reveled in the luxury liner, the rich passengers, the gentility of the skullduggery, and the grooming of the women. This is salt water taffy too, but it's a different variety and, to me, at least, it's welcome.

Monsarrat, for instance, is an excellent story-teller and I think a pretty good reporter. I say I think because I don't really know very much about luxury cruises. I doubt that I'll ever be able to afford the time for one of these things and I'm sure I'll never have that much money. Monsarrat, who appears to know his way around ships, as Hammett knew his around police blotters, gives you a lot of entracing detail about how such a cruise is conducted.

The real trend in the popular adventure field seems to be the scenery. First here was "The Numbered Account" which was a rather tepid adventure mystery, but full of marvelous Swiss scenery. 'The Nylon Pirates" is loaded with scenery — the Caribbean, the Cape, South Africa.

The movies started this passion for exotic scenery. Now the popular authors are rolling in description. The scenery hasn't exactly taken the play away from sex but is competing with it and it seems to have diminished the interest in violence, thank God.

What To Eat After Gall Bladder Removal?

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The gall bladder is a sucker for infections and is a past master at forming stones. The combination creates an uncomfortable abdomen and it is little wonder that the victim wants the trouble-maker removed as soon as possible.

The organ's main job is to concentrate and store the bile that is manufactured 24 hours a day by the liver. The ferment is stored because it is needed only when fats and oils are consumed. At such times the sac contracts and bile trickles into the intestine, where it aids in the digestion of this type of food.

But these functions are lost when the organ is diseased and clogged with stones. In this respect the surgeon eliminates a source of irritation by a useless structure. What replaces the gall bladder following surgery? The bile ducts of the liver take over by enlarging to store and process the digestant.

These ducts do an excellent job, considering the satisfactory results. Removal of any organ is followed by a period of adjustment to regain strength and energy. It is advisable to increase activity but avoid fatigue.

Those who followed a gall bladder diet before surgery are anxious to know when they can eat fried eggs, gravy, onions, cabbage, or a luscious cake. There is no reason why they cannot begin as soon as they feel up to par. After all, the greasy and fried foods, as well as rich pastries and gas forming vegetables, are omitted to spare the ailing gall bladder. Now that it is out, there is no need to do so.

But don't toss out the diet on the first day. Add one at a time because fats, greasy dishes, and fried foods are not the most digestible, and many persons with a normal gall bladder cannot tolerate them. You have the green light if they "set well" and cause no indigestion.

(Dr. Van Dellen will send leaflet on gall bladder if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request).

TOMORROW: Acne products.

DANCING AT 84

J. B. R. writes: I recently read where an 84-year-old man is still dancing and attributes his pep to eating two raw eggs every morning. Do you recommend raw eggs for this purpose?

REPLY

There is no reason to believe that raw eggs have a rejuvenating power. Most elderly persons attribute their longevity to something they do or don't do. The reasons are so numerous and conflicting they lose their meaning. Great-grandpa neglects to mention his family background, good humor, and a lifelong practice of moderation in all things.

STRICT FATHER

M. P. writes: The father of a 5½ year old boy won't permit the youngster to cry or whimper when hurt. Won't this child's personality be warped by having to bottle up his emotions in this way?

REPLY

Not unless the Spartan treatment creates undue anxiety, tension, fear, frustration, or other emotional reactions.

FINGER NODULE

G. E. C. writes: What is trigger finger?

REPLY

In this condition, a nodule develops in the tendon that interferes with the movement of the finger.

WHERE'S THE BRANDY?

P. F. writes: Is blackberry brandy good for diarrhea?

REPLY

Yes, but there are more effective remedies.

CATARACT IN AGED

E. L. writes: Is 95 too old to be operated on for cataract?

REPLY

No, provided the nonagenarian is in fairly good health.

To the limit of space questions pertinent to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

When Edwin Corle was collecting material for an authoritative book on the Grand Canyon, he visited a remote settlement of Havasupai Indians, and being a thorough and systematic worker, he made a detailed study of Havasupai tribal rites and customs before he set out. Thus equipped, he was able to hail the first proud warrior he encountered with a hearty "Tchew Ko-Mew!"

The proud warrior, unfortunately, was too engrossed in listening to an Ella Fitzgerald recording on the radio to execute the elaborate Havasupai welcoming ceremony.

What he said, in fact, and very casually, too, was, "Hi, Butch."

An important literary critic has been hitting the bottle hard of late. His wife now keeps several just-published novels open on the floor so he'll have something to read when he falls on his face.

Gov. Barron Asks Passage Of Income Tax

By BILL BARRETT

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Gov. W. W. Barron put it squarely up to the West Virginia Legislature Wednesday. He asked for enactment of an income tax to finance the bulk of his program to pull the Mountain State's economy up by its bootstraps.

And the legislative leadership generally agreed this was the logical approach to gaining more revenue for the state's coffers. However, Republican leaders said the legislature should proceed with caution.

The income tax, based on a percentage of federal income tax payments, plus "small increases" in gross sales tax rates, would provide $17.5 million as outlined by the governor. The income tax would produce all but $2.5 million of that amount.

With this new money Barron proposed to begin construction of a North-South superhighway from Morgantown to Beckley, give a "modest" pay raise to both public school and college teachers, and set up a new state agency to concentrate on bringing new industry into the state.

Details of the income tax legislation were not spelled out by Barron. However, he referred to it as the recommendation of the State Tax Study Commission. Their proposal, made public less than a month ago, would be based on a percentage of an individual's federal income tax payments.

Fast Action Sought

The program was outlined by Barron in his initial appearance before the legislature. It came two days after his inauguration as West Virginia's 26th governor.

He asked "immediate enactment" of his proposals. Bills to implement the requests were expected to be introduced Thursday and Monday after a long weekend recess for the presidential inauguration.

"There should be no time wasted bickering over personalities," he said. "Our work transcends partisan politics...the complete cooperation of the minority should be earnestly enlisted."

House Speaker Julius Singleton and Senate President Howard Carson said they would work for the Barron program.

Senate Minority Leader John E. Carrigan, R-Marshall questioned "the wisdom of asking the legislature to pass" major new taxes at this time and suggested the state should wait to see what the federal government would do for the state. House Minority Leader George H. Seibert Jr., R-Ohio, said he wanted to know details of the income tax plan before commenting on it.

Barron asked for an additional $8.3 million for the State Road Commission. With this amount he said the commission could be put on a "pay-as-you-go" basis and free a similar amount of money for 50-50 matching funds to begin construction of the North-South highway.

By combining the State Industrial and Publicity Commission, the Economic Development Agency, and the publicity division of the Conservation Commission, and their budget requests, only $155,000 in new money would be needed to operate his proposed Department of Commerce at $500,000 a year.

Loans For Industry

He suggested $1.5 million be pumped into the public school system for teacher salary hikes and another $2 million into colleges and West Virginia University. To do any more, he said, would necessitate "a tremendous increase in tax revenue."

A new Industrial Development Authority which would provide loans to help new industry locate in the state, and patterned after a similar plan now operating in Pennsylvania, would take $3 million, he said.

Barron asked that the re-training program for unemployed workers, for which $400,000 is being spent this fiscal year, be stepped up by increasing the allocation to a half-million dollars next year.

Two Youths Given Suspended Terms

Two local youths yesterday were given suspended sentences in the Maryland Training School for Boys in the theft of two guns from a local home.

Magistrate Paul W. Barnett found the two boys guilty of being delinquent minors and placed them on strict probation.

City Police arrested the youths in connection with the breaking and entering and theft of two guns from the home of Liola Myers, 2 South Terrace. The guns, valued at $90, were recovered by police.

Fourth Building Permit Issued

George Kearchner, Michigan Avenue, Homewood Addition, yesterday obtained the fourth building permit issued so far this year by James G. Stevenson, clerk to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

Mr. Kearchner plans to build a 26 by 32-foot frame dwelling in Election District 20 at a cost of $7,000.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—Jackie Gleason comes to Hollywood sooner than expected, to co-star with Paul Newman and Piper Laurie in "The Hustler" at 20th Century-Fox. That Jackie should wind up at 20th is a surprise considering the disagreement they had over Gleason's pet project "Gigot," which was called off.

Now, all is sunshine and roses about "The Hustler" which starts the end of February with Robert Rossen producing and directing. Jackie plays a character named Minnesota Fats, a gambler who takes over a pool hustler (Paul Newman).

20th Production chief Bob Goldstein tells me "Hustler" will be filmed partly in New York and partly in Hollywood.

Surprised to hear that Carol Lynley's bridegroom Mike Selsman has left the publicity department at 20th in New York and taken a similar post at Paramount. Even so, it's hard for me to believe that Carol has told 20th she wants to honeymoon for a year with Mike without making another Hollywood movie. But the studio apparently is taking her at her word, at least about "High Heels."

Director Robert Parrish has sent the script to 19-year-old Deborah Walley, the girl who is creating so much excitement around Columbia in her debut in "Gidget Goes Hawaiian." Two star roles in a row could make a star of Deborah.

Before Bobby Darin could get around to starring himself in his independent set-up, Paramount grabbed him to co-star with Stella Stevens in "Too Late Blues," a story about the music world but an out-and-out drama.

Bobby considers himself lucky in getting this assignment because he will be under the guidance of John Cassavetes, fine actor and director who will be helpful to Sandra Dee's bridegroom. Cassavetes' movie, "Shadows," produced on a $40,000 shoestring, was the sensation of the Venice Film Festival. "Too Late Blues" also marks his debut on the Paramount lot, operating as a producer as well as director.

In Las Vegas: Jack Entratter, who had his heart set on going to Washington to attend the inaugural ceremonies and help Frank Sinatra in any way with the pre-inagural gala, won't be able to go. Jack was thrown off his horse and sprained his back so badly he had to cancel out—and, of course, his devoted Dorothy isn't going, either. Luckily, X-rays revealed no broken bones but my guess is Jack won't be riding this nag, given him by Vic Damone, in the future.

Despite his disappointment at missing the inagural excitement, Jack gave permission to Joey Bishop (headlining the show at the Sands with Frankie Avalon) to plane to Washington to join Sinatra and appear in the show. Also, Al Freeman, public relations man for the Sands, went along to help Frankie and represent Jack.

The dress Keely Smith is wearing to the inaugural ball sounds like she'll be a dream walking in the gorgeous gown Berman of Hollywood made for her. Louis Prima said she has never worn such a spectacularly beautiful dress. Keely described it as "white, with bugle beads, and a long flowing chiffon skirt with white, and light green shaded to dark emerald ostrich feathers."

Louis and Keely are entertaining in Washington with the Frank Sinatra group. I caught their really excellent act at the Desert Inn. Wilbur Clark let them off their last week so that they could go to Washington.

With us at the Desert Inn was Andy Williams, who follows Louis and Keely into this nitery. He brought Claudine Longet, the cutest little French girl who is the head dancer at the Tropicana, and said he's going to borrow her when he and his three brothers put on their spectacular. Andy and Claudine held hands and seem genuinely fond of each other. But the night before, Andy and Hope Lange were a twosome at the Paul Anka opening.

Andy told me he was so nervous following two such performers as Keely and Louis that Jack Benny gave him a joke and told him if he got laughs from it, Andy could send him $25.

Policeman Suspended From Force 10 Days

A local policeman has been suspended from the Cumberland Police Department for 10 days for alleged insubordination, Chief B. Frank Gaffney said yesterday.

Harold E. Gibson, 206 East Laing Avenue, was suspended as of Tuesday this week, according to Chief Gaffney, who said the policeman has the right to appeal his case to the Civil Service Board five days after he received his notice of suspension.

The charge, he added, was preferred by Lt. Donald H. Smith, officer in charge of the 5 p. m. to 1 a. m. shift Tuesday.

Two W. Va. Men Found Suffocated

LOGAN, W. Va. (UPI) — The bodies of two unemployed middle-aged men were found Wednesday in a room they shared in an apartment house here.

Authorities said they suffocated as a result of an unvented water heater consuming oxygen in the room. The victims were identified as Harry McDonald and Lewis Thompson.

A friend of Thompson found the bodies when he went to the room, rented by Thompson, to visit him.

Harold E. Neely Has Heart Attack

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—Harold E. Neely of Hinton, the unsuccessful Republican nominee for governor in the Nov. 8 election, is making "a very nice response" to treatment for a heart condition, doctors say.

Neely, 42, had not been feeling well since Sunday and was admitted to Charleston Memorial Hospital Monday. He had attended the inauguration of Gov. W. W. Barron earlier that day.

Neely served as insurance commissioner and as commissioner of public institutions under former Gov. Cecil H. Underwood.

W. Va. Legislature Heads To Push Gov. Barron's State Income Tax Plan

By CARLO J. SALZANO

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Leaders of the West Virginia Legislature indicated Wednesday they would do all they could to push through Gov. W. W. Barron's state income tax proposal, however, distasteful the idea is.

As Senate President Howard Carson, D-Fayette, put it:

"It would be nice if it were otherwise, but it is obvious we are going to have to increase revenue in order to increase services. And the income tax seems to be the source by which the majority of the people are in favor."

There is certain to be some loud, possibly powerful, opposition to an income tax, and Barron obviously anticipated this in his legislative address. "There will be differences," he said, "but let us develop patience and understanding as we work."

House Speaker Julius Singleton, D-Monongalia, described Barron's revenue request of $17.5 million as "realistic" and praised the governor for his "sincerity," while sidestepping a direct observation on the income tax.

Floor Leader Cautious

Both Carson and Singleton said they would work for the Barron program.

House Majority Leader W. T. Brotherton, D-Kanawha, was not so quick to go all-out for the Barron plan, but emphasized that "the governor has made a conscientious effort to solve many of the state's pressing problems." Brotherton added, "In order to raise $17.5 million, it will be necessary not only to consider the income tax but all other possible revenue sources."

Senate Majority Leader William Moreland, D-Monongalia, observed, "We have to have money and every effort should be made to determine whether the income tax should be invaded by the state without creating an undue burden on the employe and the employer."

Senate Judiciary Chairman Arch Riley, D-Ohio, said Barron "showed us the method to finance the cure" to our problems and "I personally will do everything I can" to get his proposals enacted.

Senate Finance Chairman Hans McCourt, D-Webster, was probably the most enthusiastic about the Barron plan. "I'm highly in favor of the governor's requests," he said. "He offered a good program and I think we can get it through."

There appeared to be some misgivings on the part of House Finance Chairman Ivor Boiarsky, D-Kanawha. "If we have to raise money, the income tax is one way to do it," he commented.

Would Delay Action

Republicans, as expected, were far from enthusiastic. One veteran senator, Ted Bowers, R-Wetzel, said flatly, "I think there are other better methods of raising revenues. I don't think the administration and the State Tax Study Commission gave sufficient consideration to other tax-raising methods."

Senate Minority Leader John E. Carrigan, R-Marshall, questioned "the wisdom of asking the legislature to pass $17.5 million of additional tax burdens on the citizens of the state at this time without careful study as to what, if anything, the federal government will do to assist the unemployed of West Virginia."

House Minority Leader George Seibert, R-Ohio, paid tribute to Barron for providing "a complete analysis" of the state's problems, for offering "concrete proposals and a method of financing them," and for the "determined manner" in which he made his presentation. But Seibert said he wanted to know the details of the income tax plan before commenting on it specifically.

Sen. Joseph Handlan, R-Wood, like Bowers, said he is against an income tax. "The federal government rather substantially occupies the field of income taxes," he said. Handlan did, however, endorse Barron's idea of a "pay-as-you-go" road program as "realistic."

Religious Survey Completed At PSC

Religions with less than ten affiliates include: Jewish, Pentecostal, Unitarian, Christian Scientists, Orthodox, Protestant Reformed, Moslem, Assembly of God, and First Evangelical and Reform.

Club Meets Today

MT. SAVAGE — The Mt. Savage Homemakers will meet at 7:30 p. m. in St. George's parish hall.

Barton UFO To Nominate

The meeting opened with prayer by the group. James Mowbray, treasurer, gave his report. Joseph Shuhart, secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting. Reports were heard from board members.

Mr. Mowbray reported that several boxes of clothing have been donated to the organization to be given out where needed. He picked a nominating committee of three. They are Mrs. Verda L. Michael, Mrs. Francis Mowbray, and Mrs. David Clark.

The next meeting will be held February 21 at 7:30 p. m. The public is invited to attend this meeting. Officers and board members will be elected at this meeting.

Three Old Bills Revived In W. Va. Legislature

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The West Virginia Legislature Wednesday received three bills that have been killed repeatedly in past sessions, including one that would levy a severance tax on natural resources.

Dels. Roy Lee Harmon, D-Raleigh, and Marshall West, D-Wyoming, proposed to levy a tax of 20 cents a ton on coal, 40 cents a barrel on oil and 2 cents per thousand cubic feet on natural gas production.

Another bill introduced again this year would subject to the gross sales tax such professional people as doctors, lawyers and engineers.

The third bill would repeal the soft drink tax, a measure that provides about $3.5 million annually, at the rate of a penny a bottle, for support of the Medical School at West Virginia University.

Extension of the gross sales tax to professions would raise an estimated $350,000 a year, based on a rate of 1 per cent of income over $5,000. The bill was sponsored by Dels. D. P. Given, D-Webster, and Cecil Mitchell, D-Mingo.

Del. Callie Tsapis, D-Hancock, submitted a revised bill calling for the reapportionment of membership in the House of Delegates based on the 1960 census. This one would keep the total number of delegates at 100, but would give Hancock and Wood Counties one additional delegate each and Kanawha County two more.

Under this measure, McDowell County would lose two delegates and Fayette and Logan one each.

Del. Dan Wells, D-Mercer, submitted a bill to revise and clarify laws pertaining to the amounts of fees justices of the peace and constables may charge in civil cases.

Over-Crowding Depletes Deer Herds, Survey Shows

ANNAPOLIS, Well-fed deer can and do die because of overcrowding, even though they have sufficient food, reports an article by Drs. John J. Christian, Vagn Flyger and David E. Davis in the latest issue of Chesapeake Science. Furthermore, according to the same report, this type of mortality has occurred in a herd of Maryland deer.

These facts are the result of a six-year study of sika deer on James Island, Dorchester County, supported jointly by the Naval Medical Research Institute, the National Heart Institute, the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission and the Maryland Department of Research and Education.

It has been found that from an introduction of four to five Japanese sika deer on the island in 1916, the herd grew to number from 280 to 300 deer in 1957; a density of one deer per acre. After reaching this point a mass mortality took place in the winter of 1958 resulting in a loss of 60 per cent of the herd. Examinations of dead and dying deer in the field, plus laboratory autopsies, indicated that they were in a good nutritional condition up to the time of death, were not poisoned and were not diseased. It was shown that the high concentration of deer produced stress on important glandular functions. Crowding produced over-stimulation leading to serious damage to the adrenal gland. In turn, other normal body processes were impaired, resulting in death to the deer. Following reduction of the herd through this massive die-off, the remainder of the deer assumed normal existence but in greatly reduced numbers.

According to Dr. L. Eugene Cronin, director of the Maryland Department of Research and Education, the results of this and other studies on deer being conducted in his department are being turned over to the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission to help in designing a good management and deer harvest plan in Maryland.

Council Favors Fluoridation At Piedmont

PIEDMONT—The Town Council unanimously went on record for fluoridation of drinking water and to proceed with the project when funds are available.

City fathers took this action following talks by Dr. Lawrence Fanti, local dentist; Dr. James H. Wolverton Jr., William Devens, Jack Mullen, Westernport, attorney and James McHenry.

Dr. Fanti stated that where it has been used, it was 65 per cent effective and does not injure anyone when it is used in water by 1 part per million.

Dr. Fanti, also said the some persons objecting to it opposed chlorination, pasteurization, and immunization.

Dr. Wolverton stated 78 per cent of the citizens of the state drink fluoridated water and that West Virginia in its use was higher than most states.

Devens stated the cost would be about 81 cents per day which would be about $295.65 per year. The cost of providing the equipment would be about $1,000. The machine would cost $750; a tester $130 and the remainder for installation charges.

Mayor Rodney Baker reported to the Council that two fire plugs on Orchard Street do not provide enough water in case of fire as there is only a four-inch line there.

Running a six-inch line from Second and Third to Orchard would solve the problem, council agreed.

The new fire siren has arrived. It was suggested that a concrete block platform be built in the rear of the fire house of Tri-Towns Fire Company to place it on. The matter will be taken up with the fire company.

Joseph Maybury, town clerk, reported that 394 garbage cards for this quarter had been sold which is short by 125 cards usually sold.

No garbage will be picked up this week unless a card has been purchased and prominently displayed so men collecting garbage can see it.

Prayers To Give President-Elect Divine Guidance Asked by Legion

On the eve of the inauguration of President John F. Kennedy, the American Legion has called its network of 17,000 local posts to spur nationwide prayers asking God to give the new president "the strength, wisdom and guidance necessary to carry out his duties."

Russell R. McRobie, Commander of Kelly Mansfield Post #52, U. S. American Legion at Piedmont, West Virginia stated that this measure has been urged by the Legion's National Executive Committee.

Commander McRobie said a letter urging participation had been sent to all clergymen in this area, with the hope that each would include suitable prayers in their services this week-end.

"Although the American Legion is a completely non-sectarian organization", Commander McRobie said, "the organization was founded on broad religious principles and believes that a deep and abiding faith in God is basic to American life."

Charleston Tosses In Towel As AA Team This Year

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—Charleston, the smallest city in triple A baseball, has decided to sit out the 1961 American Association season because of money troubles.

The Senators, operated as a community-owned club last season, finished with in the standings and last in home attendance—95,000 as compared with 163,000 in the pennant-winning year of 1958. Last year's operating loss ran more than $80,000.

Charleston's withdrawal Tuesday night saved the American Associaton the problem of searching for an eighth club. Only six remain for 1961—Omaha, Denver, Louisville, Houston, Dallas and Indianapolis. Houston leaves next year for the National League.

Charleston (pop. 85,796) is the second community-owned Triple-A club to throw in the towel because of financial woes. Sacramento of the Pacific Coast League struck out earlier. The PCL preserved its eight-team status by taking in Honolulu.

Low Scoring Predicted In Crosby Open

Venturi Defends $50,000 Crown

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Warm, sunny weather on this Monterey Peninsula Wednesday brought predictions of low scoring in the $50,000 Bing Crosby Golf Tournament when Ken Venturi begins defense of his title Thursday.

Storms usually increase the difficulties in this 72-hole event played over three courses, but the weatherman says it will be clear at least through Saturday.

In this exacting golf test, long-shots seldom come through as the winner so the pre-tourney favorites are such stars as Venturi, Arnold Palmer, Art Wall and Jay Hebert. All except Palmer have won here and Arnold, golfer-of-the-year 1960, arrives after winning the past week's tournament at San Diego.

The Crosby actually combines two tournaments in one—the pro-amateurs and individual pro. In the former, the amateur's handicap can help the team. Groat gets 9 strokes, Dark 6, and Ward 4.

The field of 300 plays each of the three courses—Pebble Beach, Cypress Point and Monterey Peninsula with 50 teams touring each course the first three days. Sunday's televised final will be over Pebble Beach.

GRAVESEND, England (AP)—Two golf balls, hit from different tees, collided in the air—and Gravesend golfers were wondering Wednesday if it's a world record.

MIAMI (AP)—Roving Minstrel, a leading candidate for Hialeah's $100,000 Flamingo Stakes, was destroyed by a veterinarian Wednesday to end the pain of a brain concussion.

The bay colt suffered the concussion Tuesday, when he fell in the walking ring by his barn. His hind legs buckled when he reared and he toppled backward, his head striking the ground.

ACC Scoring Race Close

Five Players Vie For Top Average

A 33-point outburst against Clemson Monday night shot Len Chappell of Wake Forest into the lead. The 6-8, 240-pound Deacon junior is averaging 23.5 points. In his last four games he's scored 113 points.

Art Heyman of Duke, idle while Chappell was playing Monday, slipped to second place with a 23.1 average.

Others in the top five through Monday games:

York Larese, North Carolina, 22.5; Doug Moe, North Carolina, 21.2; Billy Packer, Wake Forest, 20.3. The spread from first to fifth place is only 3.2 points.

ACC Service Bureau records show Duke's Carroll Youngkin as the top field goal shooter at 60.7 per cent with Ken Rohloff of N.C. State next at 57.7.

The free throw leader is Bob McDonald of Maryland, who has an 89.4 record against Packer's 86.7 through last Saturday's games.

Moe leads rebounders with a 14.7 average.

W. Va. Frosh Lose To Pitt

29-Game Streak Snapped, 87-79

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pitt freshmen Brian Generalovich, Calvin Sheffield, and Dave Sauer comoined in the second half Wednesday night to lead the Panther Yearlings to an 87-79 victory over West Virginia. It broke a Mountaineer Frosh win streak of 29 games.

The Mountaineers started off as if to make the game a runaway and held a 42-35 lead at the intermission. At one stage of the first half they ran up a 15-point lead on the Panthers.

Pittsburgh took the lead with eight minutes left at 64-62. The Panthers then remained three to four points in front down to the final whistle. With only seconds remaining they were in front by 10 points.

Generalovich pumped in 25 points, Sheffield 21 and Sauer 17. Mike Barger was high for West Virginia with 19 while Tom Lowry contributed 18. Bill Maphis, a 6-5 West Virginia All State star for two consecutive years, had 16 points.

The Mountaineer Frosh had a 7-6 record prior to Wednesday night's game. They won 16 consecutive games last season and had not been beaten since 1959 when they bowed 77-70 to Ohio University's freshmen.

Pitt is 5-1 for the season.

Navy Swimmers Defeat Terps

Win Meet, 52-43, At College Park

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Navy's undefeated swimmers edged Maryland 52-43 Wednesday in a hard-fought meet undecided until the final relay event.

Eight records fell — five pool marks, two Maryland records and one Atlantic Coast Conference standard.

The Middies had three double winners — Gay Hopkins in the 220-yard and 440-yard freestyles, Curt Norfleet in the 50-yard and 100-yard freestyles and Don Griffin in the 200-yard medley and 200-yard breaststroke.

Dave Fleming and Tom Wingate gave the best performances of their careers for Maryland. Fleming set a Maryland record of 2 minutes, 16.4 seconds in the 200-yard butterfly, and Wingate won the 200-yard backstroke in 2:18.7.

It was the fourth triumph for Navy. Maryland, defending Atlantic Coast Conference champion, is now 6-2. It was the first loss for the Terps in their home pool since Navy defeated them in 1959.

Maryland swam without the services of its star performer, Ray Ostrander, who is suffering from a shoulder injury.

New Pittsburgh Team Pulls Out Of Cage League

Sharman Dispute Cited As Reason

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh pulled out of the Natonal Basketball Association Wednesday after a stay of less than 24 hours.

In announcing the club's withdrawal, franchise owner John Harris said he was sure he could "find some other way to invest a quarter of a million dollars in something new wtihout so many headaches."

The NBA just Tuesday night had announced that it would expand from 8 to 10 teams in the 1961-62 season with new clubs in Chicago and Pittsburgh. Harris had been awarded the Pittsburgh franchise.

The ice show impressario said he had decided to go into basketball only because he thought he had hired Bill Sharman as his coach. Sharman is a veteran backcourt star of the league's Boston Celtics.

However, both Sharman and Celtic owner Walter Brown denied Harris' announcement that Sharman would be the Pittsburgh coach.

"I either jumped the gun or misunderstood Walter when I made the announcement," Harris said. "This mix-up on the Sharman deal convinces me that I know nothing about basketball or the NBA. That's why I'm pulling out."

Harris, who heads the Pittsburgh ice hockey club which returns to the American Hockey League next season, said he sent a telegram to NBA President Maurice Podoloff, informing him of Pittsburgh's withdrawal.

When informed in New York of Harris' action, Podoloff said he thought it was all the result of a misunderstanding.

"I think that after a cooling off period, we still may be able to reach an agreement between Mr. Harris and Mr. Brown," Podoloff said.

Van Brocklin To Coach New Minnesota Vikings Team

Colorful Star Of NFL Signs 3-Year Pact

Closes Out Career Of 12 Years As A Player In Circuit

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP)—Norm Van Brocklin, the colorful Dutchman who carried the Philadelphia Eagles to the National Football League championship, Wednesday was named head coach of the new Minnesota Vikings.

Van Brocklin's appointment under a three-year contract ended a four-month quest by the Vikings for an established pro football figure to direct them in their inaugural year in the NFL.

He steps into the coaching ranks three days after his valedictory as a player. Appearing in the East - West NFL All-Star game Sunday the 34-year-old quarterback hurled three touchdown passes.

Salary Undisclosed

Salary terms were not revealed.

Van Brocklin becomes one of the youngest head coaches in the NFL. Behind him is a 12-year career of professional stardom that was climaxed in 1960 with the Eagles' championship.

"Among Norm's greatest qualities as a player," Vikings General Manager Bert Rose said, "is his demonstrated ability of leadership. As a new team in a tough league the Vikings will require the maximum degree of leadership and direction of a squad that will be youthful in its makeup."

Look At Rosters

One of his first chores, he said, would be to take a hard look at the NFL rosters to help in the selection of 36 players who will be made available to the Vikings as their bedrock talent for the 1961 season.

Van Brocklin's appointment came less than two weeks after he severed connections with the Eagles, irritated at not being offered the head coaching job to succeed the retiring Buck Shaw.

The Dutchman contends he was promised the Eagles' No. 1 job three years ago when he joined the club. He refused an offer earlier this month to be playing assistant coach with the Eagles.

Fullmer, Robinson Don't Want Draw

WEST JORDAN, Utah (AP)—Gene Fullmer says he has figured out how to get around Nevada's boxing laws, if Sugar Ray Robinson is sincere in wanting to avoid another draw.

Fullmer suggested Wednesday, mainly for the record, that if the Feb. 25 bout in Las Vegas is a draw, the boxers rest 30 minutes and fight another 15 rounds.

Robinson fought the NBA middleweight champion to a draw in Los Angeles Dec. 3. He asked Nevada officials to provide for a sudden-death round should the Las Vegas bout end the same way.

Nevada Athletic Commissioner Jim Deskin told Robinson that state law prohibits a fight of more than 15 rounds.

Fullmer's manager, Marv Jenson, says the NBA titlist is sincere about this one being a fight to the finish. And the Fullmer-Jenson camp reported new reasons for strengthening Gene's hold on the 48-state title.

Jenson said he received a letter from German promoter Fritz Gretzschel offering Fullmer a tax-free $100,000 purse to meet European Middleweight King Gustav Scholz somewhere in Germany, probably next May.

WVU Beats Pitt, 73-68

Thorn Is Held To Eight Points

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — West Virginia overcame a shaky start against Pitt's zone defense Wednesday night and pulled away in the second half for a 73-68 victory over the Panthers, who held sophomore sensation Rod Thorn to eight points.

Thorn, who had been averaging 21.3 points per game before the Wednesday night contest, was guarded by Pitt's Ben Jinks and Tom Maloney. He only made 10 attempts from the floor, hitting on four baskets and missing two foul shots.

Pitt battled the Mountaineers on even terms through the first half. The score was tied three times at 9-9, 12-12 and 33-33 when Jim McCormick found the range for West Virginia for a 35-33 lead seconds before the half ended.

Shortly after the second half opened Pitt forced another tie at 37-37 but this was the last time the score was knotted. West Virginia's Dave Shuck drove on the basket with about 18 minutes left to put his team ahead 40-37 on a three-pointer, and the Mounties were never headed.

The closest Pitt came was at 64-62 with about three minutes to go when Dick Falensky hit on a jump shot.

Deer Program Planned Here

Rocket Bomb To Be Fired Over Orchards

The State Game and Inland Fish Commision will attempt an experiment in Allegany County in an attempt to devise a method for driving deer from orchard areas.

Regional Game Warden Joseph A. Minke said here that George Walters, a member of the commission, and George Shields, chief game warden for the group, will join with Minke in tests of a sky rocket device which propels a bomb into the air to explode over the orchards in the hopes it will scare the deer away.

Orchardists have complained that deer are causing considerable damage to their fruit trees and several groups have called for an antlerless deer season in an effort to combat the menace.

Mr. Minke said the deer situation was discussed at a meeting of the Western Maryland Wildlife Federation Tuesday night. The group comprises 34 clubs in Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties.

The federation is opposed to an antlerless season, but Minke explained that the State Game and Inland Fish Commission is considering some measures which might help fight the problem.

Dr. Van Flyger of the State Department of Research and Education, who has been conducting a deer survey in Western Maryland, outlined his efforts at Tuesday's meeting.

Martinsburg Trips Keyser For 9th Win In Row 60-52

Rally In Last Period Decides

MARTINSBURG, W. Va.—Martinsburg High's Bulldogs continued to roll along the unbeaten trail here last night, rallying in the final period to defeat Keyser High's Golden Tornado, 60-52, for their ninth consecutive victory.

The Bulldogs trailed at halftime, 29-28, and at the end of the third period, 43-38, to a fighting Keyser team which was trying to snap a three-game losing streak.

Coach George Whitacre's tossers began to hit in the final quarter with one of their patented rallies and pulled within one point at 48-47 with three minutes to go.

At this point after Keyser lost Don Harman on personal fouls, Martinsburg's Doug Lamp sank a field goal to put the Bulldogs ahead 49-48 and the home quint quickly stormed ahead to ice the verdict.

Tim Bartock topped the Martinsburg scorers with 22 points while John Karns chipped in with 13 for the winners. High man for Keyser, which now has lost four in a row and five of its last six games, was Francis Sidley with 17 points. Harman collected 14 in a losing cause before exiting on personals. Maryland Edges Navy, 63-62, On Greenspan's Foul

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The University of Maryland won a squeaker Wednesday night, beating Navy, 63-62, with sophomore Jerry Greenspan scoring seven of Maryland's last nine points.

Greenspan's foul shot in the last 10 seconds decided the game.

The Middies jumped off to an early lead in the first half, 14-12, and managed to stay ahead at the end of the period, 27-29. Navy held the ball for the first three minutes of the second half to keep their lead but lost it to Maryland sophomore Bob Eicher who made a three point play.

Navy's Dave Tremaine, high man for the game with 25 points, was allowed to make the game's final basket uncontested.

Bruce Kelleher with 17 points topped Maryland, while Bob McDonald grabbed 14 rebounds for the Terrapins.

Rails Spotlight Market Advance; B&O Gains 6⅛

NEW YORK (UPI) — The railroad shares scored their biggest gain on average in 17 months to spearhead a general advance on the New York Stock Exchange Wednesday.

The Baltimore & Ohio, merger-bound with the C&O, rolled up a whopping 6⅛ points to close at 48⅛ while the Chessie gained 1⅜ to 67⅜.

The Dow-Jones railroad average, sprinkled with gains of a point or more, pushed ahead 3.75 to 144.89 for its widest gain since Aug. 20, 1959 when that indicator rose 4.73. Only two carriers listed in the average, Great Northern and New Haven, failed to rise.

The biggest gains Wednesday, other than the rails, were scored by electronics, oils, food shares, aircrafts and very many of the popular special situation stocks.

Industrial stocks as measured by Dow-Jones, scored a hefty 5.14 gain to 634.10 and closed near its high accompanied by rising volume and a lagging ticker. Utilities added 0.28 to 102.37.

Volume, mounting as prices rose sharply in the morning and again at the bell, came to 4,390,000 shares against 3,830,000 the day before.

Card Of Thanks

I take this means of extending my sincere thanks and appreciation to all my friends and neighbors who were so kind during my bereavement, the death of my husband, John J. Williams. I wish to thank Father De Paul for the Graveside Services, those who sent floral tributes, Spritual Bouquets, those who donated the use of their cars and all others who in any manner assisted me, from Cumberland, Frostburg and Somerset, Pa.

MRS. CLARA SCHAAF WILLIAMS

In Memoriam

In memory of John J. Villa

Each time I pass a counter
Where cards are on display,
I wish that I could buy one
For you on Fathers Day.

But now I canot reach you,
Except in memory . . .
Wherein again I travel
The years that used to be.

And so . . . for all the beauty
We shared along the way
How much I'll be remembering
As I travel on each day.

Sadly missed,
By Wife
and Daughter

In memory or our dear husband and father WILSON WAGNER who passed away seventeen years ago today, January 19, 1944.

He had a nature you could not help loving,
And a heart that was purer than gold.
And to those who knew and loved him
His memory will never grow cold.
Sadly missed by wife and children.
GRACE WAGNER

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Twelve years of marriage ended tonight. The other woman won.

I'm not feeling sorry for myself or making excuses. Apparently I didn't have what it takes to keep my husband home nights. For two years I pretended not to see what was going on right under my nose. I've failed as a wife but I don't want to fail as a mother. Please tell me how I explain to a 10-year-old boy and a seven-year-old girl that their Daddy has taken his clothes and moved out of the house?

These past two years the children haven't seen much of their Dad evenings or weekends. He took his summer vacation alone. I always told them he had to work hard for us. They believed me. Now what do I say?

—MRS. W.

DEAR MRS. W.: It's your husband's responsibility to tell the children why he moved out of the house. He left—you didn't.

Ask him if he can spare an hour next Sunday afternoon to explain to his children why he is living elsewhere. If he doesn't like the idea you have no alternative but to tell them in your own way (without bitterness) that their father has decided he would be happier if he lived elsewhere. Don't mention another woman. Spare them this.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife's sister thinks she can paint. We are having a terrible problem over her Christmas gift.

This sister-in-law did an oil painting of my wife. If you ask me it's an insult, not a portrait.

My wife says it's impressionistic but I don't think this is any excuse. The features are exaggerated and out of proportion and it's downright grotesque. To make matters worse my sister-in-law had it framed and surprised us by hanging it on our living room wall—right over the fireplace. She put a big hole in the wall so we can't remove the picture unless we call the plasterers in.

My wife isn't very crazy about the picture but she says we have to learn to live with it or we'll hurt her sister's feelings. What is your verdict?—EYE SORE

DEAR EYE SORE: Keep the picture up for a few months — then call in the plasterers. Replace the portrait with one of your own choice and hang the gift in a less conspicuous place for another few months—before retiring it to the attic.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We have a telephone with an extension cord upstairs. When the telephone company installed these phones they put a plate on each phone which bears the telephone number.

My dear wife took a screw driver and pried off the number plates. Don't ask me why because she doesn't need a reason to do anything.

I say the telephones belong to the phone company and she has no right to deface them. Can they prosecute her for destroying their property?—H. E.

DEAR H. E.: Your wife has not destroyed the telephones. She simply removed the number plate.

I checked with Illinois Bell and was told that the company has no objections to this practice. Some people do not wish their phone number known so they remove it from sight.

To learn the booby-traps of teen-age drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teen-age Drinking," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Blocking out an adverse suit is usually done by holding up the controling card of that suit. But there is a rarer way of accomplishing this end that is much more picturesque. It involves playing a high card at once and preventing a duck by declarer. It is featured in today's offering.

South chose to open with one spade. Though he had the high card requirements for a standard opening no trump bid, he refrained from making such call because of the worthless doubleton in diamonds. West had a natural overcall of two clubs and North's free bid of two diamonds is borderline. The wealth of intermediate cards makes such action justifiable. When South rebid two no trump, North properly carried on to three.

West opened the king of clubs and South held up. The second lead of the queen of clubs was also ducked and West proceeded to clear the suit. Declarer then led a low diamond intending to finesse the ten of diamonds into the innocuous East hand. Had West relaxed long enough to play low, declarer would have had nine running tricks, with the king o. diamonds "onside."

But West shrewdly played the king of diamonds second hand and declarer was stymied. Permitted to hold the trick, West would run the setting tricks in clubs, so declarer had no choice but to win the trick with dummy's ace. The queen of hearts was led and, when East failed to cover, South decided that the heart finesse would not succeed and that everything hinged on bringing in the diamond suit. So he went up with his ace of hearts and played his last diamond. West followed with the five, and the ten was played from dummy in the hope that West had started with the K-J-5.

When East produced the jack of diamonds a heart return enabled West to run enough clubs to register a two trick set.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Flowers Bespeak Subtle Compliments

Every variety of flower bespeaks some sentiment of the sender — gratefulness, admiration, thoughtfulness and many more. When chosen with special care, flowers become the most gracious of gestures.

A man who goes out of his way to find out what you are wearing on a given occasion and orders a corsage that complements your dress does more than tender you a posy — his heart is in his act.

So with every floral offering, a little thought makes of it a tribute. If when you send cut flowers to a hostess you choose a color scheme that blends with the background of her living room, your gift will be thrice welcome.

You show great consideration in ordering less aromatic varieties for a sick friend or in having a bouquet destined for a hospital arranged in a container so as to save the time of busy nurses. For convalescense, a flowering plant is a long-term joy.

An altogether charming birthday greeting is in the birth flower of the month — sweet peas in April, lily of the valley in May, roses in June. Your florist can furnish you with the complete twelve-month list and he will also be happy to tie the box in birthstone colors — May's emerald, June's moonstone or July's ruby.

When you are the recipient of so much attention, you will, of course, desire to show your appreciation by more than a mere "thank you." The subtle way to do so is to wear or arrange your posies with the utmost imagination. Wear a corsage with the flower heads turned up and in a spot that best accents your costume. Group cut flowers with artistic care in your finest vase and place them in the most dramatic spot in the room.

Whether giver or recipient, remember that it does not take a host of blooms to express yourself.

W. Va. To Help Rehabilitation Of Mentally Ill

Experimental Plan Is Initiated

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Initiation of an experimental program to help rehabilitate patients discharged from mental hospitals was announced Wednesday by State Mental Health Director R. P. Hagerman.

Hagerman said the purpose of the pilot after - care project is to demonstrate the value of field workers in assisting patients leaving West Virginia's mental hospitals to re-establish themselves in community life.

The study will be conducted through June 30 in the Charleston and Clarksburg areas.

The director said that besides working with the former patient, his family and the community, field workers will help locate boarding and foster homes whenever necessary.

"The fact that the patient has no home available is frequently the one factor which prevents his return to the community," Hagerman said.

Ike Proclaims C&O Canal Land U. S. Monument

Seneca-Cumberland Area Is Included

WASHINGTON (AP)—The historic old Chesapeake & Ohio Canal Wednesday became a national monument. President Eisenhower issued a proclamation setting aside about 4,800 acres extending from Cumberland, Md., to near Seneca, Md.

The lands involved were deeded to the United States in 1938 by the receivers of the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal Co. They have been administered by the National Park Service.

The proclamation warned "all unauthorized persons not to appropriate, injure, destroy, deface or remove any feature of this monument, and not to locate or settle upon any of the lands reserved for this proclamation."

Eisenhower's action was a victory for persons who have been seeking to maintain the old canal area in its present rugged state.

Justice William O. Douglas of the Supreme Court is among the admirers of its scenic beauty. Several years ago he headed a group which walked the length of the old canal.

The President's action seemingly ruled out any use of the land for a highway, as has been advocated by some.

Sen. J. Glenn Beall, R-Md., who has offered bills several times to set up a C&O national park, could not be reached immediately for comment.

An aide, however, said the senator undoubtedly would pursue efforts to have Congress pass legislation to establish a C&O Canal National Park.

The aide said the senator does not know the exact language of the proclamation but believes the senator would want the legislation passed in addition to the President's action. Such legislation, the aide said, would provide for additional benefits such as the exchange of lands, building access roads and other provisions to develop the land for park and recreation.

Mathias Hails Ike's Action On C&O Canal

Commenting on the President's action yesterday, Rep. Charles McC. Mathias Jr., R-Md. 6th., said the proclamation "will open the way for tourist attractions and help to bring new job opportunities for the people of Western Maryland."

He said the action "is the result of the kind of teamwork we should encourage for the future."

"It is gratifying to me," said Rep. Mathias, "that the President has recognized the need for action and issued his proclamation, including all the necessary safeguards for the development of the Potomac Valley."

Mr. Mathias immediately confirmed an appointment with Conrad Wirth, director of the National Park Service, to discuss preparation of supplemental legislation in order to "bring this great and historic area to its fullest availability for use by the public."

$54,082 Spent Toward County Road Project

Some $54,082.43 has been spent on the Mexico Farms Road project in the first six months of the current fiscal year, according to a report to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners by the State Roads Commission.

The report showed receipts of $78,433.58 from Allegany County in that account to December 31, leaving a cash balance of $24,351.15 after the expenditures.

Anticipated receipts for two other county road projects add up to $22,950. Included is $13,300 for Orleans Road and $9,650 for Bear Hill Road.

The SRC goes on to state that anticipated expenditures during the remainder of the fiscal year add up to $122,198.78, which would leave a deficit in the amount of $97,847.63. However, that anticipated deficit does not take into consideration $100,900 in federal aid which will be earmarked for the Mexico Farm Road.

Federal money for the Mexico Farm Road includes $99,594 in the 1959 allocation for plans, specifications and other expenditures plus a 1960 allocation of $1,306 for the same purpose. In addition, another $73,391 is in the 1961 allocation but is unprogrammed. Agreement on this amount must be reached by June 30, 1962.

Dr. Verl Lewis To Talk Here On Social Work

Agencies Invited To Hear New Dean

Dr. Verl Lewis, dean of the new school of social work which will open in September on the Baltimore campus of the University of Maryland, will address a group of social workers and agency people here Friday.

Miss Ethel Wilderman, director of the Allegany County Welfare Board, said yesterday that Dr. Lewis will address social workers and other employes of the Welfare Department at their Cumberland Street building at 10:30 a. m.

Then at 12:30 p. m., he will be guest speaker at a luncheon in the Fort Cumberland Hotel, to which heads and directors of local and public and private social agencies have been invited, along with educators and others interested.

Miss Wilderman said Dr. Lewis is considered an authority in this field.

He obtained his master's degree at the University of Chicago and his doctorate at Northwestern.

Miss Wilderman said she has extended a number of invitations to persons who she believes will be interested in hearing Dr. Lewis, and at yesterday's luncheon meeting of the Allegany County Social Workers Luncheon Group, she extended an invitation to all members to attend.

At yesterday's second meeting of this newly formed group, John Cobun of the Maryland State Department of Education Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, outlined the duties and wide scope of responsibilities of his agency. He said that much is being accomplished in training handicapped people and others for new employment, as well as helping already employed to adjust themselves to their present work. The "rehab" agency works closely with other agencies, he said.

The major handicap in their field he declared, is money. The funds budgeted for this important service, which helps citizens become gainfully employed, are woefully inadequate to take care of the present, as well as the potential case load, he asserted.

Samuel Weston, officer in charge of the Veterans Administration office here, was to share the discussion, but due to the long question period and interest shown in Mr. Cobun's activities, F. Allan Weatherholt, program chairman, suggested that Mr. Weston postpone his discussion until the next monthly meeting on February 15.

Sheriff's Deputy Solves Burglary

An 11-year-old boy admitted to Deputy Sheriff William E. "Scotty" Orr yesterday afternoon that he broke into Harry Owens' barber shop, 387 McMullen Highway, Roberts Place, and stole a change box containing about $25.

Deputy Sheriff Orr said all of the money was recovered from two hiding places under a porch. No disposition of the case has yet been made.

Mrs. Owens reported the burglary to Deputy Sheriff Edgar M. Lewis about 9 a. m. yesterday. Deputy Orr was assigned to the case and had concluded his investigations by 3 p. m. Mr. Owens apparently had left a window unlocked when he left the barber shop Tuesday night.

Meeting Set Tonight

A regular meeting of the Police and Firemen's Welfare Association will be held today at 8 p.m. in Shaw's Cafe.

Points To Remember:

Safety Group Distributes Digest Of Point System

The Maryland Traffic Safety Commission, cooperating with the Department of Motor Vehicles, is distributing wallet-size cards summarizing the new motor vehicle violation point system, which went into effect with the new year.

Police report that most drivers apparently are unaware of the point values assigned the various violations.

Briefly, the system works like this:

If you earn eight points within two years, your license must be suspended for two to 30 days. Later suspensions will be from 15 to 90 days.

If you require 12 points within two years, your license must be revoked.

After three points, you get a warning letter. Five points and the commissioner of motor vehicles calls you in for a conference.

If you're charged with a violation covered by the point system and you choose to forfeit bond rather than stand trial, the points go on your record, just as if you had been found guilty.

A summary of the point system follows:

Speeding (10 m.p.h. over posted limit)	3
Reckless driving	3
Failure to report accident	5
Letting unlicensed operator drive	4
Hit-run (injury)	12
Hit-run (no injury)	8
Driving after suspension or revocation	12
Misrepresentation to get permit	12
Loaning or altering permit	12
Homicide or assault by auto	12
Driving under influence	12
Felony, using automobile	12

Moving violations not listed above cost three points if they contribute to an accident, one point if they do not.

Davis Will Among Five Probated Here

The last testament of Garnet W. Davis, who was the 56-year-old president of the Queen City Neon Company at the time of his death January 12, was one of five probated Tuesday in Allegany County Orphans Court.

His sister, Mrs. Mary Margaret Davis Barnes, this city, was the sole benificiary of the will drawn July 31, 1959. His brother, George Thomas Davis, RFD 2, Amberley, Annapolis, qualified as executor under a $500 bond.

Another was the will of Mrs. Helen Powell Wise, who was 46 when she died suddenly December 20 at Porte Vedera Beach, Fla. Her mother, Mrs. Ruth Cochrane Powell, 12 North Smallwood Street, was the sole beneficiary of the will dated November 21, 1960. The First National Bank and Trust Company and W. Lloyd Baker, Baltimore, qualified as executors under a $1,000 bond.

Also probated was the will of Mrs. Mary Catherine McGreevy, who was a 60-year-old Luke resident when she died December 12. Her son, Francis Xavier McGreevy, Fairview Street, Luke, the sole beneficiary, qualified as executor under a $500 bond. The will was dated August 9, 1960.

The last testament of Mrs. Mary Ann Robertson, who died December 14, also was probated. She left one parcel on Water Station Road, Lonaconing, to a daughter, Mrs. Esther Robertson Powell, St. Mary's Terrace, Lonaconing, who qualified as executrix under a $500 bond. Another parcel, the home property, was bequeathed to her other children equally. There were cash bequests to three granddaughters and all of her personal property and other possessions were left equally to her children under the will dated October 1957.

The final will probated Tuesday was the testament of Mrs. Annie Stakem, who died nearly five years ago—April 25, 1956. A daughter, Mary Esther Bonig, P. O. Box 37, Cumberland, was sole beneficiary and qualified as executrix under a $100 bond. This will was dated January 11, 1956.

Commissioners To Meet Early

The inauguration of John F. Kennedy as the 35th President of the United States tomorrow has prompted the Democratic-dominated Allegany County Board of Commissioners to move up its meeting to 9 a. m. until 11 a. m. tomorrow.

Ordinarily, the commissioners meet from 10 a. m. until noon each Tuesday and Friday. John J. Rowan and John T. Mason are the Democratic commissioners while William A. Wilson is a Republican.

Equity Suits Filed

Seven equity suits have been filed in Allegany County Circuit Court. The bills of complaint were titled Anne M. Counihan vs. Thomas P. Counihan, Jane Kelly vs. Donald Kelly, Dorothy Elizabeth Green vs. Joseph Delbert Green, Gladys Rosella Blacker vs. William Wesley Blacker, Shirley Cumberledge vs. Harry Lee Cumberledge, Richard Shaw vs. Barbara A. Shaw and Faye Louise Adams vs. Bennie Blake Adams.

Teachers Plan All-Out Effort For Pay Hike

Call Committee's Plan 'Inadequate'

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Spokesmen for Maryland school teachers Wednesday night pledged "an all-out effort" to persuade the legislature to enact a full salary bill over wishes of the Tawes administration and legislative leaders.

Robert Y. Dubel, associate executive secretary of the Maryland State Teachers Association, said the administration-backed proposals of the James Committee to give $6.4 million to counties as aid to education and earmark none of it for salaries are "inadequate" to meet teacher needs.

Noting that the total James proposals will require $9 million in new tax money and that the governor plans to lower the sales tax to purchases costing over 25 cents in order to finance it, Dubel said:

"It is difficult for us to understand how the proposed adjustments in the sales tax can be passed at the same time that the state budget is experiencing a substantial surplus, unless they are justified by an improved program of at least the magnitude we are recommending in the $4,000-$6,000 school aid proposal."

Mrs. F. L. Bull, legislative chairman for the Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers, moved into the battle with a statement that P-TA groups also will not accept the "negative action" of the administration.

"It is most upsetting to our P-TA membership to be told on the one hand that new taxes are needed to implement the James Committee proposals for education. , and on the other hand to find that none of that money is tied down for education," she said.

Both she and Dubel said they were encouraged by the large number of legislators who appear to favor their $13 million program of increased aid to education, if taxes are to be raised, in preference to limited possible aid in the James bill.

Dubel said sponsors for the legislation are still being obtained and that the teacher pay bills, providing salary raises averaging some $400, will be introduced in the legislature next week.

Proposed Md. Cigaret Tax Is Assailed

'Headache' Cited By Distributors

By HERB THOMPSON

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Opponents of a statewide tax of six cents a pack on cigarettes assailed it Wednesday as a device to benefit Baltimore City distributors at the expense of smokers and retailers throughout the state.

"There are only about 15 people in favor of this proposal," Harry Todd of Salisbury, an Eastern Shore distributor, told the House Ways and Means Committee.

"They brought it to the Legislative Council and that's why the bill is here today."

Representatives of the Tobacco Distributors Association, most of whose members are located in the city, admitted the only reason for their endorsement of the proposal is to eliminate a headache of fixing different tax stamps to cigarettes and distributing them to the proper subdivisions.

"We'd like to eliminate the whole tax but we can't," said Joseph Sewell, a Baltimore distributor and former president of the association. "We have a tax and we have to live with it."

Presently Three Cents

At present the State levies three cents a pack on cigarettes. Local levies applied on top of the State tax include three cents each in Baltimore City and Baltimore County, two cents each in Carroll, Harford, Montgomery and Frederick counties, and one cent a pack in Garrett County. Separate stamps are required for each levy.

The Legislative Council's James Committee on Taxation, after hearing from the Baltimore City wholesalers, recommended that a uniform State tax of six cents a pack be substituted for the present hodgepodge system and the local taxes repealed.

All of the additional revenue of $4.8 million would go back to counties on a population basis and in proportion to what they're now taxing.

It was recommended by the Legislative Council, and endorsed by Gov. Tawes, as a measure which would benefit local governments financially while bringing about desired uniformity in cigarette taxes.

But Morris Turk, legislative agent for wholesalers outside the city, told the committee:

"This is not a revenue-raising bill but a competition-eliminating bill. Baltimore City already has six cents in tax. It would force 17 counties to put on taxes when they're not required."

Growers Disapprove Tax

Southern Maryland tobacco growers also urged the committee not to approve the additional tax. They said their industry is already overtaxed and that it can only hurt a crop which makes up 75 per cent of the cash income of Southern Maryland farmers.

The Ways and Means Committee took no action on the proposal after the two-hour hearing, but Chairman A. Gordon Boone, D-Balto County, said it probably would be considered Thursday or early next week.

The legislature plans an abbreviated day Thursday before adjourning for a long weekend because of the inauguration Friday of President-elect Kennedy.

Action in the House Wednesday included passage and transfer to the Senate of a measure to increase the salaries of Baltimore County assessors. Sponsored by the county delegation, the measure was whisked to passage only five days after introduction.

Investigation Asked

The delegates also tentatively approved a resolution to ask for an investigation of a Department of Agriculture order placing Maryland's Eastern Shore in the Baltimore milk-marketing area.

The resolution originally asked that the governor make the probe but it was amended to urge that the task be done by the secretary of agriculture.

Another resolution receiving tentative House approval would ask the governor appoint a commission to study means of improving the physical fitness of Maryland youth.

Bills introduced Wednesday included the perennial $90 million veterans bonus proposal by Sens. Harry T. Phoebus, R-Somerset, and John L. Sanford Jr., D-Worcester.

It calls for a beer-tax increase to finance the bonus.

Players' New Show Now In Rehearsal

"Happiest Millionaire," the 13th play of the Algonquin Players, is now in production, according to Robert Boniece, director. Dates for the show are March 15 and 16 at the Maryland Theatre.

The show offers a variety of parts which appealed to many newcomers, as showr in the cast listed below. "Happiest Millionaire," promises to be the first success of the new season, Mr. Boniece said.

Newcomers to Algonquin Players are Anton Sparr, Robert J. Roberts, Laura Orr, Maxine Drummond, and a mother and son attraction, Sue Baker and Mark Baker. Also in the cast are Mildred White, Sid Storer, Robert Roach, James Webster, Peter Boniece, Ralph O. Barrick, Richard Powell, Florine Isaacs, and Clark Fales.

Season tickets are now available from members and at Warhaft's Drapery Shop. Other shows of the season are "Outward Bound," "Night Must Fall," and "Picnic."

William Reed, technical director, will announce workshop nights soon, Mr. Boniece added.

$10,000 Fund For Miners In Proposed Bill

The Allegany County delegation to the Maryland Legislature yesterday held a meeting in Annapolis to discuss a bill that would authorize the County Commissioners to appropriate $10,000 for Miners Hospital.

The bill, if introduced and passed by the General Assembly, would only authorize the County Commissioners to allot funds for the hospital and would not be mandatory.

The commissioners also would have the power to decide the method by which the $10,000 would be raised if the bill is introduced and passed this session.

The county delegation yesterday also made plans to introduce a joint resolution in the Senate and the House of Delegates requesting the U. S. government to include the portion of U. S. Route 40 in this area in the Federal Interstate Highway System.

At the present time the section of U. S. Route 40 that is included in the interstate system ends just east of Hancock. The resolution calls for the government to increase substantially the interstate mileage and include the balance of Route 40 westward in Maryland.

The delegation also reported yesterday it had not received any formal word from the County Commissioners about the school construction program.

However, on December 23 the County Commissioners voted unanimously to ask the Allegany County legislators to formulate a measure providing for an enabling act under which the school building program can be financed.

In other action at the meeting yesterday, the delegation worked to shape up bills which soon will be introduced by the lawmakers.

The legislature will hold a short session today starting at noon and then will adjourn until Monday night.

Man To Face Hearing On Larceny Count

A local man is expected to be given a hearing this morning in Trial Magistrate's Court in connection with the theft of a 12-gauge shotgun, alarm clock and silverware from a home on Golden's Lane.

Vernon H. Growden, city, was arrested by city police on a warrant obtained by Frank Rodicamp from Trial Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt.

The warrant indicated that on January 5 Growden took a shotgun valued at $50, an alarm clock valued at $10 and a quantity of silverware valued at $10 from the premises of Rodicamp on Golden's Lane.

Growden, according to city police, was nabbed on January 12 and later taken to the Allegany County jail.

City Police Detective Captain James E. Van said yesterday the shotgun and alarm clock were recovered from a local pawn shop.

Md. Cigaret Tax Would Raise Levy Among Highest

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — If Maryland imposes a statewide tax of six cents per pack on cigarets, as now proposed, it will place the Maryland tax among the 13 highest in the country, the House Ways and Means Committee was told Wednesday.

Among neighboring jurisdictions, Pennsylvania levies 6 cents, West Virginia 5 cents, Delaware 3 cents, Virginia 3 cents and the District of Columbia 2 cents.

Advocates Use Of Resource Teachers

Allegany County's 16,000 public school children would be more nearly physically fit if the physical education program were expanded in the elementary schools, according to Robert E. Pence, supervisor of physical education in the county schools.

Mr. Pence believes that the physical education program in the elementary schools of this county would benefit if certain resource physical education teachers were employed who would visit different schools and consult with the elementary classroom teachers. He expressed his views at the meeting Tuesday afternoon of the County Board of Education.

The supervisor believes that many if not most of the elementary teachers are actively interested in conducting an effective physical education program for their pupils. He pointed out that when a tumbling workshop was held recently at Johnson Heights Schools for fourth, fifth and sixth grade teachers in the Cumberland area 82 of the possible 90 teachers attended.

More Effective

However, he believes that resource teachers could help to make the physical fitness program more effective.

In the course of his illustrated talk to the school board, Mr. Pence pointed out that educators, doctors, military leaders and both the outgoing and incoming Presidents of the United States have expressed concern about the lack of physical fitness on the part of many Americans.

More than half of the young men in the United States who have taken a minimum physical fitness test have failed at least one part of it against only eight per cent of failures in European countries.

The physical education supervisor told the school board members that every child needs at least two hours of vigorous exercise every day. They find too many diversions to get the needed exercise, he emphasized. They spend too much time watching television, ride in automobiles instead of walking and have very few if any home chores to perform.

The critical years in building a healthy body are the first 10 years of a child's life, Mr. Pence stressed. That's why it is important to expand the physical fitness program in the elementary grades.

Many of the classroom teachers are very effective in teaching physical fitness but others are less active. The supervisor explained that less active teachers have been taught to conduct the fitness program without actually participating themselves.

Live Longer

Physically active people generally live longer lives, Mr. Pence said. He pointed out that many relatively inactive people died of heart attacks when they were called upon to shovel snow after the heavy fall last month.

The supervisor also would like the physical education program expanded in the high schools of the county. It is required in the junior high school years three days a week but not in the senior high schools. As a result very few senior high school students take physical education.

Mr. Pence expressed belief that the varsity athletic program in the schools of the county is adequate but it only touches about 400 of the 16,000 pupils in the county.

Maryland counties which now employ physical education resource teachers as suggested for Allegany County include Frederick, Baltimore, Montgomery, Prince George's and Anne Arundel.

Last year about 50 per cent of the fourth, fifth and sixth grade pupils at Columbia Street School failed at least one of the six parts when they first took the physical fitness test. Later in the school year, after undergoing a series of exercises to improve their muscles, the percentage failing at least one of the tests dropped to 31.

Members of the school board expressed interest in expansion of this physical fitness program—but they asked to be excused from taking the test themselves.
